AFL Contract Is Ordered by Court; NLRB Rules for CIO

Electric Products Firm Caught in Contest on Jurisdiction.

Wagner Labor Act Violation Charged

Ballot by Employes to Select Unions Is Decreed.

By Robert C. Albright.

The National Electric Products Corporation, of Ambridge, Pa., center of rival labor organizing efforts, was caught last night between conflicting rulings of the National Labor Relations Board and a Federal district court, in a strange jurisdictional contest.

The board ordered the company to lay aside its contract with the American Federation of Labor affiliated International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and submit to the results of a secret election on the union wishes of its 1,600 employes.

The board's decision came as the company was complying with a Federal court order upholding the closed-shop contract, by notifying employes to join the A. F. of L. union or face dismissal.

Violation Is Charged.

Meantime, the Committee for Industrial Organization affiliated United Electrical Workers Union had appealed to the National Labor Relations Board to throw out the contract. Yesterday, the board ruled. It charged the company with violation of the Wagner labor act, and ordered the A. F. of L. union contract invalidated.

The company was ordered to "end discrimination" against the United Electrical and Radio Workers (C. I. O.); to "cease encouraging" membership in the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers' local (A. F. of L.), and to "stop all other forms of coercion." It was directed to post for 30 days a notice that the contract with the brotherhood was void and of no effect.

Cutting under the decree of the Pittsburgh Federal Court, which upheld the A. F. of L. contract, the board challenged the court's jurisdiction and opened wide the issue of the authority of the courts as opposed to the action of an autonomous Federal court.

This test of authority, which on a broader front may influence the whole course of the fight between the William Green and the John L. Lewis organization may ultimately reach the Supreme Court itself, if the company succeeds in appealing the jurisdictional clash to the Philadelphia Circuit Court of Appeals.

Confronted with the Federal court order on the one hand and the Labor Board ruling on the other, the National Electric Products Co. appeared certain of trouble whichever way it moved.

'Supreme La wof Land.'

Although the Federal court decree was exhibited at board hearings on the dispute, the board disregarded it in its decision.

"This decree,' said the board, "is no bar to the instant proceeding under the national labor relations act or to the making of an order by the board under the terms of that act, that the respondent shall cease and desist from discriminating against the employes because they decline to join the brotherhood.

"This act embodies a public policy of national concern and is the supreme law of the land on the subject matter covered by it. It empowers the board to prevent any unfair labor practice affecting commerce

Bandit Gets $1,192 In Cafeteria Holdup

Robs S. and W. Cafe at G and 15th Streets as 50 Diners Sit By, Forces Taxi Driver at Gun's Point to Speed Him Away.

A young, curly-haired bandit, hatless and unmasked, held up the S. & W. Cafeteria, G street near Fifteenth street northwest, a few minutes after 8 o'clock last night and escaped with $1,192.50.

It was one of the most daring robberies in the city's history, so brazen that one of the victims thought it was a practical joke.

The cafeteria, probably the largest in Washington, is in the heart of the city, within a block of the White House, and area heavily policed.

Fifty or so patrons were finishing dinner, but only a few of them were conscious of the bold-up so efficiently did the bandit work.

The bandit, carrying his loot in two bags and an envelope, made

Special Session Signs Increase At Hyde Park

Veto of Sugar Bill May Necessitate Return of Congress.

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Signs increased in summer White House circles today that President Roosevelt would call a special session of Congress. The President said he still had the question under advisement.

Talking with newspapermen while watching the Dutchess County Fair Horse Show at nearby Rhinebeck, the President said he expected to act on the sugar quota and housing bill shortly and that he was still considering an extra session and a trip to the West Coast.

Meanwhile, officials indicated that if a special session were decided upon it would come regardless of the action on the sugar bill, although a veto of that measure would make such a session more necessary.

The President said he was talking with the State Department by telephone three times a day and the Government was still on a 24-hour watch as far as the Far East was concerned.

He had no comment on recent developments in China.

He said he would have luncheon at his mother's estate tomorrow with Robert W. Bingham, Ambassador to London, who, he added, was in this country on personal business.

He leaves Thursday afternoon on the yacht Potomac for four or five days of fishing in Long Island Sound and around Block Island.

Paralysis Spreads In Chicago, Canada

Chicago, Aug. 31 (AP).—The Chicago board of health ordered tonight that the opening of all city schools, scheduled for September 7, be delayed indefinitely in an effort to check the spread of infantile paralysis.

Toronto, Aug. 31 (Canadian Press). — Health authorities prepared today to take care of additional infantile paralysis victims as the worst epidemic of the disease in provincial history continued unchecked.

Health officials said they expected 2,200 new cases before the middle of September. A total of 727 cases have been recorded since June.

French Regime Nationalizes All Railroads

Put on Basis for Army Mobilization Within Two-Day Period.

By the United Press.

Paris, Aug. 31.—The Popular Front government tonight took over control of all railroads in France and wove them into a network providing for mobilization of the entire army, including 6,000,000 reserves, within 48 hours.

The nationalization of six large private railroad systems with a combined mileage of 26,400 miles, adding them to two other lines already under state control, was achieved when President Albert Lebrun signed a council of ministers decree.

The government, preparing for the eventuality of war, already has brought munitions plants, airplane factories and the Bank of France under its control.

The government will hold 51 per cent of the new capitalization of the roads, including a $1,046,500,000 assessment for the private lines, and shareholders will be virtually ousted from any voice in the manner of their operation.

The decree was signed a few hours before expiration of the "full powers" bill, passed by Parliament two months ago to give Premier Camille Chautemps the powers of a virtual dictator.

Hazen Fights Traffic Case 'Favoritism'

Prosecutors Called On to Explain Lack of Co-ordination.

'Immunity' Instances on Gain; Maj. Brown Protests Futility.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Further indications of favoritism and lack of co-ordination in traffic safety efforts were revealed in Police Court yesterday as Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen called for explanations from members of the Assistant Corporation Counsel's office.

Aroused at reports of apparent discrimination and laxity in the prosecution of traffic offenders, police and traffic authorities threatened last night to reopen several cases where accused motorists were shown unusual leniency in spite of serious offenses.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, determined to continue his policy of rigid traffic enforcement and safety promotion, assailed the evident refusal of city prosecutors to co-operate. He was joined by Police Court Judge Edward M. Curran, who has long advocated uniform and impartial penalties for all traffic violators.

Fine Is Suspended.

Commissioner Hazen, following a conference with Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, said he would order special reports from the Corporation Counsel in cases where leniency was recommended or charges nolle prossed.

And as District officials sought a co-ordinated traffic safety program, additional instances of so-called "immunity" were uncovered in Police Court. One involved the chauffeur for a Southern Senator.

According to police records, the chauffeur was observed weaving recklessly through heavy traffic on New York avenue northeast. A large truck was forced onto the curb as the accused driver swerved to the wrong side of the street.

Traffic from the opposite direction was halted as the chauffeur continued to zig-zag, it was reported. A traffic policeman, off duty and en route home, gave chase. When apprehended, the Senator's chauffeur was found to have several empty beer bottles on the front seat beside him, the officer declared.

The man was charged with reckless driving. Yesterday, however, the Senator's attorney appeared in his behalf before an assistant corporation counsel in Police Court. Earlier, efforts had been made to "adjust" the charge with Inspector L. I. N. Edwards, assistant superintendent of police, it was learned.

More Instances Found.

Inspector Edwards refused to intrecede and testimony was presented to the assistant prosecutor. The reckless driving charge was reduced to driving on the wrong side of the street—and a recommended $25 fine was suspended.

In another case, an assistant United States attorney was arrested for speeding. When presented to an assistant corporation counsel, the charge was nolle prossed—quashed.

"We must co-operate with the United States attorney's office," was the assistant corporation counsel's reported explanation.

Citing his instructions to policemen for strict and impartial law enfrocement, Maj. Brown said:

"When circumstances warrant an arrest for a major offense, the accused motorist should be prosecuted on a major charge. We can get nowhere in our efforts to reduce accidents and save lives if charges against defendants are reduced or dismissed without even being presented to court."

2,000 Americans Marooned In Cholera Path in Shanghai; Japan Plans Mass Bombing

Chinese Remorse Leaves Hull Unplacated About Liner.

Court-Martial Due For Flier in Error

U. S. Notes Stern Despite Official Sympathy for China.

By Franklyn Waltman.

Despite the sympathy which exists in official circles for the Chinese in their present struggle with Japan, this Government has not minced words in protesting against and characterizing the bombing of the Dollar liner President Hoover by a Chinese aviator in the China Sea Monday, it was revealed yesterday.

Even though the Chinese government accepted full responsibility for the incident and made haste to promise immediate redress and reparation, with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek personally directing that the aviator responsbile be court-martialed and punished, Secretary of State Cordell Hull declined to state whether this Government was satisfied.

Although it is not expected this Government will undertake any drastic action toward China, State Department officials apparently wish to make it clear to the Chinese that such conduct as the bombing of the Dollar liner cannot be treated lightly here. Even after Dr. Chenting T. Wang, Chinese Ambassador, made formal apologies to Hull, the latter characterized the bombing as unlawful, inexcusable and negligent.

Protest Made Stronger.

On Monday, it was revealed by the State Department last night, two protests over the bombing were lodged with the Nanking government. The first was made on initiative of American Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson on receipt of word from Shanghai of what had happened. He informed the Chinese minister for foreign affairs that "I hereby protest this inexcusable assault upon an American merchant ship and state that I must hold the Chinese government responsible for damage done."

When Johnson reported his action to the State Department he not only received full approval but was instructed to supplement his first note with a much stronger one and to point out that it came under "express instructions from the American Government."

The American Ambassador was

Tallulah Bankhead Married After Air Flight to Alabama

Speaker's Daughter Bride of John Emory in Surprise Ceremony; Star Was Friend of Duke of Windsor.

Jasper, Ala., Aug. 31.—Tallulah Bankhead, star of stage and screen, and daughter of Speaker of the House William B. Bankhead, was married in a quiet ceremony tonight to John Emory, of New York.

The ceremony was performed in the Bankhead home here by Probate Judge L. G. Garrison.

The actress and Emory, who is on the stage in New York, flew South from New York today, landed at Birmingham, and motored here.

Only a civil ceremony was performed.

Miss Bankhead wore a brown "Hattie Carnegie" dress, tailored in straight lines with period accessories, including a black hat, black shoes, black bag and simple white pearls.

"This is my first and last marriage," the actress said.

Emory, who is 32, will play the role of Caesar in the coming production of "Anthony and Cleopatra," in which Miss Bankhead will star.

Wedding a Surprise.

The wedding apparently took the "royal family of Alabama" by surprise. Only Speaker Bankhead and his wife were present, with a few close friends. Senator John Bankhead arrived for a brief informal reception immediately after the wedding.

Friends of the family said the couple planned to motor back to Birmingham tonight and to fly to New York tomorow.

Friends of the family said the bride was 35 last January 31.

While on the stage in England, she often was seen in the company of Edward, the former King of England.

Six generations of Emory's family have been on the stage.

Belgium Calls Parliament to Sift Bank Graft

Fascists Accuse Premier of Collecting Double Pay Check.

By the Associated Press.

Brussels, Aug. 31.—Premier Paul Van Zeeland, who resigned a $25,000-a-year bank job to become Belgium's prime minister at one-fifth the salary, will defend himself from charges that he accepted a double pay check when Parliament convenes in extraordinary session next week.

King Leopold, in Switzerland, was asked by the cabinet to night to call the session to investigate what Belgium's Fascists call "a national bank scandal" and what Van Zeeland calls a "libel." Well-informed observers believed his coalition cabinet would get a clean bill of health and would not have to resign.

Seven Rexists (Belgian Fascists) were arrested last night in a demonstration, but the party will meet again tomorrow, concurrently with a meeting of national bank shareholders.

Van Zeeland denied he had accepted secret bank bonuses while premier. He did admit receiving bonuses, but added that these came in 1934 and 1935, prior to his becoming premier, when he was just about to quit or had just rejoined the bank as vice governor.

The Socialist governor of the bank, Louis Franck, may resign before Parliament convenes, as a gesture of his integrety.

Van Zeeland, internationally active in efforts to call a world economic conference, said any money he drew from the national bank's special reserve fund did not represent his salary as vice governor of the bank since he came into political office, and "as to what I did with the money, that is my own business."

Army Plane Falls In Great Salt Lake

Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 31 (AP). An Army pursuit plane fell into Great Salt Lake at dusk tonight and shortly thereafter one of its occupants was seen to start a 2-mile swim toward shore.

Aboard were Lieut. Luke Powell, a Reserve officer, and a mechanic, Private Henry Pearson.

The War in China.

Outbreak of cholera added to the peril of 2,000 Americans stranded in Shanghai after Chinese bombing of the liner President Hoover caused postponement of evacuation. Fierce fighting north of the city continued.

Japan ordered the evacuation of her nationals from Shantung Province in preparation for a concerted drive south from Tientsin. All foreigners in the city were ordered to observe Japanese military rule—Page 13.

Cholera Rages.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, (Wednesday), Sept. 1.—The perils of war were aggravated today by an outbreak of cholera in this conflict-ridden city where Americans are stranded by a ban on their own country's shipping.

The disease appeared in the French concession, home of most of Shanghai's American residents. Desperate efforts were made to halt its spread.

Clarence E. Gauss, American Consul General, said there was no cholera among foreign citizens in the International Settlement, where sanitary officers also were fighting bubonic plague.

The port of Shanghai was closed to American vessels, except warships, after the bombing Monday of the Dollar liner President Hoover by Chinese warplanes, killing Seaman Lionel Haskell, of Baltimore, and injuring nine persons.

Leaves Are Canceled.

United States Naval authorities canceled all shore leaves from American warships here. Chinese hands were ordered off the U. S. S. Augusta, flagship of the Asiatic Fleet.

(Secretary of State Hull in Washington said the Chinese government proposed full financial and moral redress for the bombing and promised the attackers would be court-martialed and severely punished.)

[The Japanese navy is prepared to begin aerial bombardment of all military bases and airdromes throughout China, a navy spokesman said today, according to the United Press. The announcement coincided with the start of the Japanese armies' big push and preparations for an advance in rich Shantung Province to the north. It followed by a few hours an aerial bombardment of the important southern metropolis of Canton.—Editor's note.]

Fighting raged meanwhile along the left bank of the Whangpoo River, Shanghai's waterway to the Yangtze and to the sea.

The Japanese lines along the Lotien, Woosung and Kiangwan sectors were broken in many places by hard fighting Chinese. The Japanese insisted they had captured Woosung, cloaked by a smoke screen and wading across breast-high creeks with rifles and machine guns to fight hand-to-hand. Chinese disputed the claim.

The stand of the Chinese, Japanese admitted, had prevented a meeting

Unburied Bodies Add to Shanghai Horrors

By Mark J. Ginsbourg,
Special Cable to The Post.

Shanghai (Wednesday), Sept. 1.—Horror, desolation and misery that beggar description greeted this correspondent on a two-day visit of the war-torn sections of Shanghai and front line regions where for nearly three weeks Japanese and Chinese troops have been locked in a death grapple.

Everywhere—in Yangtsepoo and the wayside districts and even in parts of the International Settlement and the French Concession, though these have been spared the worst—the sickly sweet stench of rotting human flesh pervades the atmosphere.

I saw many small groups of Japanese ronin — unemployed and roughnecks — pulling corpses out of wrecked buildings and piling them on improvised funeral pyres in the streets.

Some streets off the main thoroughfares have become impassable because of the wreckage caused by naval shells and air bombs. Others are full of dangers to life and limb of unwary pedestrians because of the crumbling structures and the unexploded shells, hand grenades and bullets with which they are littered.

The municipal market, only a few weeks ago a thriving center to which peasants brought their wares from all over the countryside, is a shadow of its former self. The jail is practically in ruins.

So great has been the destruction of life during these weeks of undeclared war that the work of disposing of the dead has lagged considerably. I saw the corpses of five Chinese soldiers, dead many days, covered with swarms of maggots.

In Soochow Creek, under the windows of the Soviet consulate-general, which is directly across the so-called Garden Bridge leading to the Bund, I saw the bodies of three other Chinese soldiers, one of them headless. The sight of death is becoming common in Shanghai.

In certain parts of the city, whole blocks have been destroyed, fire completing the ruin started by shells from Japanese battleships and bombing planes and the answering fire of the Chinese defense forces.

The streets are deserted except for Japanese sentries, Japanese trucks dashing madly about and a thin trickle of refugees who, having somehow survived the holocaust, have been making use of the relative period of quiet of the last few days to flee to safer haven. Most of these refugees are women and children. But regardless of age or sex, all are thoroughly searched by Japanese soldiers.

With bullets whizzing past me as I made the rounds, I visited Japanese outposts on the road to Kiangwan. Standing between the charred and broken ruins of a once prosperous village, but now a no-man's land, I saw a Chinese tank abandoned on the bank of the creek under persistent shelling by the Japanese. The Japanese claim that during the past week they have taken no fewer than 24 prisoners from captured tanks.

The number is suspiciously small. It suggests the possibility that no quarter is being given to Chinese prisoners, or, on the other hand, the bitter resistance which the defending troops have put up.

Japanese outposts on their way to Woosung at the junction of the Whangpoo and the Yangtse rivers have closed Shanghai University, founded and supported by American Baptists. The buildings of this institution have suffered some damage by shellfire.

Guided Migration Basis of Farm Aid, WPA Experts Say

U. S. Agencies Urged to Save Human Values

Crop Program Must Fit Peculiar Needs of Area, Report Adds.

By Russell Smith

Crop control must follow the farmer and "guided migration is a basic need in rural reconstruction," research experts of one branch of the Federal Government warned yesterday while another branch was preparing to pledge cotton farmers to an as yet unenacted 1938 curtailment program.

Limitation of production on farms "can be successful . . . only if planned in such a way that agricultural production is adjusted to rural population trend," contended the experts' report to Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator.

Further bolstering their insistence on adaptation of any "reconstruction" program to the area in which it is operating, they added:

"Any program for the reconstruction of American agriculture must take into account the conservation of human values as well as of soil and other natural resources. It must also be adaptable to the peculiar regional needs of different parts of the country."

Special Session Signs.

Coincident with these developments was word from Hyde Park, N. Y., that indications are stronger daily the President will call a special session of Congress to enact agricultural stabilization legislation. A major essential of such a program would be provision for control of crops.

Here, Commodity Credit Corporation officials announced first loans on this year's cotton production may be made within ten days and AAA officials disclosed that no subsidies will be paid on this year's crop for about a year, or until next year's crop is harvested.

This delay has been decided upon, they said, because the payments are conditioned on compliance with the 1938 control program which Congress has pledged itself to consider upon its return here.

At the same time, the AAA said the subsidy payments will apply to only 65 per cent of the grower's base output, a production average which represents his "normal" yield. Previously, AAA attorneys had ruled that the Congressional resolution ordering subsidies had made it mandatory that they apply to all of this year's production.

$130,000,000 Available.

If subsidy payments on 65 per cent of the base acreage do not exhaust the $130,000,000 available for such benefits, then, it was said, such payments will be made on a larger percentage of the acreage.

The WPA report also offered, on the basis of extensive study of low-income farm groups, advice to another Federal agency, the Resettlement Administration, on a program now in process of formulation, that on farm tenancy.

The three essentials of a land ownership program such as that on which RA is now embarking are, the report said: "Making available to the tenant small, family-sized tracts of good land . . . ; providing long-term credit on easy terms . . . ; supervision in the nature of adult education, which will not only give the farmer the benefit of improved agricultural practices but will train him in the habits necessary for successful management of his own enterprise."

Farms Need Children.

The report said on the score of migration:

"It must be recognized that the farm's most important crop is its children, and that the farm homes are rearing people for the cities. There is also a tendency for natural increase to be greatest in those areas least capable of supporting increased population.

"It is from these blighted areas that people move to cities most rapidly in times of industrial expansion and to which they return in times of industrial deflation, and it is in these areas that large numbers of youths mature without substantial opportunity. It is apparent, therefore, that guided migration is a basic need in rural reconstruction.

"Such guidance must take the form of an intensive search for areas of opportunity wherever they exist or can be created. The advice of the agricultural expert should be substituted for that of the speculator in worthless and semiworthless farm lands."

The report then quoted from a University of Pennsylvania study gave "minimum exodus" desirable figures for specific regions. This study said that estimates of the need for migration from the "old Cotton Belt" range "from 1,500,000 to 6,000,000 or 7,000,000," that 350,000 should leave the coal plateau of the southern Appalachians, and 250,000 to nearly 750,000 should quit the Great Plains region, the latter being the figure for "the ideal economy."

"It is, of course, not advisable for a democratic government to go into the wholesale movement of people," the WPA report continued.

"On the other hand, when a farmer wishes voluntarily to leave an area in which he cannot support himself, the minimum service he should have is advice and counsel as to where better locations are to be found, education in the type of farming best suited to his new location, and possibly loans which will enable him to make the desired move."

Chinese Christian Church Pastor Fears for Teacher in Shanghai

DR. AND MRS. C. C. HUNG.

New 'School Marm,' Long Overdue in Capital, May Be War Victim; Tiny Interdenominational Group Unique in America.

Members of Washington's Chinese Community Church, which is believed to be the only congregation of its kind in the country, wondered yesterday whether harm in Shanghai has befallen the "school marm" who is due here soon to inaugurate a new children's class.

The Rev. C. C. Hung, pastor of the little fold of Christian Chinese which worships each Sunday in Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church South, said he has not heard from Miss King-he Chue since she wrote that she was prepared to sail from Shanghai about August 1.

Had she followed that schedule, she should have arrived long since at San Francisco, Dr. Hung said. The new instructor, who was engaged to teach Chinese to American-born children of immigrants living here, is a graduate of Lingnan University at Canton, and formerly was dean of women of the Hoyshan Girls Normal School.

Funds Drive for Church.

Hoping that Miss Chue has not been wounded in the Shanghai bombardments, Pastor Hung and his American-born wife, a leader in community church activities, yesterday turned their attention to the coming campaign for funds to purchase a headquarters for the unique nominational congregation, he said, tablished here in September, 1935.

New York, San Francisco and other large American cities have Chinese Christian churches, but only in Washington is there an interdenominational congregation, he said. Only a small percentage of the more than 800 Chinese in the Capital are Christians, which accounts for the group's small membership—about 25. Sunday school classes are attended, however, by 140 men, women and children.

Latest achievement of the little unit, whose board of managers includes the names of prominent churchmen, civic leaders and Chinese businessmen, is a one-page, mimeographed monthly newspaper.

Edited by Dr. T. G. Ho, the latest issue contains items as the return to China of George Ng Lee, a star student in the Sunday school; notification of a boat excursion to Marshall Hall on Labor Day; enrollment in Dr. Hung's English class has increased from 12 to 20, and the announcement of the pastor's leading the prayer meeting at First National Baptist Church last Thursday.

Pastor Widely Educated.

Dr. Hung, a young Cantonese whose grandfather was dean of a theological seminary, came here from Detroit in 1935 to organize the Chinese Community Church. He received his training in Canton, at the University of Hawaii, San Diego State College, Columbia University and Union Theological Seminary.

He met his bride-to-be while she was a student at the University of California, where she was working for her master's degree. (He received his master's at Columbia.) They have two sons, Wei Ling, 5, and Wei Ken, 20 months.

For his small but enthusiastic flock, Dr. Hung plans and conducts, with the aid of other Chinese and American leaders, classes in the Bible and languages, as well as religious worship. The latter, incidentally, is carried on in Chinese while English is spoken in Sunday school.

Social activities are plentiful, with picnics, parties and banquets being held throughout the year. The pastor and his wife also serve as advisors to Chinese, regardless of religion—perplexed old men, perhaps, who need an interpreter; students who are lonesome in the Capital; mothers seeking aid of one kind or another for their children.

Author Sued as Thief Of Chinese Wife's Love

Los Angeles, Aug. 31 (AP).—Dr. William Hoffman, author and psychologist, was made defendant today in a $110,000 alienation of affections suit by Edward L. Park, Chinese court interpreter.

406 Lose Fortune Claims.

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—Surrogate James A. Foley tonight disallowed claims of 406 out of more than 500 persons to shares in the $877,500 fortune left by the late Mrs. Ida Wood, widow of Benjamin Wood, publisher of the old New York News, and sister-in-law of Fernando Wood, one-time Mayor of New York.

Fiscal Outlook Of U. S. Better, Cannon Claims

Missouri Democrat Insists Congress Cut Budget Estimates.

Insisting that the Nation's fiscal outlook for the future "has greatly improved," Representative Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, acting chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, yesterday claimed Congress actually cut expenditures under budget estimates by a net of $122,347,466.

It was the third episode in the Capitol's annual battle of spending estimates. Chairman Carter Glass, of the Senate Appropriations Committee, had computed the session's outlays at nearly $9,400,000,000. Representative John Taber, of New York, ranking Republican member of the House committee, had raised his ante to $10,252,000,000.

Cannon Cites Trimming.

Yesterdan Cannon, using a different method of calculation, placed total appropriations at the last session of Congress at $9,355,595,892. He said only $8,376,122,164 was appropriated for use in the present fiscal year, or $316,141,771 less than the amount reported for the last fiscal year.

By deducting appropriations payable from trust fund receipts and $755,000,000 of postal appropriations payable from postal revenues, Cannon brought his total figure for the session down still further to $8,427,605,854. Of this, he said a rock bottom of $7,448,648,922 was allocated to the present fiscal year.

Although the Budget Bureau had estimated $9,588,461,208 and submitted items totaling this amount, Cannon said Congress trimmed them to $9,355,595,892. He said only one appropriation bill exceeded the total requested by the Budget Bureau.

Cannon reiterated his "hope" that the budget for the fiscal year 1938 can be brought into balance, except for debt retirement, and that the budget for the 1939 fiscal year "not only should be in balance but that balance should include a substantial amount for public debt retirement."

Puts Debt at $37,000,000,000.

"The passage of the revenue act to plug loopholes in our tax structure and prevent the evasion of the payment of just taxation," said Cannon, "will add to our revenues and the economy methods instituted by the President whereby each of the Government agencies is compelled to set up a reserve of not less than 10 per cent in such funds as are susceptible of administrative control should produce a favorable impression upon the relationship of our revenues and expenditures for the current year."

The Missourian estimated that the $1,500,000,000 appropriated for work relief was 20 per cent of all appropriations made last session. He said "such a proportion, in my opinion, is higher than the Federal Government should be called upon to bear in the future."

Cannon estimated the public debt at the present time at $37,000,000,000. "While the debt is large," he said, "the price paid for the salvation of the happiness and prosperity of 130,000,000 people and a great Nation has been relatively small in comparison to our national wealth."

Wife Left in Trailer Seeks Mate Gone in Car

Boston, Aug. 31 (AP).—A Georgia automobile and its trailer parted company last Wednesday, Mrs. Sudie Hahn told State police today, and that's the last she saw of her husband, Paul, 250-pound 6-foot-6-inch giant. She was left in the trailer, she reported.

Mrs. Hahn asserted she and her husband, a hay and grain salesman, journeyed to all the horse race tracks in the country, and stopped some time ago near Suffolk Downs. The husband unhooked the trailer, got into his automobile, and vanished, she stated.

Ellender Deplores Farmers' Failure To Live Off Land

By the Associated Press.

A can-opener should have no place in a farm wife's kitchen, according to Senator Ellender (Democrat), Louisiana, who anounced a movement yesterday to bring back the days when agrarians actually lived off their land.

Declaring specialization in one or two crops has produced "absurd situations," he continued:

"You will often find a farm owner or tenant who puts 35 acres of a 40-acre place into cotton, the rest into corn for his hogs, and then goes into debt for canned goods which he should raise at home."

He announced he would introduce legislation defying Federal aid to farmers who fail "to live off their land as far as possible."

C. & O. May Get Erie and Nickel Plate Control

Direct Operation of Two Roads Is Recommended to I. C. C.

By the Associated Press.

Examiner R. R. Molster recommended to the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday that it permit the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway to take direct control of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis (Nickel Plate) Railroad and the Erie Railroad.

The control would be effected through purchase of capital stock from two subsidiary holding companies. The C. & O. already has indirect control through its ownership of the holding companies.

Must Abide by Rulings.

Examiner Molster stipulated that the C. & O. agree to abide by decisions of the commission as to disposition of short lines assigned to the C. & O.-Nickel Plate system in the commission's consolidation plan.

The Alleghany Corporation, which controls the C. & O. through the Chesapeake Corporation, is one of the principal investment holding companies in the former Van Sweringen rail empire now controlled by a New York trio of financiers headed by Robert R. Young. This group's effort to merge Alleghany Corporation with Chesapeake Corporation was halted recently by a Baltimore circuit court on the plea of two institutions owning Chesapeake Corporation stock.

Two-Point Inquiry.

Recently, the Intersate Commerce Commission ordered a far-reaching investigation to determine its jurisdiction over the former Van Sweringen empire.

The commission said its order was designed to establish two points—its jurisdiction over the two railroad holding companies, and whether the proposed consolidation would be compatible with sections of the interstate commerce act dealing with railroad mergers.

Port Officials Get Girls' Goat After Trip From Cuba

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—The Government got the Pittsburgh Gould girls' goat today and they wept.

Henrietta and Margaret Gould, 16 and 17-year-old daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Erl C. B. Gould, of Pittsburgh, led their new $2 pet, a fox terrier sized animal named Cuba, off the Grace liner Santa Lucia to the pier but he was promptly taken back aboard. Such fauna sometimes carry hoof and mouth disease.

Line officials prepared to take Cuba back to Cuba after Gould was advised Cuba's entry would have to be approved by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Starnes Urges U. S. to Deport Alien Criminals

Alabama Representative Also Advocates Seizing Wealth in War.

By the Associated Press.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Representative Joe Starnes, of Alabama, urged deportation of all alien criminals in a speech to the National Convention of Veterans of Foreign Wars today.

"Alien criminals who are roving at large and preying upon American citizens should be deported," he declared.

Starnes also told the veterans he favored conscription of capital and labor as well as man power to serve the Nation in war-time emergency.

New York State Attorney General John J. Bennett, another speaker, advocated preparedness, declaring: "In America we desire no more wars."

"The fellow who is prepared to fight is never invited into a scrap," he said.

He suggested a "united American war veteran" organizatoin for better unity among veterans' groups.

Mayor Fiorella H. LaGuardia of New York told the veterans that the world can understand it when "men who have fought—gone through the hell of actual conflict," talk about war.

"Talks of peace by theorists are interesting," LaGuardia said, but when men who have fought . . . talk about war, that's the thing the whole world understands."

Gen. Smedley D. Butler, former marine, in a brief greeting to the delegates, advised them to "stay young because we've got plenty to do to save this Nation."

He also told the delegates he hoped they would "pass a resolution to have the fellows in Washington tell us where they stand on veterans."

Rebels Smash Furious Attack on Aragon Front; Prepare for March to Sea

Franco Speeds 20,000 Fresh Troops to Area

Crack Italian Divisions Among Reinforcements, Diplomat Says.

By the United Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 31.—Gen. Francisco Franco's northern army has smashed the Loyalists' furious offensive on the Aragon front and will open a drive from Teruel to the sea tomorrow with 20,000 fresh troops, frontier dispatches said tonight.

An Argentine diplomat, returning from the Spanish side of the border where he talked with insurgent leaders, said the 20,000 reinforcements include several columns of Italian "black arrows" and "black flames."

The nationalists, centering their operations around Saragoza, struck north and south today in counter-attacks that "completely demoralized" the enemy's threatened encirclement, it was reported.

Violent Bombardments.

The nationalist attack, begun after one of the most violent aerial and artillery bombardments of the war, was concentrated around Belchite on the south and Zuera on the north.

Loyalist troops completely surrounded Belchite, subjecting it to murderous fire, and Franco's first objective was to relieve the besieged garrison and open the Saragoza - Villanueva - Huerva - Belchite highway, which is the lifeline of his Teruel salient.

Nationalist communiques said resistance was stiff over the entire Aragon front, but said insurgent bombing planes pounded enemy positions so relentlessly the loyalists retreated.

In the Zuera sector the nationalists took several important heights over cover of a tank attack.

Only 4 Miles From Asturias.

[In northwest Spain, where the insurgent capture of Santander last week shattered government opposition, Franco's troops had advanced within 4 miles of the border of Asturias Province, last government-held province in the northwest, the Associated Press reported. Government troops were retreating without offering battle.

The Loyalist port of San Vicente de la Barquera, in Santander province, was captured, paving the way for the Fascist drive on Gijon.

[In far southern Spain there was a new government offensive west of Almeria, and loyalists in surprise attacks captured several strategic mountain positions in the Sierra Nevada range. Insurgents launched several strong counter-attacks, but were driven back.—Editor's note.]

Duce's Wire Stirs France.

Paris, Aug. 31 (AP).—The French foreign ministry was reported today indignant over the recent "fraternity of arms" telegrams exchanged by Premier Mussolini, of Italy, and Spanish Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Quarters close to the Quay d'Orsay said the foreign office regarded Il Duce's compliments to Franco and to Italian troops on the northern Spanish front for the capture of Santander as Rome's definite rejection of non-intervention policies.

Afterward, stage classics will alternate with post-revolutionary works by Soviet playwrights.

Shakespeare will be represented with "Much Ado About Nothing," Tolstoi with "Anna Karenina" and Pushkin, the great Russian poet whose death 100 years ago was celebrated recently, with "Boris Godunoff."

The bus rolled over after the collision, throwing its 40 occupants in a jumbled heap. A motorist with a small extinguisher quenched a fire.

Coroner Karl Vetter said he would hold an inquest Thursday.

Coroner Vetter said he had "established definitely" Bishopric failed to stop at the intersection.

Milk Prices to Rise Today in Richmond

Richmond, Va., Aug. 31 (AP).—Retail and wholesale milk prices will advance 1 cent in pints and quarts in the Richmond market tomorrow, Administrator W. L. Kirby announced today, because of the increase in production and distribution costs.

Crusading Paper Bombed in Ohio; 2 Buildings Burn

Belle Center, Ohio, Aug. 31 (AP).—The State fire marshal's office began tonight an investigation of the bombing of a newspaper plant which prints a crusading weekly.

Sheriff Charles Bewley said he found in the wreckage six flashlight batteries, wired together and apparently used to set off a charge of high explosives.

J. E. Manahan, owner of the plant, said he was convinced the explosion was the work of bombers. The explosion started a fire which, besides wrecking the building, damaged two neighboring buildings housing a law office and grocery store.

Andy Bold, a reporter, who was in the building, asserted he heard an automobile stop outside the two-story building and a noise as if a window had been broken. Then, he said, he heard a man remark, "Well, that will do the job," and as the car moved away the explosion came.

Mercury Rises to 90; No Change Forecast

Washington's cool weather capitulated yesterday to the sun which drove away the mist and sent the mercury soaring to 90 at 3 p. m. from an early morning low of 72.

The Weather Bureau forecast for today was "partly cloudy and little change in temperature."

Steady rains for a week brought the month's rainfall to 6.70 inches. Normal August rainfall is 4.01.

Bingham and Hull Discuss Far East

By the Associated Press.

Robert W. Bingham, United States Ambassador to London conferred with Secretary Hull for an hour yesterday on the "general situation" in world affairs.

Bingham told newsmen he would have luncheon with President Roosevelt at Hyde Park today and return for a second conference with Hull in about two weeks.

The Ambassador said the "whole scope" of the situation in Europe and to some extent the Far East was discussed in a general way at yesterday's conference.

Bingham reiterated he does not intend to retire from the London post.

Mother a Werewolf, HerKiller Explains

Chicago, Aug. 31 (AP).—A 60-year-old woman was found hacked to death today and her son was seized as the slayer a few hours later.

"I killed my mother with an ax because she was a werewolf," Policeman Joseph Jarobie said Richard Stefnak, 30, told him.

Then I went back to the car. I felt so shaky I couldn't get the key in the ignition lock. I sat there for half an hour. Then I drove away."

He said he drove all night, parking finally at the Detroit approach to the Ambassador Bridge and walking across to Windsor. He said he walked the streets there for several hours, then decided to return to Detroit and surrender.

Child's Killer Was 'Crazed,' He Tells Police

Father of 4 Who Clubbed Girl, 10, Blames Wild Impulse.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, August 31.—"Muttering "I must have been crazy, Josepn Jacobs, 45, today told how he clubbed to death the 10-year-old daughter of a former neighbor who considered him a friend.

Jacobs, who has four children of his own, led police to the city's outskirts where weeds hid the body of Evelyn Mack, his victim. The child's skull was crushed.

Assistant Prosecutor John A. Ricca said Jacobs confessed he struck her three times with an automobile crank. Deputy Coroner Frank Stawke said the child had not been assaulted.

Blames Sudden Impulse.

Jacobs blamed the crime on a sudden impulse he could not explain.

Vernon R. Mack, father of the slain child, urged police to get from Jacobs the "true story" of the killing.

Mrs. Mack, seriously ill, and Mrs. Jacobs consoled each other. They have been warm friends for several years.

Jacobs said he asked Evelyn to go with him to the country to buy eggs and look for trees which could be transplanted to the Macks' summer cottage. He said he saw some trees but was unable to uproot them by hand, returned to the automobile and got the crank. Evelyn, he said, sat down on the grass.

"I don't know why I did it, but I hit her with the crank," the confession stated. "I hit her three times, of the scattered Japanese forces.

Ship Ban Traps Americans in Cholera's Path

Navy Order Leaves 2,000 Women, Children Unable to Flee Shanghai.

In the north, Japanese authorities today proclaimed that all United States citizens and Europeans in Tientsin must observe Japanese military rule.

Americans and other foreigners who are subject to extraterritoriality rights in China will be accorded trial and punishment by their own national courts.

The Domei (Japanese) News Agency reported the government of Manchukuo, Japan's puppet state, had ferreted out a secret Sino-Russian military pact under which Soviet arms and munitions are being supplied to China. In return, said Domei, the Chinese government has renounced all claims to outer Mongolia.

Admiral Harry Yarnell, commander in chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, and Consul General Gauss barred American ships because of the danger from bombs and shells. It advised vessels flying the American flag—whether passenger liners or freighters—to suspend calling at Shanghai indefinitely.

The President Grant failed to call today. The President Coolidge and President Van Buren, due here September 7, were to go to Hongkong. Marooned were 500 American women and children who had planned to leave on the liners. The American colony remained at a total of 2,000 men, women and children.

Italian Ship Bombed.

The authorities had no plans for future exacuations because they lacked suitable vessels.

Coincident with the American action, an unidentified bomber attacked, but did not damage, the Italian-operated Steamer Lung Shan near Woosung north of Shanghai. The liner was thronged with Chinese refugees.

The bomb-scarred President Hoover was en route to Kobe, Japan. On board, William Collins, clerk of the United States court in China, investigated the death of Norman C. Harris, a director of the British American Tobacco Co. and an American resident of Shanghai.

Affidavits of passe gers indicated that Harris, who came here in 1905 from Rochester, N. Y., leaped overboard Monday shortly before the President Hoover was bombed. Friends blamed financial reverses caused by the Sino-Japanese hostilities.

Action in the undeclared war ranged in the Shanghai area from Chinese portions of the city to Woosung, and 12,000 civilians were driven out of the Hongkew and Yangtzepoo sections by the Japanese in advance of a heralded "big push" against Shanghai s defenders.

100 Japanese Slain.

Chinese military headquarters announced former Manchurian regiments of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang had staged a violent counter-offensive near Lotien, 15 miles northwest of Shanghai, where 100 Japanese soldiers were killed and hundreds wounded, the United Press reported.

Japanese authorities announced Woosung Village, 12 miles north of here along the left bank of the Whangpoo River near where it joins the Yangtze, had been captured from the Chinese after a terrific barrage by land and naval artillery and planes.

A Japanese force bombed Shanghai's North Railway Station, causing a number of casualties. Some of the missiles fell in the International Settlement.

Fresh fires blazed near the settlement following Japanese bombardments of Shapei, Chinese sector north of Soochow Creek, and adjacent areas. It was believed many Chinese were killed and wounded.

A Japanese navy spokesman announced the International Settlement area north of the creek, including Hongkew, Yangtzepoo and wayside district, will remain under Japanese occupation.

Chinese civilians were driven out of the Hongkew and Yangtzepoo districts after the Japanese issued a warning they must be out before nightfall, the first time such notice to withdraw has been given the population of any district.

The menace of epidemic to Shanghai was traced partly to the over taxing of facilities for removing the bodies of civilian victims killed in Hongkew durng air raids, artillery bombardments and machine-gunning.

Sanitary officers of the International Settlement, working feverishly to protect the foreign population of this city, said they were hampered in their work because Japanese military forces insisted on closing certain areas.

In North China, a Japanese army estimated at nearly 100,000 men was prepared for an offensive against the Chinese national defense line along the Yellow River.

Because gas bombs are no respecter of sex, Japanese girls, both geisha and school, are being taught the proper use of gas masks. Mass drills are frequently held and in picture above a group of school girls are shown parading through the streets of Tokyo to make the Nation conscious of the perils of air attacks.

instructed to inform the Chinese government, as the State Department in a communique explained last night, that "the President Hoover was anchored in the open sea 17 miles from the Chinese mainland; that at the time of the bombing attack the President Hoover was engaged in the wholly humanitarian pursuit of removing refugees from the dangers which have existed and continue to exist in Shanghai, and that the American Government considers the bombing of the President Hoover a flagrant example of wholly unlawful and unjustifiable bombing of non-combatants."

Flier to Be Punished.

As a result of these outspoken sharp words, the Chinese vice minister for foreign affairs called on Ambassador Johnson and expressed "keen regret and desire to make immediate redress for the incident." He added, according to the State Department, that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek was very much concerned in regard to the matter and had stated that the Chinese aviator concerned would be punished."

Cables were rushed to the Chinese Ambassador here, directing him to make a formal apology. This Dr. Wang did yesterday, explaining that the Chinese involved had mistaken the American ship for a Japanese transport because Japanese naval vessels were in the neighborhood. He also, as Secretary Hull explained at his press conference, expressed the deepest regret, deplored and apologized in definite language.

Asked if this Government were satisfied, Secretary Hull at his press conference paused a moment and then asserted he was engaged in telling what has happened so far. Later in the day the elaborate recital of what has transpired between the two governments was given out by the State Department.

May Send Cruiser Division.

Meanwhile, naval authorities here were considering dispatching cruiser division No. 6 of the Scouting force, now on the Pacific Coast, to Chinese waters. The division includes four 10,000 tor cruisers. No decision had been made as to whether the vessels will be sent, it was reported. At all events, naval authorities, as well as State Department attaches, declined to discuss the reports.

If this Government dispatches additional naval vessels to Chinese waters it will not be for punitive purposes but to re-enforce the facilities already there for evacuating American refugees. As a result of the bomb attack on the President Hoover, the Dollar Line for the present has omitted Shanghai as a port of call.

This was not done because of any orders issued by authorities in Shanghai or here. Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander of the American Asiatic fleet and in charge of this country's interests at Shanghai, consented to the desire of the Dollar Line to give Shanghai a wide berth —an action inspired by the danger to its ships and rapidly increasing insurance rates. Rerouting of the Dollar liners, however, has created a problem for those Americans in Shanghai wishing to leave.

Navy Can Handle All.

Between 200 and 300 now wish to leave that war-razed city. Some may go to Kobe, Japan, aboard Japanese ships and join up there with a Dollar Liner, cables from Shanghai reported. Officials here, however, stated that the American Navy was able to remove all Americans wishing to leave. Indeed, it was said American naval vessels could in the event of an emergency remove 3,000 civilians from Shanghai on reasonably short notice, but not with comfort. There are only about 2,000 American civilians in Shanghai, according to records here.

Meanwhile five peace organizations—World Peaceways, National Council for Prevention of War, Emergency Peace Campaign, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and the Fellowship of Reconciliation—set up a strategy committee to campaign to keep this country neutral. The group adopted as their immediate slogan, "Stop the Bellancas," in an apparent reference to the American steamer Wichita, en route from Baltimore to China with 19 Bellanca planes.

Spokesmen for the seamen's union, claiming a "war zone" bonus for the Wichita crew, claim the planes are bombers. But in the license permitting their export they are described as commercial planes and it is doubtful whether customs authorities would have released them were they equipped with bomb racks or had facilities for mounting machine guns. The planes are supposed to be former mail planes.

Seek Arms Embargo.

The aim of the five peace organizations is to bring about invocation of the American neutrality act, which automatically would embargo munitions and arms exports to China and would make make it unlawful for any American vessel to carry the proscribed articles. On the two previous occasions when the neutrality act was invoked no distinction was made between commeercial and military airplanes.

The new strategy committee of the peace organizations in a press release propounded these three questions:

"What does the State Department plan to do when the Wichita, carrying Bellanca planes, is stopped, as British ships have been stopped by the Japanese blockade—resist, which means getting into the war, or acquiesce under pressure, which means humiliation?

"Now that a blockade has been declared, on what grounds does the State Department justify a policy which looks toward one of two alternatives—war or the application of neutrality under pressure instead of as an independent peace policy?

"What does the State Department foresee as a result of the invocation of the Nine-Power Treaty? Economic and military sanctions? If not sanctions, what?"

BLENDED WHISKEY

One of the Circus clowns Jollying us at the Fair Grounds

Over at Wallace Brothers circus, one of the clowns, finding out we were The Wilken Family, grabbed ahold of my hand, and says The Wallace Brothers also are a family, and their job is just to please folks. So he says that's two families he knows that are pleasing folks a whole lot!

Harry E. Wilken

Everybody seems so Pleased!

I mean at how we're putting out our Own Family's Recipe for everyone to enjoy!

To please people is the one idea us Wilkens have got in putting out this personal Family's Recipe of ours for everybody to enjoy. And I just want to say that all kinds of folks we meet up with—I don't care who they are—they all act just as tickled as can be at getting the exact same whiskey as us distillers enjoy amongst ourselves.

Of course everybody knows there's cheaper whiskies, and other whiskies that cost you pretty dear—but considering the extra mildness and tastiness of our personal Family's Whiskey, folks appear to think The Wilken Family Whiskey is just about the smartest thing to buy—irregardless of price. Well, our Family's been making whiskey for 50 whole years—and then some. By rights it should be good. And it sure is good—as you'll say yourself!

Site Prevents Airport Safety, Hardin Asserts

Pilots Association Official Says Nothing Prevent Plane Hazards.

Washington Airport always will be hazardous because of its location, Vice President Tom Hardin, of the Air Line Pilots Association, declared yesterday following a conference with air transport operators and officials of the Bureau of Air Commerce.

"No matter what is done to Washington Airport" he said, "it will never be entirely safe."

Pointing out that the present air terminal really has only one runway, Hardin declared that it would be "ridiculous" to spend a great deal of money to improve the airport.

"What the pilots want is a new field onw hich to land," he explained. "We can no longer assume the responsibility for bringing planes into the terminal. We have no intention of preventing air traffic from coming to Washington, but the airport cannot be used."

Bolling Field Satisfactory.

The use of the Army's Bolling Field at Anacostia would be a satisfactory solution to the problem for the time being, he said. "There are six runways at Bolling Field," Hardin added, "all but one of which are more than a mile in length."

Indicating that the airline pilots desired to co-operate with transport officials and Commerce Department authorities in securing an amicable solution to the question, Hardin pointed out that his organization has constantly declared needs an airport capable of accommodating the new airliners which are becoming too large to land at Washington Airport.

Fred D. Fagg, jr., director of the Bureau of Air Commerce, declared that no conclusions had been reached at the meeting.

During the three-hour conference, Fagg said, many problems were discussed which had received no previous consideration. "Among other things," he continued, "we suggested to the operators and to the officials of the Airline Pilots Association that more concrete proposals for the solution of the airport problem here be passented for consideration of the Bureau of Commerce."

Samul J. Solomon, manager of Washington Airport, indicated that positive results might be forthcoming from the conference.

Bartenders Union Linked to Capone

Miami Beach, Fla., Aug. 31 (AP).—A group of union bartenders announced today they were forming a local separate from the Miami union, and the Daily News ascribed the action to domination of the organization by associates of Al Capone.

At a recent union election Al Berlin, of Chicago, was made secretary-treasurer, and a brother-in-law of Capone, Dan Coughlin, became business agent. The Chicago gangster, now imprisoned at Alcatraz Island, maintains a home here.

Gainesville, Fla., Aug. 31 (AP).—Federal Judge A. V. Long today denied a request of Mrs. Al Capone for a temporary injunction restraining J. Edwin Larson, collector of internal revenue, from selling the Capone home in Miami Beach for delinquent income taxes.

Killer of 3 Girls Sentenced to Die

Los Angeles, Aug. 31 (AP).—Albert Dyer was sentenced today to die as the convicted strangler and ravisher of three little Inglewood girls.

The court denied a new trial motion for the one-time WPA crossing watchman who was convicted last Tuesday. Under California law, the case automatically goes to the State Supreme Court.

5 Centuries of Tribal History Told in Greatest Indian Pageant

Crow, Sioux, Cheyenne and Others Depict Heydey of Redmen From Time Before Columbus to Reservation Era.

By the Associated Press.

Crow Agency, Mont., Aug. 31.—Northwest Indians spanned five centuries of tribal history—from dog-drawn travois to high-powered automobiles—in pageantry at the Crow Indian fair today.

The Crows, the Sioux, the Cheyennes, the Nez Perce and others, forming a line 2 miles long, marched past a reviewing stand as a feature of the celebration.

Watching were white tourists and Indians of a new generation to whom many old customs are unfamiliar.

Crow Agency officials estimated 5,000 Indians participated. They described the fair as the largest peace-time gathering of Northwest tribesmen ever held.

In the parade and pageant the Cheyennes—fierce warriors of the Missouri Valley when steel gangs were laying rails westward—portrayed the redman's history in the days before Columbus reached America.

Family groups moved across the scene with men and women carrying their few effects, and babies pulled along in the dog-drawn travois.

The horse era, which came after the conquest of Mexico by the Spaniards, followed. Old Indians in bright costumes rode, singing the war chants handed down by their forefathers.

The next era showed the transition from the Buffalo hunting, scalping party days to the reservation life ordained by the Great White Father at Washington.

Last in the pageant came the aged Indian scouts who fought against Gen. Custer almost within sight of the present agency.

After the parade, the Indians and honored guests feasted on barbecued bison and elk. Ten bison and 40 elk were roasted—many of the carcasses whole—over an open fire.

The fair assumed an international aspect with the arrival today of Blackfeet Indians from Canada, in centuries past traditional enemies of the Crows.

The Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president of Georgetown University, who is convalescing from an illness in Cohassett, Mass., will not be present this month when the new academic year opens.

The Georgetown president, stricken last May and confined until a few weeks ago to Georgetown Hospital, will not return until later in the fall, university officials disclosed. It will be the first opening he will miss in his 25 years' association with the institution.

During convalescence, however, he has kept in touch with Georgetown affairs through Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president and regent of the School of Foreign Service.

Fish Story Ineffective So Fisherman Is Held

Key West, Fla., Aug. 31 (AP).—George Adams' story about crawfish—that they shrink after they're caught—didn't get him very far in County Court today.

Judge Raymond Lord listened to his explanation and then held him for trial under $50 bond on charges of possessing seven crawfish weighing less than the legal one-pound minimum.

Less than a mont hago Billy was rushed to another oxygen tent after giving up his own in an unsuccessful attempt to save the life of Billy Hackler, 13, also stricken with infantile paralysis.

HERE'S HOW YOU WIN $100,000.00 IN THIS NEW, EASY CONTEST

–Read Explanation Below–

YOU SUPPLY THE REPLY FOR THE EMPTY BALLOON

HERE is what you do to win in this contest. Just study the conversation in the cartoon, and then YOU SUPPLY THE REPLY FOR THE EMPTY BALLOON.

For instance, in the SAMPLE cartoon above, Mary is being asked for advice.

Mary's reply might be:

"Old Golds. They hold their ash better. Nobody'll burn your tablecloth."

Or, Mary might say:

"Old Golds! Smokers seldom drop ashes when they smoke Old Golds."

Mary might say:

"Get Old Golds. They're always fresh. They'll please everybody."

There are so many things that Mary could reply that it seems almost needless to give any more examples. For instance, Mary might very well make any of the following three replies:

"My choice is Old Golds. They're always fresh, always Double-Mellow."

"Get Old Golds. Their double Cellophane package keeps them wonderfully fresh."

"Either buy several brands or get Old Golds. Old Golds please everybody."

There is nothing hard about this contest. Almost anybody can think of dozens of things that Mary would reply. And it's the same with all of the Official Cartoons in this contest. Just study the picture and the conversation and supply your own, original reply for the blank balloon. That's all there is to it.

Under each of the Official Cartoons you will find suggestions to help you write the missing conversation for the empty balloon.

Court Decision Challenged by NLRB Ruling

Closed Shop Controversy Finds Firm Unable to Abide by Orders.

and expressly provides that 'this power shall be exclusive.'"

The board said that jurisdiction in the circuit court of appeals to review the board's orders was likewise made "exclusive."

Associated Press dispatches from Pittsburgh, Pa., quoted Ernest De Maio, general organizer of the C. I. O. union, as saying the court had "usurped the function and jurisdiction of the Labor Board" in upholding the A. F. of L. contract.

"Any attempts to discharge an employe for failure to join the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers will result in a suit against the company for wages and such additional relief as the law and the amount thereof would ac-

Coercion Is Charged.

In charging the company with labor act violation, the board said there was "unrefuted testimony that the brotherhood (A. F. of L.) was given its status in the plant by interference and coercion by the management." It charged that "the company knew that the brotherhood did not represent the free choice of a majority of its employes."

The board claimed there were numerous instances of company foremen urging employes to sign brotherhood application cards, "frequently threatening them with loss of their jobs if they failed to do so." It said on two occasions the plant's power was shut off, while employes were called together "to listen to speeches by officials urging membership in the brotherhood."

The contract was awarded the brotherhood on May 27, the company agreeing to recognize it as the sole bargaining agent, and to employ only members of the brotherhood, or those who arranged to become members after 21 days. Those who had not joined in that time were to have union dues deducted from their pay. This contract was upheld by the United States District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania.

Some idea of the company's present dilemma was indicated in the board's statement. "The Board's decision," said, the announcement, "raises the question whether the (Federal court) decree makes brotherhood membership obligatory or leaves open the apparent alternative that employes would have the amount of union dues deducted from their wages in the event they did not become members of the brotherhood.

Violation Unavoidable.

"However, the board's decision does not rest on any particular construction of the decree or the agreement, since it holds that any performance of the contract by the company on either alternative would be in violation of the National Labor Relations act."

Contending that "doubt remains as to the numerical strength of the two unions," the board directed that an election be held by secret ballot within 15 days to determine whether employes at the Ambridge plant wish to be represented by the A. F. of L. or the C. I. O. affiliate.

The company, which maintains business offices at Pittsburgh, produces some 30,000,000 feet of wire and cable monthly and 4,000 tons of steel products, a monthly gross sales of $900,000.

The Ambridge plant was center of labor trouble this spring, when the C. I. O. union called a strike on May 30. The strike lasted 21 days, when an agreement was reached. The board claims that during the strike "the company arranged with the Brotherhood for maintenance men to put the machinery in order for a proposed reopening on June 15." Fifty men attempted to enter the plant on that day, and the board said there was "considerable violence."

Alabama Hearing Opens.

Gadsden, Ala., Aug 31 (AP).—Testimony that the Etowah Rubber Workers Organization was formed at a meeting held on Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. property immediately after dissolution of a former employe representation plan was introduced today at a National Labor Relations Board hearing.

The United Rubber Workers of America charges the Etowah group is "company dominated."

Lack of dismissal dates delayed formal filing today of an amendment to the bill of complaint adding the names of seven men to the list of those the U. R. W. A. claims were discharged because of union activity.

Rex Norton, an employe representative under the plan in operation in the Goodyear plant here before the Wagner labor relations act was upheld by the United States Supreme Court, testified in detail to the Etowah body's organization.

Norton said the Etowah organization was suggested immediately after A. C. Michaels, general superintendent, announced the employe plan had been discarded.

Pert Queen Misses President But Leaves a Gift of Peaches

Lois Beal, 17-year-old school girl of Romeo, Mich., arrives with a basket of peaches for the White House. She will be queen of the peach festival in Romeo September 4-6.

Post Staff Photo.

Michigan Beauty, 17, Arrives by Air for First Visit to Capital; Dines With Representative Wolcott.

To Washington in a season come something like 50 queens—all selected by democratic balloting and all bringing gifts for the President.

Seventeen-year-old Lois Beal came yesterday with a basket of peaches from Romeo, Mich. The fact that the President was in Hyde Park did not prevent a cordial reception for the peaches at the White House, or mar Miss Beal's first visit to the Capital City.

Michigan probably does better by itself than any other State, when it comes to festival queens. Earlier this summer the cherry queen arrived, and one year there was a dog-rolling queen. It's an old Michigan custom.

The peaches Miss Beal brought were really peaches and plentiful, although down in Georgia nobody would have thought about offering one of them to the President. They were small, by any calculation. But Michigan is not so much interested in boosting its peach crop as agriculture in general—and the peach is as good an excuse as any.

Miss Beal can well be considered typical of all the queens who come to Washington. She is young, pretty and completely un-self-conscious. Next year she will be a senior in the Romeo High School.

She was accompanied by Mrs. Rosemary Ogden, editor of a Romeo paper, and she was entertained at dinner by Representative Jesse P. Wolcott, of Michigan. They traveled free over the Pennsylvania-Central Airlines.

Edward Sullivan, district traffic manager for the company, estimated that he has received 20 queens "out of the sky" during the last five years.

Japan Withholds Olympics Decision

Tokyo (Wednesday), Sept. 1. (U.P.). The government today decided to hold in abeyance its tentative decision to cancel the 1940 Olympic games which are scheduled to be held in this capital.

Following a conference between Count Michimasa Soejima, Olympic committee chairman, Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye and minister of Education Eiji Yasui, the government announced that it was willing to continue financial assistance to the committee pending a final decision on the question of holding the 1940 games here. Soejima stressed the fact that Japan already has spent millions of yen in preparation.

Bandit Flees Cafeteria With $1,192 as Loot his getaway in a taxicab, jamming an automatic in the back of the driver.

The driver, William P. Allen, 3640 West Virginia avenue northwest walked into the Third Precinct station an hour later to tell how the bandit, after getting out of the cab at Twenty-second and I streets northwest, marched him to Twenty-first street and Pennsylvania avenue and allowed him to go.

It was closing time in the S. & W. when the bandit entered. Behind the cash registered, near the G street entrance, Sam Candler, an employe, and two cashiers, Mrs. Norma Sparnell and Miss Rosalie Holland, were counting the days receipts.

They had just put the $1,192.50 in two money bags and one envelope.

The bandit, short, stocky, with blond curly hair, approached and spoke to Candler.

"Pardon me," he said, in precise English, "is the place closed for the night."

"Yes, it is," Mrs. Sparnell said.

He walked away as if to leave. Half way to the door, he turned and came back, an automatic pistol in his right hand.

"This is a stick-up," he said. "Don't move."

He spoke in a soft voice that couldn't be heard 15 feet away.

Miss Holland thought the quiet-voiced young man was jesting and she started to take away the bags containing the change and the envelope containing the currency.

"Don't move," the man said. "If you do, I'll kill you."

Miss Holland still wasn't convinced.

"Oh, you wouldn't kill a fellow, would you?" she bantered.

The bandit snatched up the money, backed toward the door, all the time pointing his automatic at the trio.

In leaving, he stuck the halves of a broomstick in the handles of two of the three doors, thus blocking pursuit through them.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Wilson, of Baltimore, who had just emerged from the cafeteria and whose car was parked outside, saw the man leave and get into a cab parked double in front of the G street side of Keith's Theater.

Wilson noticed the money bags under the bandit's arms and suspected a holdup.

As the cab started east on G street toward Fourteenth, Wilson and Mrs. Wilson jumped into their own car and started after it. The cab turned south on Fourteenth street, but just as Wilson reached that point a red light went on.

Wilson picked up Policeman Martin Nododney, who was directing traffic at the corner. He told him what had happened. Nododney blew his whistle to warn Policeman Homer Hartman, stationed at Fourteenth and F streets, hoping he would hold up traffic.

Hartman blew his whistle, but the fugitive cab kept going, making a right turn on F street and speeding toward Fifteenth street.

Wilson, with Policeman Nododney on the running board, followed, but at Fifteenth and F streets he was forced to stop by traffic, just as the cab turned south on Fifteenth street.

Meantime, Policeman Nododney jumped off and commandeered an automobile farther ahead and ordered the driver to pursued the cab. Another policeman, D. A. Conners, joined him. The cab eluded them somewhere south of the White House grounds.

Meantime, back at the cafeteria, the knowledge that there had been a holdup spread among the patrons, and most of them left the tables to learn the details.

Miss Holland, who earlier thought it all a joke, was the first to run out of the cafeteria to give the alarm.

The driver of the taxicab told his story to police at the Third Precinct station and then went home.

He said the bandit hailed him at Fourteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest at 6 p. m., asked him how much he charged by the hour, and, after giving him $2, instructed him to be at Fourteenth and G streets northwest at 8 o'clock.

The driver said he arrived at 7:55 p. m., met the man and, upon his instructions, drove to a point opposite the S & W Cafeteria and parked.

Equal Justice Under The Law.

Public support is fundamental to every successful effort toward highway safety. If an improved road system is needed, the public must pay for it. If less powerful automobiles are the solution, the public must demand them. If better driving holds the key, the public must submit to schooling. Finally—and there's no "if" about this—the whole-hearted co-operation of drivers as well as pedestrians is essential to obtain strict observance of safety regulations.

This observance would be considerably encouraged in Washington if the proposal to install a system of uniform traffic penalities were adopted. Nothing encourages violation of the highway code more than a driver's assumption that, if arrested, he can "fix" his case. Nothing is more discouraging to faithful traffic officers and more effective in bringing the law into contempt. Even more insidious is the justified belief that some can obtain special considerations in the courts while the average man cannot. Examples of this are indicated in the current reports that several Washington drivers, recently arrested on serious traffic charges, apparently have escaped with the most perfunctory penalties.

The need for uniform traffic justice—perhaps best administered by a single judge—is particularly evident in Washington. The city has many diplomats who enjoy special immunities and many officials and prominent citizens who assume that they do, too. While the diplomats rarely invoke their privileges, other residents who should know better have not been slow to exert their "influence," not only for themselves and families but for their friends as well.

The result is that law observance on Washington streets is seriously undermined. The overwhelming majority of citizens would welcome any reasonable means of ending this dangerous and intolerable condition.

Quaker Meeting.

Churches are fair targets in the Spanish Civil War. Ikons have been smashed in Russia. Niemoeller and other courageous preachers are under arrest in Germany. But there will be no interference of any kind with the deliberations of an important religious conference which gathers in the suburbs of Philadelphia today.

Most of the thousand members of the Society of Friends convening for this World Conference will be, as Eugene Pharo points out in an article on the page opposite, Americans representing the 110,000 Quakers in this country. But all the delegates, whether from Mexico or Madagascar, are inspired by the fundamental belief of George Fox that truth is a goal for personal, as contrasted with congregational, striving. This is not to suggest that the Friends today will live in a seventeenth century world. On the contrary, the very purpose of their conference is to re-interpret their ideals in the light of modern conditions.

This will bring them face to face with war—one of their principal abhorrences. They will not, however, rest with merely wringing their hands. Advance information of the report one of their five committees will present indicates that the Friends will not let their pacifism keep them from confronting the fundamental sources of today's unrest.

They will examine the philosophy of the totalitarian state, properly deploring it for its complete conscription of the individual and its absolute stifling of protest or discussion. Now the Quakers are nothing if not tolerant. They became famous for their forbearance in the face of Puritan persecution in England and this country as well. Thus when they are moved to describe the totalitarian state as an "appalling peril which faces humanity," it is a thought-provoking contrast with that sentimental pacifism which says "let anything happen so long as our present comfort is not immediately disturbed."

Much of the business of the conference will be of primarily denominational interest. But the delegates will discuss and elaborate their progressive attitude toward labor relations, social security, racial discrimination and economic co-operation. Finally, they will lay down a program for the broader propagation of their beliefs. Particularly in this endeavor all thinking people, envious of the rationalistic philosophy which has made a tiny sect so sturdy and so influential, will wish them well.

Pandora's Box.

The best that can be said for the new cotton loan and subsidy policy of the Administration is that it is not quite as bad as it threatened to be. But both in itself and in the encouragement it gives to other agricultural groups it carries the seed of infinite future trouble.

The Administration has successfully resisted the pressure it has been under to advance loans of 10 cents a pound on this year's cotton crop. With the present market price for the commodity only slightly over 9 cents a pound, the capitulation of the Government to the more extreme demands could, very easily, lead to a further diminution of our export market for cotton and a further encouragement to foreign growers to expand their production.

The loan policy announced by the Commodity Credit Corporation is more in line with economic realities, since the 9 cent provision fits in with the present world price. This action, therefore, may not materially affect the cotton export markets. But at the same time American growers are to be guaranteed by the Administration a minimum price of 12 cents a pound for at least 65 per cent of the present crop. It will be strange if foreign producers do not regard this double-price scheme as an official dumping policy, against which quota or embargo restrictions will seem entirely legitimate.

The presumption behind this action is that the emergency which not long ago confronted the cotton growers of the United States, together with other agricultural groups, is not yet over. Actually, because of the present bumper crop, the largest since 1931 and about 2,400,000 bales in excess of the average of the last 10 years, cotton farmers are likely to get some $200,000,000 more for their current output than they received in 1934.

If this justifies subsidies for cotton planters it is easy to prove that an emergency still exists in other crops. The clamor for loans and subsidies which met with such success in the case of cotton is therefore certain to arise before long in the case of various agricultural products. The appetite for special treatment at the taxpayers' expense grows with the eating.

What is particularly objectionable in the action of the Administration is the stipulation that cotton farmers, if they are to benefit from the 3-cent subsidy open to them, must agree in advance to legislation which Congress has yet to pass and regulations which the Department of Agriculture has yet to put into force.

The very fact that subsidies are to be granted makes it inevitable that some control over production will be attempted, otherwise the temptation on the part of the cotton planters to expand their acreage would be irresistible. But it is a flagrant abuse of the democratic process to hold out a special favor to a section of the population in return for a future legislative authorization which these beneficiaries are practically being bribed to support.

If At First—

Every seventh wave of the incoming tide is said to break higher on the shore. It took only three surges of the rising tide of German tennis to sweep away the world's best doubles team.

Von Cramm and Henkel deserve the sporting world's acclaim for their victory over Budge and Mako at Brookline. To begin with, they were playing after only a week's acquaintance with the unfamiliar Massachusetts turf and the light American ball. Second and more important, they were handicapped by the memory of two bitter defeats at the hands of their opponents—in the Davis Cup and British national tournaments.

Nonetheless, the German pair took the United States doubles championship in straight sets. Until midway in the third set, few believed they could. Twice before the blond young Teutons had won the first and second sets from the Americans, only to lose the match in the end. So when Budge and Mako stepped out to a three-love lead in the third set, having dropped the first two, the gallery nodded to itself that once again their drive to victory had begun.

But Budge's racquet failed him and Mako, too, slipped. Were they overconfident, stale, tired? Conceivably, but the logical interpretation is that the German team was just too good. They have shown, incidentally, how narrow the margin by which we regained the Davis Cup, and how hard it will be to keep it.

Heave Ho, My Dearies!

It may well be the last race of its kind in these waters. The "Seven Seas" and the "Joseph Conrad," now somewhere between Brenton Lightship and St. David's Head, Bermuda, are two of a fast dwindling number of full-rigged ships still afloat, or at least still sailing. There are others in this part of the world but almost all have been cut down to bare barges. Scandinavia is the last real refuge of the big beauties, whence they still sail in the lumber trade and the Australian grain race. But the foundering of the "Herzogin Cecilie" off the Devon coast last year took away the flagship of this ghost fleet.

The "Seven Seas" and the "Joseph Conrad" both came from Scandinavia. Both were launched as cadet training ships; both are now owned by wealthy American yachtsmen. And though they are sailed by professionals, apparently both ships have reacted against the effeteness of their present existences. At least, in the first part of their current race, both behaved badly.

The arrangement was for each to start from anchor with sails furled and crews below deck until the starting gun. This provided the shore watchers with a pretty and seldom seen spectacle, but it also almost served to ground the "Seven Seas" on a mudbank. Moreover, the breeze was so contrary that when at last all her canvas had been broken out, she was all but backed up the Hudson River notwithstanding an ebb tide urging her out to sea.

As for the "Conrad," she had somewhat better handling or luck, or both. But at that, it took her three-quarters of an hour to sail her first three-quarters of a mile. There'd have been an entire crew hanging from the rigging by their thumbs if the "Flying Cloud," for instance, had gone through such a performance. And no newspaper publicity, either.

Nationalized Railroads.

On the last day permissible under the decree powers granted Premier Chautemps two months ago the French government has nationalized that country's railroad system. At first glance it would seem that the successor to Leon Blum thereby shows desire to extend the broad socialization program of his predecessor. During the Blum regime munition plants and airplane factories were nationalized. Mr. Chautemps seems to follow the line mapped out by bringing the carriers under governmental control.

It is doubtful, however, that the French premier advised this step out of any strong conviction that it follows naturally from the public utility character of the railroads.

The appalling deficit which the lines have rolled up in recent years, amounting to some $250,000,000 for this year alone, has had more to do with the development than socialistic theory. As a state organization, railroad costs can be trimmed more readily than under private enterprise. And the grim economy effort forced upon the Chautemps government indicates that the railroads were taken over primarily to cut their budget.

Certainly the continuation of rising costs and uneconomic organization have made the French carriers a heavy liability to the nation. For some years they have been partially subsidized by the government under an anomalous system including both state-owned and private lines, with each line practically protected against competition by serving different sections of the country.

The compromise between private and public ownership has seemed to emphasize the worst features of both. The state has steadily met mounting deficits and there has been no incentive, or necessity, for each independent company to reorganize itself. Management has been stodgy and unimaginative. Labor has gained higher wages and shorter hours without reference to the earnings of the companies. This situation has dragged on so long that nationalization now seems the only way out.

The details of consequent reorganization are not yet available. But it may be inferred that they will come as a sharp shock both to aged directors, indifferent managers and comfortable employes. France cannot afford to run her railroads at a deficit which now runs at nearly a million dollars a day, and a lot of sacred cows are likely to be disturbed when the grim business of fitting outlay to income, under full state control, is initiated.

How much of the necessary savings will be taken out of the hide of French capitalists, and how much from the pockets of French workers, remains to be seen. But indubitably the basic reason for the step is the bankruptcy of the present nondescript system. The fact that it is put through as a decree confirms the belief that the outcome will be something of a shock to the partisans of both left and right in French politics.

Once Upon A Time.

Once upon a time, when all children's books started with that pretty phrase, dragons and knights fought it out to the bitter end. Anything but the cut-and-dried happy ending would have been heresy. Now sagas on streamlined trains and stage-struck seals amuse the children and amaze the grown-ups. Nothing new under the sun? Solomon should have had a look at the fall announcements of tomes for tiny tots.

Both titles and themes seem to have taken their cue from the lists of literature for adults. "Honey Chile" follows unabashedly on the skirts of Scarlett and "Here Comes the Postman" is all too reminiscent of James Cain's carrier who always rang twice.

As for contents, birds that used to in "their little nests agree" have been replaced by "The Restless Robin," doubtless a product of the age. Secretary Wallace will be disturbed to hear that Peter, Peter Pumpkin Eater has turned producer, and will henceforth be known as "Peter, Peter Pumpkin Grower." The Marjorie Hillis of the Never-Never Land is Adele de Leeuw, whose "A Place for Herself," instructs the very young miss how she may include lollypops on her budget.

Happily, in this forthcoming lot there appears to be a newfangled book to end all newfangled books for children. It is a "fast-moving rhythmic" alphabet with a talon fastener. All the modern child has to do is give a yank and he has from A to Zipper at his fingertips.

The press dispatches covering the wild woman on exhibit in Los Angeles aren't complete. It isn't explained how she lost her voice.

An evangelist says there are no divorces in heaven. Of course not—in order to secure a divorce, it is necessary to have a lawyer draw up the papers.

Employment In Parks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The dying trees and the general condition of the small downtown Washington parks are a shame and disgrace to the Nation's Capital, and those responsible for their present condition are unfit to serve in any public position.

Lafayette Square is most noticeable, but it is not the only sufferer. A fine horse chestnut tree in one of the West End triangles is dying by inches, due to the sea of masonry that was poured around its base as part of the "re-habilitation program," despite the protests of neighboring residents. To complete its destruction a stupid grill of masonry around its trunk is choking it to death, which repeated appeals to the office of the National Capital Parks have so far not availed to have removed.

Every Washington real estate owner should be up in arms against these vandalisms. Even those who have no regard for a tree for its own sake should realize the enormous loss to adjacent property values resulting from the depreciation of the parks.

If the purpose of the worse than uesless changes to which they were subjected was to give employment, as is sometimes alleged in defense of the "re-habilitation," it was a sad mistake.

Much more employment and steady, permanent employment would have been afforded by greatly increasing the maintenance staffs, which was what the parks needed and all that they needed. The writer can remember when each one of the small downtown parks was a beauty spot of flowers, trees and shrubbery and each one was in the care of its own special attendant, working constantly at weeding, watering, cleaning and protecting against depredations.

Now one motorcycle policeman is supposed to look after six parks, one is told, with the result that they look like slum areas and all of downtown Washington is cheapened.

The money wasted on the so-called "re-habilitation" would much better have been devoted to maintenance. It gave lucrative contracts to a group of politically favored commercial interests—but it has all but ruined our once lovely parks.

Symposium On The Far East.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to add to the many appreciative responses to your great editorial of August 20, "Gone With The Wind."

It would be jolly good if Waltman, Pegler and Phillips would follow this 16-inch shell with their bombs of incisive irony and shrapnel against the monumental absurdity of statutory neutrality.

Can there be a greater breeder of aggression and crime than a pledge of such neutrality on the part of independent powers? As in the case of individuals, may not nations be guilty "accessories before the fact" of murder and crime?

In our material world, what do pacfists and peace lovers with folded arms amount to among pirates?

"Daniel in the lions' den" was equally a prisoner with the lions; to eat him they knew would get them no more than to eat one of their mates. Not so with uncaged beasts, when they eat their victims "they go places." So Japan is licking her chops with bites of China, as is Italy with her gobble of Ethiopia, and rebels in Spain with their material plunders, while the U. S. A. is trying to substitute a spiritual peace in place of consistent action at times of actual material strife with lawlessness, murder and crime.

"Turning the other cheek" has to do with suffering and living for others but has nothing to do with self-defense or life itself. "There is a time to fight and a time to pray."

INALIENABLE.
Waynesboro, Pa., Aug. 28.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The influence of Satan is surely rampant in the world today. When will the era of crime and barbarism subside? There is a noted absence of both fear and love of the Great Creator. Some nations seem to have only one objective—to annihilate their neighbors and appropriate their possessions.

The Ten Commandments appear to be relegated to the ash heap.

Militaristic Japan impresses one that there will be no accounting. The present war in China (not declared) is an example of might over right. The merciless slaughter should be brought to a halt. The United States, England, France and Russia, in my opinion, are derelict in their obligations to humanity to permit the carnage to continue. They are certainly justified in making a posiitve demand that hostilities cease.

I am not a pacifist, but remembering the World War am horrified at a recurrence. Our standing among nations might be impaired if we fail to protect our nationals and investments abroad.

I therefore feel that we should go the limit when and if necessity demands. ISAAC B. NORDLINGER.
Washington, Aug. 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May it not be well for us to pause and realize that right now we are being exposed to the same subtle suggestion to enter into a war as we were during the fateful years of 1914-1917?

Why is it necessary to send 19 combat planes to China on a ship owned by the Government? Why, if that shipment has to be made, is it necessary to advertise that fact by spreading the story over all front pages? The answer seems to be that somebody is trying to create an incident which will involve the United States in a conflict with Japan. Neither of these countries wants this to happen, but the Japanese cannot be expected to overlook a shipment of war materials which will be of advantage to their adversaries, nor will the United States be able to condone the capture or sinking of one of her own vessels.

I am holding no brief for the present policies and actions of Japan. But we are not the guardian of the Chinese, or of any other nation, and we should not try to interfere in their affairs. As to our own interests in China, they seem to be minor compared to the sufferings and expenses of a war in which our entire nation would be involved.

LUDWIG S. HELLBORN.
Washington, Aug. 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An American seaman and a British Ambassador are victims of an unofficial-confidential sort of a war. The American killed, the Ambassador severely, perhaps mortally, wounded.

A comrade of the deceased American, a powerful American youngster, stands by to give his blood to revive the wounded diplomat. The act is seized as a symbol of an alliance, as usual, America being the Good Samaritan, the idealist of the occasion. Five years ago we were idealists in protesting Japan's entry into Manchuria. England's silance to Stimson's overtures of that time, made a suitable shroud for her default on her American war debt.

When we protested the Manchuria matter we were animated by principle. England was not interested and silently assented to Japan's aggression. Today the condition changes from mere principle to the safety of pounds and shillings, values more highly esteemed by England than mere treaty abstractions. So we are to be called to the front to protect Anglo-Saxon civilization as represented by England's colonial investments.

There remains one honorable business proposition. Order an estimate of all American investments in China. Say to Japan, "You liquidate this amount in cash and we withdraw from China." The transaction must be in cash.

Waltman For President.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As everyone knows, the Republican Party hasn't got a cord (nay, not even a splinter) of Presidential timber for 1940. The Democrats have any number of self-nominated successors to President Roosevelt and among this group it will be hard to strike an agreement. Not only "hard," but impossible.

Thus it is my humble suggestion that both parties, Republicans and Democrats, get together and settle the situation by agreeing on Franklyn Waltman for President. I don't believe there is anyone in America who knows more about the job of President and how to run the Federal Government than Mr. Waltman, unless it is Frank Kent, of the Baltimore Sun. Maybe Hamilton and Farley could agree on Kent for Vice President.

This would obviate the necessity of expensive, expansive and explosive Presidential campaigns, not to mention campaign contributions and fund-raising vehicles like dinners, liberty leagues, etc. And due to their profound knowledge of just exactly how everything should be done (or should I say how everything should not be done?), Messrs. Waltman and Kent could make every taxpayer happy . . . probably slap-happy.

Spots in the Cabinet could be found for Mark Sullivan, Westbrook Pegler, Raymond Clapper, Hugh Johnson and even, perhaps, Carlisle Bargeron, who, among other things, could handle the filing of the First Lady's income tax report.

With this crew at the helm, the Ship of State would be masterfully guided through the untroubled waters whose whereabouts are known only by those who know everything.

Yours for the new "harmony party." J. S. DAWSON, Jr.

No Sequel Wanted.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In her letter of August 24 Miss Malinche MacEvoy revealed that she hoped Margaret Mitchell would write a sequel to "Gone With the Wind." I cannot believe Miss Mitchell would be so unwise as to contemplate doing that.

Sequels to outstanding books, plays and movies have almost invariably turned out to be notoriously unworthy of their illustrious predecessors because, in most instances, the story has really ended and anything that follows is just so much literary padding, stretching and patchwork.

I fear "Gone With the Wind" would prove no exception. The dozen most important years of Scarlett's and Rhett's lives were told against the back-drop of the most humanly dramatic period in American history—the Civil War. This was the whole story and there isn't any more to tell. Let Scarlett and Rhett rest in peace. Heaven forbid these two intensely interesting individuals should be resurrected from the oblivion to which they must now literally and rightfully belong!

Incidentally, the fact Miss MacEvoy reached the last page regretting there wasn't more is, in itself, a great tribute. Any great book leaves the reader with that feeling.

Education Plus Vision.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The appeal of "Bewildered" in The Post of August 28 regarding the plight of the man "past 45" depicts a sad state of affairs, particularly noticeable since the war. One-third of all our tax money is said to go for education. Education for what?

If all opportunity begins to taper off at 45 we may well remember that the ignorant suffer less. With the eyes of a potato anyone can look ahead and see that too much "accent on youth" is about as logical as the sparrow building its nest in the eaves spout! Many years have recently been added to life expectancy, only to be confronted with fewer years of job expectancy.

Until vision and education make it possible in some way for life to "march to ever greater fulfillment" vision and education have failed.

In Jefferson's Memory

LAST year Congress authorized an expenditure of $3,000,000 for a memorial to Thomas Jefferson in Washington. A commission was appointed and one of the leading architects was commissioned to present designs for a memorial in the form of a replica of the Roman Pantheon. The Tidal Basin was designated as the location.

No sooner was the announcement of these plans made public than a storm of protest was raised. There was opposition to the conception of the memorial on the ground that it was not in keeping with the Jeffersonian tradition of architecture. There was, above all, opposition to digging up the cherry trees and filling in the Tidal Basin. There were those who steadfastly maintained that a huge hunk of granite was not a fitting memorial to a political philosopher of Jefferson's sympathies.

As a result of the controversy Congress failed to appropriate the $3,000,000, and it is believed that the Tidal Basin memorial idea will not be resurrected.

* * *

Now there seems to be considerable sentiment for a memorial, of a different type entirely, to be located at the University of Virginia. The Richmond Times-Dispatch suggests that a school or department in the field of government, political philosophy or economics would be a greater tribute to the memory of Jefferson than a granite memorial in Washington.

Certainly another imposing structure in Washington would not add greatly to the prestige, nor strengthen the memory, of Jefferson. Tourists would gape and take pictures of it, to be sure, but they would be impressed only by the size or design of the memorial. Furthermore, there are so many memorials and monuments in Washington already that the saturation point has been reached as far as the effect upon the general public is concerned. It should also be considered that not more than 10 or 15 per cent of the people—if that many—ever see Washington. For that reason it might be a good idea to scatter our patriotic monuments.

* * *

The idea of a Jefferson memorial that would be linked with the University of Virginia is eminently more fitting than a hollow building in Washington. There are possibly other ideas that would perpetuate his memory as well. A fund might be placed in the custody of the board of trustees of the institution with the income to be awarded as scholarships to students of government. The memory of Cecil Rhodes has been kept fresh by the scholarships which bear his name and which are given to young men throughout the English-speaking world. Some means of encouraging public forums and debates on questions of importance would also be a fitting memorial to Jefferson.

It can be said with assurance that he would have preferred a measure of public discusison on the subject of his memorial rather than having the choice delegated to a commission.

Books In Miniature.

The Oxford University Press announces that it is prepared to supply out-of-print volumes on microfilm. On the film each page occupies a space about the size of an ordinary postage stamp. Reading machines can enlarge these micro-copies to full size, or larger for easy reading. Thirty-two to 64 ordinary book pages are put on a foot of cinema film.

Five hundred years ago books were being copied by hand a letter at a time, a necessarily slow and expensive process. Gutenberg found a way to copy books a page at a time, by printing. He could produce 1,000 copies of a book as cheaply as a hand-scribe could make not more than ten. Gutenberg was a pioneer in mass production.

By means of microfilm the Oxford University Press says that hereafter no books will go out of print when the last printed copy has been sold and that eventually out-of-print books will be available on microfilm only. On a specimen film each page is only three-eighths of an inch wide and half an inch long. Under a strong reading glass the printed words are decipherable.

The cost of a microfilm copy is much less than would be paid for a copy of a rare book in good condition, as the price of the film is placed at a cent and a half to two cents a page. The publishers are probably right in saying that libraries will be equipped with reading machines for these microfilm books.

In the present day publisher hold the matrices for their books and if a reprinting should be justified it is a comparatively simple process, but it would be cheaper if only a few books are wanted to use the photographic process. The new system is bound to become important to the printing business. There is no possibility of typographical mistakes in this microfilm process.

Letter From George Spelvin.

Honorable H. H. Lehman,
Governor of New York,
Albany, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—From your recent statement regarding the Federal injunction which has permitted a dog track to operate with open, illegal gambling at Mineola, L. I., I take it that you are opposed to illegal gambling, not only on the dogs but on the dice, the wheel, the box or whatever.

Well, sir, I am going to give you the surprise of your life.

Saratoga, N. Y., a few miles from where you live in Albany, during the horse meeting which closed last Saturday, was one of the greatest gambling centers that this country has ever known. I wish I could see your expression as you read this, because you probably are saying, "You wouldn't kid me, would you?"

But I am not kidding, Mr. Lehman. Not only in the horse papers, but in the general circulation papers, there were many references to the great gambling season that the boys were enjoying in Saratoga in August. It was a season reminiscent of the era of wonderful nonsense, and things were so open this year that they even mentioned the names and locations of the playrooms in cold print and the names of some of the high rollers. The fix was in, everything was right, and the play was so big that the operators could afford to hire big names to go up to Saratoga and blow sweet wind through brass horns or squawk sad songs about love to lure the customers into the stores.

Maybe you don't know that the illegal gambling industry thrives by the bribery and corruption of certain local politicians. Fact, though. Often when you see a big name billed at some road house called a club you are safe in assuming that there is an illegal gambling house on the premises operating by the consent of local officials and the dominant local political organization, and that a flat price or a percentage of the profit goes for bribery.

• • • •

SOME OF the newspapers also are stooges for the gambling houses in that they print pieces which are sheer ballyhoo for these performers and the joints in which they work, knowing that the premises are illegal gambling houses conducted by underworld characters. Some newspapers don't refer to the gambling, though. It is considered unethical to mention it, because it is generally understood to be off the records. Beat that if you can, Governor.

By the same reasoning it would be unethical to mention a stickup or a murder for fear of embarrassing some racketeer who had invited you to witness the stickup or murder.

Don't take my word for this illegal gambling at Saratoga, Gov. Lehman. You have cops at your command and friends who know their way around. You ask them and they will confirm what I have said. Or maybe you would be ashamed to admit that so much lawlessness could go on so close to your official residence and the seat of the State government and the law itself without your knowing it.

• • • •

BUT YOU NEEDN'T BE ashamed, Governor, because plenty of other Governors before you didn't have the slightest inkling that there were gambling houses in Saratoga, just a pleasant hour's drive of a summer evening from the Governor's mansion in Albany. Al Smith and Frank Roosevelt were accounted pretty smart men when they were Governors, and this gambling was conducted in secrecy as far as they were concerned.

On the other hand, Governor, maybe you should have known that this summer and during every summer that you have been in Albany, Saratoga was a great center of illegal crap games, horse rooms, roulette, faro, bird cage and other games of little or no chance. On further thought, Governor, in view of the notorious size and boldness of the illegal gambling operations at Saratoga, you make me uneasy by your statement that you "are advised" that thousands of dollars are wagered nightly in defiance of the State penal laws at the Mineola dog track under protection of a Federal injunction restraining the local officials from doing their duty.

There wasn't any injunction to restrain the local officials from doing their duty in Saratoga right in your own neighborhood, was there?

Yours very truly,
GEORGE SPELVIN, the Average American.

Papa's Darling.

("Moscow—A 14-year-old schoolboy of Baku, Transcaucasia, denounced his father to the secret police as a counter-revolutionist, and was rewarded by a two-weeks trip to a vacation camp and lauded for his schoolwork by the government."—News item.)

What a darling little fellow—
What a perfect, upright son,
Full of noble resolutions,
Putting duty over fun!
Watching daddy's every movement,
Noting comments cold and hot,
And then warmly recommending
He be taken out and shot!

II.

Ah, how sweet to hear your footsteps
Falling here and falling there!
And your carefree, childish laughter
Ringing always everywhere!
What an energetic youngster,
With a zeal that never stops,
Taking down dear daddy's statements
And reporting to the cops!

III.

Romping to the school each morning,
Coming homeward on the run,
For you must keep tabs on popper—
There is dark work to be done
Climbing on his lap and smiling
As he tells you this and that—
And reporting to the coppers—
Ah, delightful little brat!

IV.

Taking note of his opinions
As he spins a little tale,
And resolving, as he closes,
"I must put this bum in jail!"
Pleading, "Popper, tell another,"
In a childish voice so sweet,
With your daddy unsuspecting
That you're turning on the heat.

V.

Listening through long-drawn evenings
To the thoughts your daddy holds;
Marking carefully on paper
Every viewpoint he unfolds;
Then off to the Secret Service
(What a lousy little guy!)
With the data indicating
That your father is a spy!

VI.

What about your dear old mammy?
You must soon turn her in, too;
You're a faithful young Leninist
With a heart that's ever true.
You'll get two weeks at a boy's camp,
There to play and shout and dance . . .
Blessings on thee, charming offspring—
And a swift kick in the pants!

Can You Remember—

When, if your home was shelled, the barn fired, your live stock seized, your farm raided and your family killed you called it war?

Quaker Meeting

World Conference Of Society Of Friends Opens At Haverford And Swarthmore With Thousand Delegates In Attendance

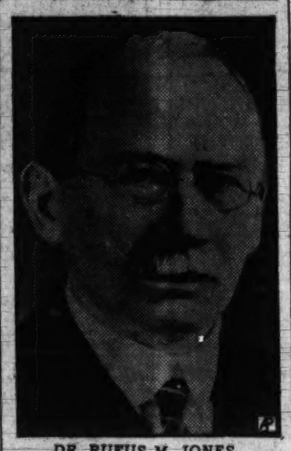
By Eugene Pharo.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Philadelphia.

THE COMMONWEALTH that William Penn founded as an experiment in Quaker government, but of which the Quakers washed their hands about 70 years later because they didn't hold with fighting, is again to be the scene of Friendly political and social discussion. At the two Quaker colleges of Haverford and Swarthmore, just outside of Philadelphia, a world conference of the Religious Society of Friends assembles today for a week's discussion.

To it are coming about a thousand leaders of the society from 23 countries, of whom 225 are traveling from Australia, Austria, Canada, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, England, France, Germany, Holland, India, Ireland, Jamaica, Japan, Madagascar, Mexico, New Zealand, Norway, Palestine, Switzerland and Sweden. Hopes are entertained that there will be delegates from Africa as well.

The rest of the thousand will be from the United States, all of them selected and commissioned by the meetings to which they belong; for the conference is to be a representative one, and intends to take up weighty business in five different departments. And it is intended to result in increased inspiration for the humanitarian service of the society and in clarification of various attitudes for Quakers throughout the world. Of these, there were, at last count in 1935, a total of 159,506. In the United States there were 110,536, although the largest single meeting was London Yearly Meeting, with a membership of 20,383.



DR. RUFUS M. JONES, who will be presiding clerk for the Friends World Conference.

Society Will Consider Politics It Has Avoided.

PARADOXICALLY, one of the chief subjects of discussion will bear on the same conflict that led early Pennsylvania Friends to relinquish their control of Pennsylvania politics; that between the goals and "necessities" of the political state and the personal attitudes and scruples of the individual. For one of the five commissions that has been busy for the last year preparing data and reports to present to the gathering has devoted itself to considering "The Individual Christian and the State." And it has confronted the menace of the totalitarian state, or what it plainly considers to be such a menace, with considerable horror.

Preliminary reports of four other commissions reveal that they have considered the totalitarian state, too; especially one that is devoting its attention to "The Spiritual Message of the Religious Society of Friends." The other three commissions, to make the toll complete, have been engaged in studying "Methods of Achieving Economic, Racial and International Justice," "Friends' Contribution to Education" and "International Co-operation of Friends."

Through the reports of all of them runs an affirmation of the importance, indeed the sacredness, of the individual, as regarded in the light of the Christian ethic, that is at the opposite pole from that accorded him in the philosophy of the totalitarian state. And this specific contrast is pointed out in several reports on the agenda of the conference.

Anglo-Irish Division Hits At Totalitarianism.

FOR EXAMPLE, the Anglo-Irish section of the commission on "The Individual Christian and the State," pays its respects to the totalitarian state in the following words, among others: "Here we are confronted not merely with an enlargement of the functions of government, but with a claim to control every sphere of personal life. We are not concerned to estimate—still less to deny—the good that may accompany this in an enhanced spirit of national life, but in itself the claim is a direct and terrible challenge to what we believe to be the true line of human progress, to Christianity and in particular to the Quaker faith."

It continues: "There have been tyrannies without number in the history of mankind, tyrannies of monarchs and tyrannies of majorities, tyrannies political and religious; but this modern theory outdoes them all. It not only conscripts the individual, but silences all protest and discussion. It is equipped with the most effective instruments; the machinery of government with its capacity for detailed control such as was never known before; its power to arouse mass emotion is formidable and strikes at the root of intellectual and moral freedom; add to this that it is accompanied by a readiness to use violence without restraint and without mercy, and we see the appalling peril which faces humanity."

In continuing, it opposes to the assumptions of the totalitarian state those that it considers the tenets of the Christian faith; predicating the inherent worth of personality on the divine in man, affirming the importance of a sense of communal responsibility, and restating the Quaker belief in the guidance of God, and the obligation to be loyal to such guidance in the face of claims from any other agency whatsoever.

Other Commissions Probe Social Problems Likewise.

THE OTHER COMMISSIONS bring out the same essential point of view in confronting social and international problems, including that of peace and war; and all of them go at considerable length into existing conditions, nationally and internationally. For while the basis of the conference is religious, the attention that the society has put upon the tasks before it is exceedingly realistic.

Much data has been procured through the operations of the American Friends Service Committee, and corresponding organizations in England and elsewhere for performing continuous service to the oppressed and needy in many countries, intended to demonstrate the Quaker faith as a way of life and action, rather than as merely a credal belief.

In the international field, it is expected that the world conference will work out a loose arrangement further to co-ordinate the work of Friends. But the commission in charge has stated its belief that too much organization would be a bad thing. In this connection it has quoted the conclusions of a special study made a few years ago: "It cannot be stressed too strongly that organization must be kept subordinate to spirit and life. The Society of Friends has rightly feared overcentralization and anything approaching bureaucracy." It adds, "This is true, not only within the Yearly Meetings, but also in the International Service, where 'top-heavy centralization has been avoided, just because the Quaker method could dispense with it.'"

Nevertheless, the commission reports, at least a minimum amount of international organization seems necessary, if the spirit of the Society is to be given effective expression. And that the time seems ripe for the emergence of an International Society of Friends is suggested.

Radio Broadcast Will Be Significant Concession.

ONE UNIQUE FEATURE of the September conference will be a radio broadcast of several talks at a large general meeting that is being arranged apart from the smaller, representative meetings. This concession to modernity on the part of a society whose meetings are characterized by silence, can scarcely be exaggerated. But it accords closely with the realism expressed through study that has been carried out by the membership for more than a year and that has been devoted to the harsh detail of current social, economic, political and international problems.

It helps to indicate the inevitable upshot of the whole conference, in making Friends less likely to withdraw from disturbing conflict with political forces, than when, in the eighteenth century, they turned Pennsylvania's government over to the "worldly."

New Yorkers and Neuroses.

WISE-CRACKING COLUMNISTS have been chanting for some time that for "every electric light on Broadway, there is a broken heart." It should be added that for every broken heart on Broadway, there is a monument to it in some form of prose, poem or pun. Manhattaniania is growing so rapidly that it threatens to assume the proportions of the Empire State Building.

Last week the postman dumped on my desk two books which, read together, are as good a cross-section of humanity in New York City as you could find on a crowded subway car. They are Wolcott Gibbs' "Bed of Neuroses" and Phyllis McGinley's "One More Manhattan."

• • • •

"'WHAT'S A DAME!' said the callboy, finishing his apple and throwing the core over his shoulder." Here is pure Gibbsonese. If, on the other hand, the callboy had eaten the core and thrown the apple away, critics might have suspected Mr. Gibbs of following Mr. Faulkner's footsteps through the mire of Mississippi. This is not to say that Mr. Faulkner wouldn't be proud to have fathered this little story with the short if not sweet title of "Feud." In fact, it's right up his alley and if you know anything about Mr. Faulkner you know that his is an alley what is an alley. In short, it's about a dead cow.

Just thinking about what Mr. Faulkner could do with a dead cow is enough to give one the shivers. That's where Mr. Gibbs has the advantage. He doesn't expect his readers to think at all while reading him. Just relax, he seems to say, and I'll show you how silly a big railroad like the Pennsylvania can look all tied up in red tape. Having disposed of the cow's carcass and the PRR in ten pages, Mr. Gibbs looks at lightning and tries to figure out what, if anything, can be done about it.

After listening to a lot of Old Wives' tales and Old Aunts' anecdotes, he concludes that there are three ways in which the human being may duck lightning though he hastens to add that it "will get you anyway if it's in the mood." Avoid water (an electricity-conductor), draughts, and all contacts with steel. Fireplaces, too, come in this category. "As a matter of fact, a fireplace had very nearly been the end of my grandfather, who had been sitting in front of one when a ball of fire rolled down the chimney and out on the hearth, where it oscillated for some time, looking at him, before it rolled thoughtfully away and disappeared in the cellar."

• • • •

MOST OF MR. GIBBS' stories are about his own experiences in New York though he adds the necessary touch of universality by treating these friends and acquaintances of his as if they were types. There is the check-book puzzler who regards "his checks as a convenient form of currency having no relation to any money he might or might not have on deposit;" the wispy blonde vegetable dealer who thinks she's the "Ann Harding type;" the new home-owners who pester all their friends for a jolly name for the house, etc.

The book is priceless though the publishers seem to have other ideas and are willing to sell copies for $2 each.

• • • •

"ONE MORE MANHATTAN" is just that. Miss McGinley free-wheels around the corners of a quatrain as smoothly as a debtor around a process-server. It's good to see her carrying on, poetically speaking, since there are few women outside Dotty Parker who can compose such satirical stanzas about suffering in silver foxes. And since Miss Parker caught a European-bound steamer the other day in a costume which resembled a witch's riding habit, it is safe to assume that she is pretty much sold on the idea of remaining in Hollywood and thinking up synonyms for "colossal."

Miss McGinley sings of the new New York and at the same time laments the passing of the old. She probes gently, like a family physician, but none the less effectively. Upon "Discovering that a Mott Street Chinese Restaurant Serves Its Chopsticks Wrapped in Cellophane," she weeps in perfect meter for seven all-too short stanzas. She pauses to sing ho for the summer subrenter, the recent Digest Poll which she calls "Funk at Wagnalls," and the annual dinner of the Utah Club of New York

And of course, the book wouldn't be complete without poems about her favorite brain son, Oliver Ames, that old Hug-the-Hearth and Sit-by-the-Fire-and-Spinner.

• • • •

MODESTLY, SHE pens a "Ballade for a Bard" in which she asks, among other things:

Where is Hoffenstein, old King Leer?
Where is Parker or Howard Di'tz?
Lost in the Hollywood stratosphere,
Writing pretty palpable hits
For Gary Cooper or ZaSu Pitts.
But never a rollicking song sing they.
The laughing muse is a muse that flits.

If I could even rhyme "cat" and "rat," I'd address a little poem right back and reassure her that we're all getting along pretty nicely without them, thanks to her. You know, something sort of friendly, addressed to Miss McGinley.

Chinese Appeal To League Seen Within 10 Days

Plea Also May Be Made to Signatories of 9-Power Pact.

By the United Press.

Geneva, Aug 31.—China will appeal to the League of Nations within the next ten days for aid against Japanese aggression, it was intimated in League circles tonight.

The Chinese note to the League last Monday, in which Japan was denounced as an aggressor, was accepted here as a preparatory action in a Chinese move for aid of League signatories against Nippon.

Assembly Convenes Sept. 13.

The appeal, it was believed, would be placed before the international body promptly in an effort to have the matter discussed immediately upon convening of the League assembly September 13.

Simultaneously, it was reported, China might appeal to the signatories of the Nine Power pact, to which the United States is a party.

Observers here believe China will invoke Article 7 of the League covenant, which provides that any dispute between a League member and a non-member (in the present case, Japan) may be placed before the League for discussion, and that the non-member may participate equally in the discussions if it is agreed that she will assume the same obligations as the League members until the dispute is settled.

Penalties May Be Sought.

If the non-member refuses an invitation to present her case for discussion, Article 16 of the Covenant, providing penalties, may be invoked.

Although the Chinese realize that none of the League powers would be willing to apply military sanctions against Japan, China has hopes that the League might vote economic sanctions against Nippon, similar to those applied to Italy during the Ethiopian conquest.

Foreigners' Capital In America Earned 238 Million in 1936

By the Associated Press.

Foreign investments in this country netted their owners $238,000,000 during 1936, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

This was an increase of $67,000,000 over 1935. The department attributed the upturn largely to higher dividend payments on American stocks last year and heavier foreign security purchases.

Of the total investment payments to foreigners, $130,000,000 came from common and preferred stocks, compared with only $83,000,000 from this source in 1935.

Income to Americans from foreign investments was listed at $568,000,000 last year, compared with $521,000,000 in 1935.

The department's report, analyzing the balance of international payments last year, said "immigrant remittances" totaled about $115,000,000 in 1936, compared with $92,000,000 in the previous year.

The 1936 remittances by alien and other residents in this country to relatives and families abroad compared with similar income to this country of only $5,000,000.

The report said 320,000 American citizens visited overseas countries during 1936, spending $229,000,000.

Britons BidHighest On Laid-Up Ships

By the Associated Press.

The maritime commission opened bids yesterday for purchase of 15 steel cargo ships in its laid-up fleet.

The ships were offered either for scrapping or operation in foreign waters.

The high bidder on 11 of the 15 ships on a scrapping basis was Simpson, Spence & Young, of New York, who offered $560,865 in behalf of British buyers.

High bidders for the remaining four vessels, for scrapping, were Philipp Bros., Inc., of New York, with a bid of $100,849 for two ships and the Young Shipbuilding Co., of Baltimore, with an offer of $50,575 for the other two vessels.

High bidder for 12 of the ships for foreign operation was G. E. Marden, of New York, with a bid of $550,000. The bidder did not disclose for whom he was acting.

Army Amphibian Forced Into Sea

New London, Conn., Aug. 31 (AP). An Army amphibian plane forced down in rolling seas and a heavy fog 18 miles south of Montauk Point, Long Island, was towed safely to Montauk Point tonight for repairs by the Coast Guard cutter Active.

The plane radioed its base at Mitchell Field that none of its passengers was injured.

'Childish,' Jardine Says in Tax Row

Chicago, Aug. 31 (AP).—The Rev R. Anderson Jardine characterized today the action of officials in Darlington, England, in citing him for nonpayment of municipal taxes as "so childish, so silly."

The man who married the Duke and Duchess of Windsor said:

"I thought the mentality at Darlington was such that they would have known anything would not be paid straight on the nail. I simply forgot to stop at the rates office . . . The whole thing is ridiculous, so silly, so childish."

Japanese Embassy Counselor Deplores Wang's War Speech

Harris & Ewing.
YAIKICHIRO SUMA.

Yakichiro Suma, counselor of the Japanese Embassy, yesterday "deplored" the blunt language of Chinese Ambassador Chengting T. Wang and "such-like statements that savor of sensationalism."

The embassy, Suma said, does not contemplate issuing a formal rebuttal, and he insisted his statement was merely an "expression."

At a benefit dinner for China's war refugees at the Lotos Restaurant Monday night, Dr. Wang assailed Japan for "ruthless tactics" and "barbarism."

"The Japanese Embassy feels that strong words of this kind do not relieve the present tension between the two great powers of the Orient," Suma said.

The embassy counselor, who for ten years was Japan's consul-general in Nanking, the seat of the Chinese Nationalist government, insisted enmity for the Chinese people is an "alien" thing to the Japanese mind and reiterated the Tokyo government's continued faith in "co-operation."

"All Japan wants of China is co-operation—co-operation to work out their mutual destinies in the Far East," he said.

Commenting on the recently signed Sino-Russian nonaggression pact, which Dr. Wang termed "a stepping stone to peace," the Japanese diplomat said:

"China has the right to sign whatever pact may please her. All Japan insists on is that Generalissimo Chiang abide by his former pledge to wage unrelenting war on communism."

Closing the interview, Suma made a plea to the American press for "understanding" and an "unbiased presentation" of the undeclared Sino-Japanese war.

Tonight from 5:45 to 6, the first official foreign radio statement of Japan's policy in the Chinese conflict will be made by Kensuke Horinouche, vice minister of foreign affairs. He will speak from Tokyo over the Columbia network and Station WJSV here.

Horinouche, who was consul general in New York from 1930 to 1934, is reported to be the third ranking member of Premier Konoye's cabinet. His present position dates from April, 1936.

Bourbon Couple Now Seeks Divorce

Havana, Aug. 31 (AP).—The man who married the Prince and Princess of Bourbon two months ago announced tonight he would file papers in court tomorrow for their divorce.

Jose L. Pessino, acting as attorney for both parties, said he would institute the action when he received the official copy of the marriage certificate.

The divorce of the eldest son of former King Alfonso XIII of Spain and his commoner-wife, the former Marta Rocafort, would be by mutual agreement, the lawyer asserted. He said that the princess would drop her title and that there was no question of alimony or a money settlement for her.

New Abattoir Fight Will Begin Today

Officials of the District, the Public Health Service, and the Interior Department will confer today in another attempt to evolve a plan for halting construction of an abattoir by the Adolf Gobel Co. in northeast Washington.

While District officials are skeptical of the chances of finding a means of barring the slaughterhouse, Secretary Ickes has insisted that every possible legal remedy be studied. One of the major subjects to be discussed is industrial waste from the abattoir.

John R. Riggles, president of the Seabrook (Md.) Citizens Association, yesterday advised the Commissioners his organization favored the abattoir and asked to be heard.

Little Entente Hails Hull as Peace Leader

Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia Pledge U. S. Co-operation.

By the Associated Press.

Sinaia, Rumania, Aug. 31.—Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia tonight pledged co-operation with the United States and welcomed American leadership in preserving peace.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull's recent statements urging international understanding and co-operation were "received with sympathy," the permanent council of the three nations' little entente said in a statement.

"They are the basis for collaboration, politically and economically, with the great republic overseas," the communique said, and went on to express confidence in the League of Nations.

Other points of the communique:

1. The three states are in complete unity on all essential policies and consequently do not need to change their 17-year-old agreements;

2. They rejected a "new Locarno" unless it be part of a general securities system;

3. They disapproved intervention in Spain;

4. They viewed with satisfaction improved relations among Danubian states;

5. They expressed satisfaction with expansion of inter entente commerce through Praha, Czech capital, as trade center;

6. They approved suggestions that the entente states recognize each other's academic degrees; and

7. They announced the next entente meeting will be at Geneva in connection with the League of Nations sessions in September.

While Hungary was not mentioned, a closer understanding with her was hinted.

Cuba 'Dethrones' Sugar as Its King

Havana, Aug. 31 (AP).—The cornerstone of Col. Fulgencio Batista's "three year plan"—the sugar industry co-ordination bill—was voted by the House today and sent to President Federico Laredo Bru for his promised signature.

The senate passed the bill, August 12.

Col. Batista, Cuba's military leader, has the announced purpose of dethroning sugar as Cuba's king commodity in this legislation. Sugar has been Cuba's economic lifeblood for more than a half a century.

Action to spread sugar profits more widely was made the first step toward a more rounded national economy in which Cuba is to produce more of what she consumes and develop additional products for export.

The law is expected to assure 13,641 small cane growers, each producing less than 48 tons of sugar, the right to have all their cane ground up to that amount.

Britain, France Bar Japanese Troops

By the United Press.

Uncensored and authoritative dispatches to private sources here yesterday reported British and French authorities closed their concessions in Tientsin to passage of Japanese troops en route to the battle areas.

The action, it was said, followed a series of sharp disputes between British and French authorities and Japanese commanders.

The Japanese soldiers, the dispatches said, were accused by the British and French of reckless driving, of disregard of traffic rules and of objectionable conduct in relation to the safety of civilians.

Grain Men Ask U. S. Aid For Exports Via Canada

By the Associated Press.

Agriculture Department officials promised sympathetic consideration yesterday to a request by grain men from Chicago, Philadelphia and New York for a change in government inspection regulations, to facilitate wheat exports from the United States through Canada.

W. H. McDonald, Chicago grain man, asked government certificates of inspection be issued in denominations that will fit requirements of buyers and ocean freight space.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Far from being alarmed by Senator Clark's liscovery of six-toed Indians and five-handed twins on paintings at the Capitol, I deem it a faint inkling of PWA genius . . . Haven't we all seen the Raphael (I think) at the Louvre of a lady with five breasts? . . Just for a change, it might be pleasant to read of Tokyo being bombarded instead of Shanghai.

Sign at the Army and Navy Country Club: "Midshipmen, Cadets and those in bathing suits or semi-nude not permitted at the Bar" . . . Keep your shirts on, Middies . . . There ought to be a Congressional investigation of the starvation of Eleanor Powell she's 15 pounds underweight.

• • • •

Pontification at the Willard: "The last three amendments—women's suffrage, direct primary for Senators and prohibition—almost wrecked the country" . . . There's no cold water from Washington faucets and showers in summer: you turn on the cold and it's jus comfortable for a bath.

"——the cynical diplomats."

At times the diplomatic outbursts of Japan, Germany and Italy sound like the cynical wisecracks of a Harvard sophomore who had three beers . . . The meats at Ceres are as good as any shoved across a counter, but the potatoes are sliced too thin.

Remember way back when American Government officials used to denounce injustices in foreign lands—and our foreign trade never seemed to suffer, either? . . . New Dealers here complain they're so busy they haven't time to find out who Donald Duck and Charlie McCarthy are.

A few senatorial wives dress for a function as if they were going to the corner grocery store . . . Any day now Japan may announce that it has adopted the "good neighbor" policy.

The kidding a Southern Congressman gave the President in an impromptu speech at the Jefferson Island clambake would have made an amusing page in the Congressional Record . . . Stampeded by premature honking behind them when lights change at an intersection, some motorists here start their cars in second gear for a quick getaway, which doesn't help the motor any.

In a desperate attempt to amuse a feminine visitor, a Congressman tried to obtain for her an invitation to a Congressional reception at the White House, but without success.

At length he finegled an invitation from a colleague who wasn't going, and induced another colleague to escort her.

She and the Congressmen were palmed off on the President and Mrs. Roosevelt in the introductions under the name of the absent member; the Great Deception of the session.

"——they're shyer at ward frolics."

I wonder if that sad disillusioned expression on the face of Robert, the urbane head waiter at the Shoreham, comes from watching statesmen at play . . .

After a fiery speech in favor of appropriating another $500,000,000 for relief, one Congressman tried to obtain a refund of a nickel for part of a bottle of milk he hadn't drunk.

One member of Congress from New York tells me he used to admire the appetites and thirsts of the boys at his Fifth Ward hamburger orgies, but now deems them a lot of abstemious ascetics compared with a group of Congressmen wolfing the caviar and pate de foie gras at an embassy party.

As they dispersed to their home battlefronts, the more loyal of Mr. Roosevelt's followers in Congress seemed to cling to one wistful, unquenchable belief—that his motives are impeccable . . . Well, Japan may treat the Chinese like clay pigeons, and German or Italian submarines may practice on Russian freighters, but we're headed into an era of peace as long as it remains unfashionable to declare war.

Berwyn Rents Halt Selection Of Applicants

Resettlement Chiefs Can't Decide on How Much to Charge.

The question of how much rent to charge is holding up selection of families who will live at Greenbelt, the Government's resettlement project at Berwyn, Md., Resettlement Administration officials admitted last night.

"We cannot interview applicants until the rent is determined, and we have been unable to reach a decision on that," it was declared.

The administration insists, however, that the settlement will be opened to occupancy by mid-September as previously announced. Every effort is being made to prevent another delay, as the opening is already 18 months behind schedule.

875 Out of 9,000.

How 875 families can be sifted personally from the more than 9,000 applicants in a half-month's time, appears to be a problem that will make another delay inevitable.

Applicants whose incomes are within the $1,200 to $2,000 range selected have been weeded from the others. If they are otherwise qualified, they will receive the prospective tenant blanks to be mailed out as soon as rent is determined. Then they will appear before the "selection" board for a personal examinatoin and selection.

Another question yet unsettled deals with the amount of control the Administration will have over filling stations, stores and markets to be patronized by the Greenbelt inhabitants. Citizens of the Berwyn area have protested against any ruling that might eliminate them from operation of some of the business establishments.

Policy Soon Determined.

Administration officials said this topic has not yet been discussed in the Greenbelt conferences being held daily, but that it will be included in the general statement of policy that may be ready for announcement within the next few days.

As originally laid out, plans called for a maximum rental of $42.50 for a six-room house at Greenbelt, with the minimum scaling down as low as $20 for a one-room and kitchenette apartment.

At that time, however, it was considered the cost per housing unit would be $4,900. The actual cost was around $6,500, and the total cost of the project has been boosted at least $5,000,000 above the $9,500,000 at first estimated as the complete total.

Indian Tribe Easily Tamed 'Wild' Eagles

Reputation of Glorious Bird Shattered by Smithsonian Scientist.

The Smithsonian Institution yesterday shattered the reputation of the American eagle, once glorious symbol of independence.

According to Dr. Julian Steward, Smithsonian scientist, Indians living in the Shoshone Desert region of Nevada once kept the haughty birds as pets. The idea was to provide feathers for young braves, who didn't wear much else anyway.

People nowadays have the idea that the eagle is a pretty tough customer, hard to conquer and harder to capture. That's because they've seen the bird glorified on coins, on the President's flag and on official documents of every sort.

But the Shoshone Desert Indians weren't bothered by any such tradition. They had to have eagle feathers to decorate young braves, to equip the tribal witch doctor, and to guide their arrows.

So the Indians waited until they dreamed either of lizards or of feathers.

Then, convinced that they possessed either the light weight of a feather or the climbing ability of a lizard, they climbed the cliffs to the jagged crags hovering over the Great American Desert and took the young eagles from their nests.

Some of them they put in cages. Others they merely tied to rocks. Sometimes they would capture an old eagle and tie it up so that the young would stay close by. The Indians fed the captives on gophers and young groundhogs.

When the eagles grew up, the feathers were plucked from their tails and wings. Then the birds were taken to the edge of a cliff and released.

At this ceremony, the man releasing the bird would say: "Your father and mother will see you flying in the sky. They will take care of you now."

Much of Dr. Steward's information about the dubious past of America's national bird was gained by talking to old men of the Shoshone Desert tribes who remember the customs that were followed before the days of the white man.

Cosmopolitans Elect Doyle Judge Advocate

Michael M. Doyle, former Municipal Court judge, member of the Georgetown University law faculty and vice chairman of the Board of Public Welfare, was elected judge advocate of the Cosmopolitan Clubs at their annual convention at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, it was reported here yesterday.

A former District resident, William F. Buckley, was elected president. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buckley, of 718 Madison street northwest, he practices law in Milwaukee.

Crash Victims' Lives Imperiled By Being Rushed From Scene

That passing motorist who hurries victims of an automobile crash to the hospital may be as great a menace to life as the person who caused the accident.

That is the theory behind the first aid course which opened yesterday in the Metropolitan Police School under direction of Robert Duncan of the District Red Cross.

"In many instances of deaths resulting from traffic accidents, it is not the accident that is the direct cause of death, but careless handling afterward," Duncan said.

Because the police officer is normally one of the first to arrive at the accident, Duncan believes it essential that he be trained to bridge the gap between the crash and the doctor. And the first lesson he gives is that quick action is normally not careful action.

There is only one type of injury in which the victim should be rushed to the hospital, and that is a case of internal bleeding," Duncan said.

In other injuries, fractures, concussion, shock, burns, the correct first aid treatment should be given at the scene, and the victim left there until the arrival of stretcher or ambulance.

"Otherwise the injury may become worse," Duncan said. "A simple fracture may develop into a compound fracture. A broken bone may shift and cut through an artery, causing the victim to bleed to death. The effect of shock may be intensified with improper transportation."

Beside training in diagnosing injuries and the correct first aid procedure for each, the police rookies will be taught the order in which various injuries should be treated, and the importance of controlling crowds around an accident.

Brazilians Still Chug to Capital After 9 Years

Trio Left Rio in 1928 to Blaze Automobile Trail to United States.

One of these days, or nights, three swarthy gentlemen are going to chug into Washington in a dilapidated auto of pre-Hoover vintage, thereby ending a motor jaunt begun more than nine years ago.

Leonidas Borges de Oliveira, Francisco Lopez de la Cruz and Mario Fava are still pretty much a mystery to Pan American Union officials, Brazilian Embassy attaches and others here who have been expecting them to arrive for years.

It is definitely known they left Rio de Janeiro on April 16, 1928, to blaze the trail for a Pan-American highway; that they have had some blood chilling experiences with savages, snakes, swamps and storms, and that Senhor Oliveira is leader, Senhor Fava, mechanic and Senhor de la Cruz, observer, of the party, which has no official status.

No one seems to know why the boys are so long getting here. They were in San Antonio last spring.

Senhor Fernando Lobo, of the Brazilian Embassy, thinks they are in Chicago Stephen James, secretary of the Pan American Union Highway Confederation, thinks they are in Detroit.

When the Brazilian trio began rolling up from Rio, Coolidge was in the White House, the Wall Street crash was 18 months in the future and Mae West was taking rides in patrol wagons for appearing in questionable plays.

At least one of the Latin-American authorities here is rather peeved with the fellows because, in interviews en route, they reportedly have given the impression that the highway "survey" they are making is an official one.

"This is not so," the critic said. "The men are strictly on their own. You or I could do the same thing they are doing. But when they get here we shall, of course, greet them and maybe take them to lunch."

Public Backing Venereal Drive, Ruhland Says

Response Steadily Improving; Howard Today Starts Post-Graduate Course.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland yesterday expressed gratification over the Capital's steadily improving response to the venereal disease problem, on the eve of opening a new phase in the Nationwide drive against syphilis and gonorrhea.

Today, Howard University Medical School will inaugurate its first post-graduate course in venereal disease prevention, treatment and control. Colored physicians from the District and several States have registered for each of the three three-month sessions which will be held.

Financed by social security funds allotted by United States Surgeon General Thomas Parran, the new course is under joint auspices of Dr. Ruhland and Howard University.

By providing the students, all practicing physicians recommended by their State health officers, with the latest information on all phases of the subject, the innovation is expected to result eventually in lowered incidence of syphilis and gonorrhea in their respective areas.

Among the recent gains in the local crusade to reduce prevalence of the two diseases and encourage sufferers to receive treatment, Dr. Ruhland cited the following:

Lessened delinquency among patients who are treated at the department's I street clinic. On the whole, they are more dependable in appearing each week for treatment than they were six months ago.

Better case reporting by private physicians. During the first six months of this year they reported 1,271 cases of syphilis and gonorrhea to the Health Department, compared to 1,109 in the same period in 1936.

Greater interest in the problem by employers, many of whom have introduced compulsory blood tests for their employes.

Study Opens On 7-Year Tax Program

Investigator to Compare District Levies With Other Cities.

By James D. Secrest.

Still enmeshed in the problem of collecting the $9,000,000 new taxes voted by the Congress, the District Commissioners yesterday launched a study of a new program to be recommended at the opening of the congressional session.

A newly-appointed tax committee held its first meeting and laid the basis of its study in the office of Melvin C. Hazen, president of the board.

A seven-year program of operating expenses and "reasonable" capital improvements to be matched by estimates of anticipated revenue for the same period was fixed as the first goal of the committee.

The committee also agreed to employ an investigator to do research for it. He is Leslie Gillis, jr., of the Senate's legislative reference bureau. He will be paid $250 a month out of the $5,000 appropriated by Congress for the study.

License Fee Study.

Gillis first task will be to make a comparative study of license fees and utility and bank tax levies in Washington and cities of similar size.

The Commissioners earlier in the day extended the deadline for the filing of new business privilege tax returns from September 16 to October 1 and scheduled public hearings on the 1939 budget estimates for September 10 and 11.

Tax Assessor Fred D. Allen filed his annual report showing a substantial increase in levies for the fiscal year which ended June 30.

Realty tax assessments amounted to $17,167,314.69, he disclosed, and exceeded last year's levies by $190,339. The assessed valuation of private property was raised to $1,144,457,153, of which $664,961,889 was for improvements.

The greatest proportional gain was made in personal property tax assessments, however, due to the check-up of income tax payments.

Taxes Climb $759,440.57.

The total tax on tangible personal property, intangible personal property, gross receipts and gross earnings, and miscellaneous taxes amounted to $5,825,154.57, or an increase of $759,440.57 over the previous year, Allen said.

Examination of the "green sheets" of Washington taxpayers at the Internal Revenue Bureau, the report showed, produced $399,933.26, and added 4,115 taxpayers to the personal tax rolls.

Personal property taxes on automobiles jumped by $102,256.79 to $620,742.39, but Allen declared that the system of making assessments in accordance with "book values" is "not a satisfactory basis."

This valuation book, he said, "in but a few cases reflects the true value of the car."

The special tax committee, which will recommend a permanent program of municipal taxation to the District heads before January, consists of Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, auditor, as chairman; Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways; Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the Public Utilities Commision; Tax Assessor Allen, and Chatham Towers, tax collector.

Hazen said that the big problem of deciding whether to ask Congress to continue the business privilege tax, with modifications, or to propose an income tax or a sales tax again will be left to the Commissioners to decide.

He expressed the view one of these three will of necessity form the basis of any permanent tax program that is devised to offset the District's rising expenses. A combination of an income and gross receipts tax might be worked out, he added.

In HOLLYWOOD With Jimmy Fiddler

Hollywood, Aug. 31.—Idol Chatter: The bathing suits worn by Malibu's screen lovelies, remind me that I have to buy postage stamps today.

TYRONE POWERS.

Cited for the Hollywood Croix de Merite: Cary Grant—obliged to pay plenty to both the English and American governments, he is the only actor in Hollywood who never beefs about his income tax. If all of Walter Pater's books were destroyed, bet Grace Moore could rewrite them from memory. Ray Milland is Hollywood's champion chess-player. Peas for the same pod: Extra-girl Dorothy Bradshaw and Rosalind Russell.

Must have been an awful shock to Adolphe Menjou when an English fashion expert called Hollywood males the most over-dressed men in the world. Tyrone Power's ancestors—four generations of 'em—have all been theatrical royalty. Anne Shirley invited everyone born on the seventeenth of April to join her birthday club—and her secretary is dizzy answering her mail. Jimmy Cagney says that you are a Hollywood success when you try to buy a shirt for one-ninety-eight and the clerk refuses to believe you. One word description of Gladys Swarthout: voc-al-luring.

Eleanore Whitney would appreciate suggestions—the kid sister insists on wearing the Whitney gowns and jewels to high school parties. Guess no one ever thought to tell Paul Kelly that actors should be poor business men—his fruit ranch pays him a nice annual profit. Wonder why so many screen comedians are habitual grouches in private life? Joan Blondell is an aero-phobiac—the plane made a forced landing on her flight and she has never forgotten her panic. Answers to your question: Yeah, Mae West walks that way off-screen, too!

Dropped in to see a friend who edits a string of fan magazines and noted that while the walls of his office were covered with the autographed portraits of famous stars, the place of honor was awarded to the photograph of an amazingly beautiful young girl whose signature I did not recognize. I commented on her charm and suggested that she should be in pictures. "Not by a damsite!" the editor informed me savagely. 'That photograph hangs on my office wall as a salve to my conscience. I have been responsible for bringing 17 contest winners to Hollywood. Sixteen of them refused to go home and I don't like to think of the heartbreaks and misadventures they have had in this town. That girl is the seventeenth—the only one who had sense enough to go back home and finish her schooling!"

Out in the San Fernando Valley, where a new movie colony is springing up, the main highway passes under a huge stone arch—and in the crevices of the stones a squadron of swallows have built their nests. A few days ago people living near the arch noticed that the birds were wildly excited about something and, investigating the noisy disturbance, discovered that dozens of gopher snakes had scaled the arch to raid the nests. "It was the darndest thing I ever saw," one of the deputies in the nearby sheriff's sub-station told me this morning.

"That arch was fairly alive with squirming snakes. I received three telephone calls before I would believe it and go up there. You see, with all those movie actors living up there, I figured . . . well, you know . . ." Yeah, I know.

Irene Dunne is the despair of Hollywood's sensation-loving fan magazine writers, who unanimously pronounce her the "worst copy" in town. She lives without the least ostentation, never does anything spectacular, and refuses to discuss her private affairs. Not in the least a Garbo, she is invariably gracious to interviewers and no matter how personal their questions, never loses her patience. If she does not wish to answer a question, she softens her refusal so tactfully that the reporter goes away respecting her attitude and feeling a bit like a heel for having attempted to intrude on her privacy. The answers that she does give are always so sane that they fall far short of headline punch. "I don't know why I can't get a decent story from her," a writer once wailed to me. "Unless maybe," he added after a moment's thought, "it's because she's a lady!"

"Wind" Script Done.

Sidney Howard, Pulitzer play prize winner, following four weeks of conferences with David O. Selznick and George Cukor, has completed the final shooting script on Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind." Howard plans to return to the East within the next few days.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Wandering Washingtonian Sees Singapore Movies And Has Vivid, Globe-Trotting Memories Recalled

Hollywood Product Moves National Geographic Official to Take His Pen in Hand on Other Side of World; Former Champs Lend Punch to 'Big City;' Stage Bill Changed; News Notes, Gossip of Theater.

THERE seems to be scant occasion to pity those wandering the far places of the earth because of any imaginary deprivation they may be undergoing in the matter of motion picture entertainment. Travel, both literally and figuratively, broadens the horizon and lends an added "wallop" to Hollywood's glamorous gelatin output. To prove it, I quote another letter from that inveterate globe-trotter, Maynard Owen Williams, airmailed under date of August 10 to Amsterdam, Holland, and thence steamship to New York and rail to Washington, from the S. S. Thedens, Batavia-bound.

BELL.

Dear Nelson Bell: No, I don't spend all my time acting snail-eye for your necessarily sedentary drama desk, but consider travel as a preparation for movie-going.

"Captains Courageous," for instance; grand entertainment, a Hollywood product worthy of export to Singapore. And it reminded me of a rich man's son, soaked to the skin despite his oilskins, and standing at the helm of the Bowdoin, with half the water between Greenland and Labrador surging over the slippery decks. His father came down to Wiscasset in his private car to meet him. Spencer Tracy and Freddie Bartholomew were repeating a performance I had seen in real life between Macmillan's first mate, Ralph Robinson, and Ken Rawson, who came to be one of Admiral Byrd's right-hand men in Little America.

Simultaneously, in Singapore, Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald were playing "Maytime" and we heard the mighty boom of Don Cossack singing against a background of church spires like upturned beets. It took me back to Moscow, 1917, with Barbushka and Kerensky in the Winter Palace, instead of the Tsars.

There were very few American writers in Russia then. The knowing ones spent their time in the Smolny Institute, where a lot of unknowns who called themselves Bolsheviks were at work. But I had just come in from China and in the Church of the Redeemer, with its incomparable view of the Kremlin down the river, I first heard such extraordinary bass singing as goes with swinging censors, bulbous, glittering crowns and stoles of cloth of gold. The Russian church, so soon to be criticized, was spreading its matchless pageantry under the solemn, sorrowful gaze of Christus Pantocrator. Who, without such a memory, could get the ultimate thrill out of the Cossack singing in "Maytime?"

Paramount has its director and men out here ready to make another jungle picture and are asking—as though there were chances of success in the plea—for another Dorothy Lamour. And I have been movie cameraman in a comedy that is full of laughs—a cat-and-dog-fight between a tiger cub and a gibbon—with plenty of kick and bite and tail-pulling, but an indispensable generosity of good humor. The fight went to 10 rounds without a drop of blood or a burst of ill temper.

Bowl of cherries or not, life seems to be just a succession of movies. Best wishes, of course, (Signed) WILLIAMS.

A trip to the Arctic and another to the other side of the globe seems a bit stiff as a course of sprouts preparatory to watching a wiggle picture, but apparently it is worth it.

• • • •

Of further interest to the National Capital is Mr. Williams' postscript: "'Doc' Bill Mann is now steaming toward Colombo with a grand collection of reptiles, birds and beasts for the National Zoological Park and I'm headed back to the Celebes on National Geographic work. And that word 'National' reminds me to express the hope that the legitimate theater adjacent to your supply of scratch paper, handouts and glossy photographs of those so beautiful that they have to prove it, will enjoy another distinguished season—you lucky occupant of an aisle seat in Row D!"

Probably what Mr. Williams really is going back to the Celebes for is to renew his quest for that Katharine Cornell princess in "Wingless Victory."

One begins to suspect that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has reached a final conclusion that it is pretty big in the motion picture industry. Well, it is. But what I have in mind is that only the big find it comfortably possible to kid themselves. This, M-G-M now does in most lusty fashion in a set of cartoon embellishments of the main titles and "The End" tag of "Big City," previewed by the drama desks in the refrigerated private projection room of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film Exchange yesterday afternoon. I especially commend to those with reachable risibilities the line-drawing of Leo, the Lion, as he stands adjacent to the finis-fadeout of the picture. Watch for it, when "Big City" opens on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater on Friday.

There is more to "Big City" than the incidental cartoons, however. It is the first costellar vehicle for the divergent talents of Luise Rainer and Spencer Tracy—the one, an ingenuous and ethereal sort of actress; the other, a player whose forte has never been anything that might reasonably be described as gossamer delicacy. Their contrasting talents have been well harmonized in this exciting subject, with Tracy as a warring taxi driver, embroiled in a battle to the death between the honest drivers and a rival gang of racketeering hoodlums, and Miss Rainer as his frightened young wife. They are supported by a cast that is all "names," including 15 of the foremost figures of the prize fight and wrestling rings.

The manner in which these sports figures are introduced into the climax of the action is the surprise of the picture and a source of some of its most effective comedy. When Jack Dempsey, "Man Mountain" Dean, Jim Jeffires, George Godfrey, Jimmie McLarnin, Gus Sonnenberg, Taski Hagio, "Bull" Montana and the rest of the boys swing into their stuff down on the steamship pier, it is something to watch—and I don't mean out of the corner of the eye!

• • • •

Speaking of fights—as we just were, by implication—that enterprising independent Washington showman, Sidney B. Lust, swings from the ankle and announces that complete pictures of the Monday night Joe Louis-Tommy Farr fracas will be on view in his Cameo Theater, Mount Rainier, Md., beginning tonight at 6 and running until midnight. Beginning tomorrow, these ringside pictures, showing the full 15 rounds, blow by blow, will be shown from noon to midnight, every hour on the hour.

Dots and Dashes.

The bill in which he is appearing in New York having proved such a hit that it is being continued for a second week, Cookie Bowers, an impersonator and character comedian well known to Washington audiences, will not be able to appear at the Capitol on Friday . . . His place on the incoming bill will be taken by Lew Parker & Co., in "The Foolies of 1937" . . . Then, of course, there will be that incendiary Gallic comedienne, Fifi D'Orsay, in the headline spot . . . And Johnny Perkins, continuing as chief comic and master of ceremonies . . . You will get your Cookie later . . . Anyhow, you couldn't eat it and have it, too! . . . One would think that Paul Robeson's renown as a singer would have spread to the ears of all theatergoers by now, but seemingly not . . . There was the man at the Metropolitan the other night, for instance, who had just seen "King Solomon's Mines," in which Robeson sings three splendid songs, and commented on his way out: "That colored fellow has a pretty good voice. Wonder who he is?" . . . Well, fame, so I hear, is like that . . . Sorry to have been compelled to have missed Gene Ford's farewell party at the Willard Monday night . . . It was the big show of the year, so they tell me . . . No more than Gene deserved, at that . . . Even so, I don't know whether he deserved that male sextet or not—Barron, Somerville, Meakin, Lohmeyer, Perkins and Bell (no relation) . . . Gosh!

• • • •

Sour-Grapes Note.

As I contemplate that six-manpower sextet in my mind's eye—if any—a couple of "Goshes!"

'William Galloway' in Film Debut

While "Shades of 'The Iron Horse'" may seem to some the proper caption for this picture, the antique locomotive forming the background for Frances Dee, Joel McCrea and Director Frank Lloyd is the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad's engine, "William Galloway," built in 1837 and now being used in films for the first time in "Wells Fargo," screen epic of early American transportation. It could do with a bit of streamlining!

U. S. Embargo Against Japan Urged by C.I.O.

Bonus Also Demanded for Marine Workers in War Zone.

By the United Press.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—The Committee for Industrial Organization's maritime conference, representing 68,000 marine workers, tonight called upon the United States Government to enforce an economic embargo against Japan, and declared marine workers should be paid a bonus if forced to sail in war-zone waters.

By a unanimous vote, the representatives of seven maritime unions expressed "their great sympathy with the Chinese people and their defense against the illegal and unjustified invasion of China by the Japanese government."

In what appeared to be authorization of a recent threat to call "sit down" strikes on vessels carrying munitions in the war zone unless crew members are paid bonuses, the resolution urged "all maritime workers and their unions to do everything possible to assist the Chinese people and to protest the Japanese invasion of China and adopt such measures in their unions as they see fit and will lead to realization of these aims."

The six-point resolution, sent to Secretary of State Hull and President Roosevelt, also asserted that "American vessels should not be restricted from calling into Chinese ports unless they are also restricted from Japanese ports while Japan is the aggressor nation."

The conference, held to formulate plans for amalgamation of all maritime unions into one big C. I. O. affiliate with a potential membership of 600,000, which could bargain on a national scale, recessed late today until tomorrow after appointing a policy committee to draft a program.

Members of the committee are Jack Lawrenson, New York, representing National Maritime Union; C. W. Deal, San Francisco, Inland Boatmen's Union of the Pacific; Ray McArdle, San Francisco, Marine Firemen, Oilers, Watertenders and Wipers of the Pacific; Frank Hamer, New York, Apprentice Engineers Association; Martin Oleson, Seattle, Federated Fishermen's Council of the Pacific, and William Lonergin, San Francisco, Marine Cooks and Stewards Association of the Pacific.

Coolies Lured to Slaughter, Returning American Charges

Told China Had Won and Urged to Go to Peiping, Where They Were Mowed Down by Japanese, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

Seattle, Aug. 31.—Frank L. Keith, Chicago, arriving today from Shanghai, said Chinese coolies had been slaughtered by Japanese soldiers after being lured to Peiping with reports China had won the Sino-Jap war.

"Japanese painted the undersides of their planes black, like the markings on Chinese planes," the painting contractor said. "Then they dropped thousands of handbills saying China had won the war and urging coolies to go to Peiping. When they appeared near Peiping they were slaughtered with machine guns."

Keith was in an International Settlement hotel which was struck by bombs August 17.

"I went to an airport where there had been a battle," he related. "An American Red Cross nurse attempted to go in the field to render aid, but was driven off at the point of a gun by Japanese soldiers.

"She was told that the Japanese would take care of their wounded and they would allow no one to aid the Chinese."

Another passenger, Miss Betty Chandler, Eugene, Oreg., an exchange student at Lingnan University, told of sleeping in the baseball pavilion at the embassy in Peiping at night and caring for soldiers in the daytime.

"The Japanese wouldn't let the Chinese Red Cross go out on the battlefields," she said, "so we had to go to the gate with bandages for the wounded who could walk that far, and then we'd help them to the hospitals. The others died where they fell outside the city."

Miss Hilma Berglund, St. Paul, Minn., school teacher, had just moved into the Palace Hotel in Shanghai the day it was bombed.

She told of the "abnormal quiet" which followed the bombing, and the rush to escape down a stairway.

"The wounded and dying were along the stairway and in the lobby," she said.

"But all through the uproar I heard but one woman scream. It was almost too calm."

C. I. O. Chief Backs Reorganization

The United Federal Workers of America, a C. I. O. affiliate, believes "that the adjustment committees of its local unions provide the proper degree of democracy within the administration of the Government service," it was said in a radio address last night by Jacob Baker, U. F. W. A. president.

This, he stressed, should be recognized in any contemplated reorganization of the Government service. "Government reorganization must draw upon the experience, the knowledge and the understanding of the employes who do the work of government.

"In addition, the plan must also give Federal employes reassurances regarding tenure, salary and transfers. Because of the fact that reorganization can be used to broaden the democratic process, to improve workers' morale, to increase the benefits that public service conveys to its citizens, the (U. F. W. A.) wholeheartedly supports the President's general plan of reorganization of the Government."

Japan Clears Shantung for Major Attack

Evacuation of Province Ordered; Saturday Is Deadline.

By the United Press.

Tsingtao, Aug. 31.—A Japanese invasion of Shantung Province within a week appeared certain tonight.

"Every person with a single drop of Japanese blood in his veins" was ordered out of the province by 8 a. m. of September 4 by the Japanese authorities.

The Japanese consulate will be closed immediately and its personnel evacuated to Japan.

The Japanese naval landing party will be withdrawn and huge Japanese cotton mills and other investments, valued at more than 300,000,000 yen (about $90,000,000) abandoned.

Sweeping Decision.

The decision is the most sweeping since Japan abandoned her concession at Hankow, her former stronghold in the middle Yangtze River valley, earlier this month.

All Japanese warships will depart except a single destroyer.

More than 500 Americans in Tsingtao—a popular summer resort—and scores of other Occidentals, were seeking passage on department ships.

Chinese expected Japanese air bombers to attack the city immediately after the 8 a. m. deadline Saturday.

Chinese authorities notified United States Consul Samuel Sobokin and other foreign representatives that all travel permits into Shantung and south Hopei Province cities were suspended.

U. S. Missionaries Remain.

It was reported that a number of American missionaries still were remaining in Tsinanfu, the provincial capital, and other points, which are directly in the line of the Japanese attack now rolling southward along the Tientsin-Pukow-Nanking Railway from Tientsin.

Last advices were that the Chinese first-defense positions were north of the Shantung border, around Techow, in southern Hopei Province. The Chinese armies there, however, were expected to fall back to the south bank of the Yellow River.

Japanese Hope To Win Chinese By Propaganda

Fair Wages, Fair Prices and Flattery Formula for Conquered People.

Editor's note: The chief of the United Press Bureau in Peiping, long a resident of Japan and North China, describes in the following dispatch the detailed program of "thought-control" and "patriotic education" which the Japanese army is imposing on the conquered areas of North China.

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

Peiping, Aug. 31.—The Japanese army marches in North China with a sword in its right hand and a propaganda textbook in its left.

Its leaders admit this.

They believe, sincerely, that the vast propaganda organization they are creating in the areas they have conquered is for the good of the Chinese people—that it will make them a more prosperous, healthier and happier people.

First steps were the ruthless destruction of known centers of the "anti-Japanese movement," such as the burning of the American-supported Nankai University in Tientsin, the dissolution of all centers of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek's "New Life Movement," and the execution of leaders of such semi-Fascist Chinese organizations as the "Blue Shirts," radical student societies, and the "Dare-to-Die" corps.

These were followed by organization of pro-Japanese local governments in the conquered cities and villages and "suggestions"—which hardly were needed by the long-suffering Chinese—that the Rising Sun flag of Japan be flown on all buildings and residences.

The Japanese army's formula is to win the civilian population by paying fair wages for the thousands of laborers they are employing, fair prices for huge supplies which they are buying, and to promise an immediate establishment of sound currency and a drastic reduction in taxes which have been a crushing burden on all northern Chinese for decades.

Chinese who refuse to be "friendly" to Japan are shot or exiled.

All the proper rules of Oriental decorum are followed and Chinese sensibilities are soothed by elaborate statements praising the "misguided heroism" of Chinese soldiers who have fallen in battle. Monuments to the Chinese dead will be erected by the Japanese on such bloody fields as the Nankow Pass.

Not Guilty Is Plea In Widow's Slaying

Pleading not guilty to an indictment charging him with slaying Mrs. Henrietta Anderson, Veterans Administration clerk and mother of three children, William (Major) McAffee, 60-year-old colored janitor, was remanded to jail yesterday to await trial.

He was arraigned before Justice F. D. Letts.

The charge against McAffee is that he used a furnace shaker to beat to death Mrs. Anderson on a Sunday afternoon several weeks ago. The man was arrested shortly after discovery of the slaying. After questioning at Police Headquarters, he allegedly admitted his guilt.

Eight Missionaries Kidnaped by Polite Chinese Guerrillas

United Press Staff Writer.

Peiping (Wednesday), Sept. 1.—A hundred polite Chinese guerrilla bandits, who presented calling cards and "acted like gentlemen" according to their captives, fled into the hills northwest of Peiping early today with eight foreign missionaries from the French Mariste Mission. Rumors of a "large ransom" were current here.

The bandits, eluding a detachment of Japanese soldiers went to rescue the missionaries, had departed during the night after releasing one captive to go to Peiping and supposedly present terms for ransom.

Women Subjugated By Nomadic Soviets In Arctic Kingdoms

Moscow, Aug. 31 (AP).—Nomad Soviets of the Siberian tundra were criticized today by the official Communist newspaper Pravda for holding womenfolk in subjugation and for favoring the owners of large reindeer herds.

The newspaper accused the Samoyede tribal leaders of assuming the airs of Oriental princelings in their frigid realm in the Arctic Circle.

Zakhar Spiridonoff, chairman of one of the five Khatanga Soviets, was formerly a Yakutsk province tribal chieftain and Pravda asserted he still received like a prince in tribal huts, called "chums," with reindeer hides spread before him.

"Women don't dare speak in his presence," said Pravda.

The chairman of another nomad Soviet allowed his tribe to send a woman alone into the tundra tied to a reindeer team to die in 58-degree below temperatures—all because she quit her husband.

Dutch Queen Honored Amid Japanese Shells

Shanghai, Aug. 31 (AP).—American and other Occidental warships trailed gay streamers and flags today on Shanghai's waterfront in peaceful celebration of the fifty-seventh birthday of Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, while Japanese warships down the Whangpoo rained death on Chinese land concentration a few miles north of Shanghai.

Warships Speed From Gibraltar

Gibraltar, Aug. 31 (AP).—Two British warships left Gibraltar tonight, sailing full speed in an easterly direction. The reason for the unexpected departure was not disclosed, but presumably it was in connection with the Spanish war naval incidents (interference with merchant shipping in the Mediterranean).

The ships were the flotilla leader Hardy and the Hyperion. A special patrol before sailing called at cafes and bars to round up the crew.

SEC Man Denies Poaching on States

Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 31 (AP). Robert E. Healy, member of the Securities and Exchanges Commission, told the National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners today that the commission has "no desire to intrude upon that large province of supervision and regulation which is yours."

He urged interchange of ideas and information.

The holding company act of 1935, he said, was intended to supplement State regulation by giving a Federal agency jurisdiction over uncontrolled holding companies.

'Big Apple' Due At Boulevard Farms Friday

Super-Master of Ceremonies to Call Turns for the New Dance.

By Chanticleer

The "Big Apple" is here. Yes, sir, you've heard about it in the newspapers, over the radio and all about the town. But the first big Washington debut comes off Friday night at Boulevard Farms. Up from the deep, deep South, suh, comes the "Big Apple," a new dance sensation developed by the real Southern colored folk.

Boulevard Farms is calling in a master of ceremonies of unusual abilities for this big event, not an ordinary emmcee but a gent who has mastered all the intricacies of the "Big Apple" and can call the turns as fast as they're performed.

If you want to be a big appler, you'll be on hand for the fun Friday night at the spot on the Mount Vernon highway, just below Alexandria.

Welcome to a new regime at Stone Villa, also not so far out the Mount Vernon highway, where the new management has announced a new policy of star entertainment and already has put Don Lane and his orchestra on the floor for your dancing. Some stellar attractions are promised for Stone Villa in the near future.

A top floor show is on view at Maryland Club Gardens this week, headed by Dave Barnum, barytone and comedian. Not only is the show okay but for a cooling and thoroughly delightful evening (under the stars, if you like) the Gardens just aren't bettered in these parts. You can have anything you like to eat and the floor is yours for dancing.

You'll notice the effectiveness of gestures in the work of a dance team when you see Rosita and Fontana on the Shoreham's Terrace. As a matter of fact, each has appeared on the screen a number of times and Rosita has done some radio work. They say they have had signal success because they try to please the guest rather than themselves.

Auto Salesmen's Union Will Ask Closed Shop

The constitution, by-laws, and permanent officers of the union will be voted on by all members paying the necessary $2 initiation fee and first month's dues of $1.50. A closed shop contract with dealers in Washington is sought by the union.

Sanity Witness Shot, Subject Of Test Held

Torment Following Acquittal Leads to Shooting, Police Say.

Angry because he had to take a sanity test, Charles Joseph Kelly, 34-year-old restaurant employe, of the 700 block Sixth street northwest, yesterday shot and wounded a former neighbor, who helped commit him for observation police said.

The wounded man is David F. Poole, 52, of 1320 Tenth street northwest, who lies in Emergency Hospital after being shot in the neck.

Last week, police said, Poole and his wife and Kelly's wife signed papers that sent Kelly to Gallinger Hospital for a sanity test.

Kelly Adjudged Sane.

Psychiatrists found Kelly sane and he was released.

Police quoted Kelly as saying that when he returned to work in a downtown restaurant, he was tormented by his fellow workers, and became so despoondent he requested a transfer to Baltimore. In Baltimore, the police quoted Kelly as saying, he bought a revolver and returned to this city determined to question Poole about the sanity test.

The officers said Kelly early yesterday hid in Poole's garage. When Poole entered and refused to explain, they said, Kelly shot him.

Found in Poole Home.

Policemen L. I. Mason and E. C. Helms, of the Second Precinct, found Kelly in the kitchen of Poole's home. Last night Kelly was being held for investigation.

Kelly, his wife and child at one time lived next door to the Pooles. When they separated several weeks ago, Mrs. Kelly took a room in the Poole home. Recently Mrs. Kelly obtained a position with a woman attorney in Alexandria and moved into her home.

Prior to that, police say, Kelly called at the Poole home and demanded that his wife return to live with him. Police were called and ordered him to stay away from the house.

New Delay Likely In Teacher's Trial In Abduction Case

Mrs. Marion W. Campbell, Washington school teacher arrested July 19 for allegedly abducting a 20-month-old Beltsville, Md., child, will not be tried on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor until the grand jury acts on the abduction charge, it was indicated last night by Alan Bowie, State's attorney for Prince Georges County.

Mrs. Campbell has been granted two continuances on the driving charge. She was to have been tried today, but it was understood another postponement would be granted because of the woman's "nervous condition."

G-Man C. H. Shreve Gets Democratic Clubs Post

A Washington Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, Charles H. Shreve, was appointed liaison officer of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, it was announced yesterday.

A founder of the California Young Democratic Clubs and employed by the Department of Justice for four years, Shreve during the 1932 Presidential campaign staged receptions for President Roosevelt at the Hollywood Bowl and Los Angeles Coliseum.

2 'Cleaning' Agents Defraud Matron of Wearing Apparel

Two neat-appearing young men, claiming they represented a cleaning and dyeing firm, yesterday persuaded Mrs. Charles E. Williams, of 5215 Kansas avenue northwest, "to try their store."

The woman's husband reported to police the men came to their home and departed with two pairs of riding breeches and two dresses.

Mrs. Williams, police stated, later found out that the concern was no longer in business.

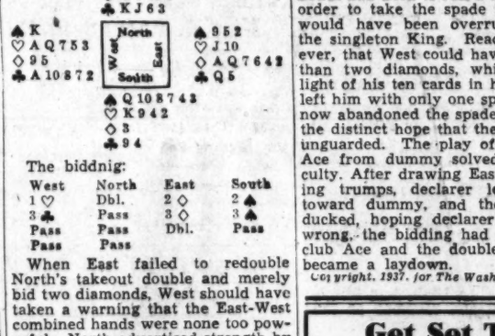
Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Too Many Bids.

Generally speaking, Bridge players bid too much and too often. They lose sight of the fact that every bid reveals certain information about their own hand not only to partner but to the opponents. Consider the repercussions of West's bidding in the following hand:

West, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.
Match point duplicate.



The biddnig:

West	North	East	South
1 ♡	Dbl.	2 ◇	2 ♠
3 ♣	Pass	3 ◇	3 ♠
Pass	Pass	Dbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

When East failed to redouble North's takeout double and merely bid two diamonds, West should have taken a warning that the East-West combined hands were none too powerful. North advertised strength by his takeout double and South by his free bid of two spades. With the vulnerability conditions what they were, it was hardly possible that North-South would "sell out" when they held the superior spade suit. Thus West's three club bid was practically a futile gesture. The opponents would either be very fond of clubs and receive the bid with open arms or, if they did not like it, would go on with their superior spade suit. The three club bid, following the opening bid of one heart, virtually marked West with ten cards in hearts and clubs and made declarer's play for three spades much easier. Of course, East's final penalty double was close, but was not greatly to be censured considering West's show of strength in two suits and, further, considering that North, after his original double, had failed to take action.

West opened the top diamond, the ten lost to the Queen, and the Jack and ten of hearts were returned, declarer not covering. West overtook the second heart and made the best return of a low heart. Dummy's spade Jack was used to ruff this. When East did not overruff, the conclusion that he could not was quite reasonable. The diamond King was played and, East not covering, declarer discarded his remaining heart. Now it was a question of trapping the spade King. If South had tried to ruff a diamond in order to take the spade finesse, he would have been overruffed with the singleton King. Reading, however, that West could have no more than two diamonds, which in the light of his ten cards in his bid suit left him with only one spade, South now abandoned the spade finesse on the distinct hope that the King was unguarded. The play of the spade Ace from dummy solved the difficulty. After drawing East's remaining trumps, declarer led a club toward dummy, and though West ducked, hoping declarer would go wrong, the bidding had placed the club Ace and the doubled contract became a laydown.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Ill Mother With Spoiled, Precocious Child Seeks Suitable School: Vacationists Ask Clothes Advice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a 27-year-old mother and have a daughter almost 5. I have been in ill-health for more than three years, one year of which I spent in a sanitarium. I am the type of person who worries a great deal, have no patience with children and am very nervous. My daughter is in excellent health, but is very headstrong and self-willed. Her mental development is several years ahead of her actual age, according to a psychologist who examined her.

While I was in the hospital, she spent the year in a preventorium, where she received excellent care and training. Since then she has been with several relatives and as a result has been badly spoiled. She insists on doing as she pleases, and if she doesn't get her own way she cries and carries on until, in desperation, I give in to her—for my own sake and for the sake of neighbors living in the same apartment building.

* * * *

I am planning to make my home in Washington this fall and would like to know if there are any schools where one might place a child of this type. If possible, I would prefer a Catholic institution. I hate to take such a step but feel that it would be best for the child and for myself. I am practically on the verge of a nervous breakdown and know that all this is very bad for the child besides. She is growing nervous and irritable, too. I could pay a small amount for her room and board. Any suggestions you make will be appreciated. Very sincerely,

WORRIED MOTHER.

* * * *

Needs Calm Control.

DEAR WORRIED MOTHER: You have undoubtedly made the right decision about placing your daughter in a school where she can have a better ordered life. Nothing is so important to a child's later adjustment to life as to be reared in an atmosphere of stability and tranquillity. If your own physical handicaps are such that you cannot give your child such surroundings, you owe it to her to place her where she can receive understanding control and calm direction.

* * * *

The precocious child, such as your daughter appears to be, is especially in need of scientific educational supervision. Such a child needs sympathy and encouragement, but it also needs mental and social discipline. If the latter are not received, its natural talents are likely to be wasted or even lead to disaster.

* * * *

The National Catholic Welfare Conference, 1312 Massachusetts avenue, tells me that there are Catholic schools to meet your needs. I suggest that you confer with Mr. James E. Cummings, assistant director of the education department, concerning such institutions. M. H.

Clothes for Cruise.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Two other girls and myself are taking a 13-day cruise to Miami and Havana, the cruise consisting of 6½ days at sea, 5 days in Miami and 1½ days in Havana. Never having taken a trip like this, we find it a problem as to just what kind of clothes will be appropriate, since it will be a sort of in-between season. We sail from New York September 29, arrive in Miami October 2. Returning, we leave Miami October 9, arriving back in New York October 12. We realize that fall clothes will be needed in New York, but as for the rest of the trip we do not know if summer clothes, which we are now wearing, would be appropriate. Naturally, we are trying to cut down expenses and would like to make the clothes that we already have do.

* * * *

I have a two-piece, three-quarter-length coat—it really is a spring suit—also a two-piece jigger suit; the coat, hip-length, is a powder blue, the skirt a cruise blue. I also have a two-piece knitted dress which I made myself, the color being cruise blue. I believe it could be worn with the three-quarter-length dark blue coat. I was wondering if any of the above would be suitable for the first day of sailing from New York.

* * * *

We have heard so many different stories as to how they dress on the boat that we are still not at ease. Some say shorts, slacks, etc., in the day, very formal in the evenings; others say sport clothes during the day, informal in the evenings. Any advice you can give us as to the kind of clothes needed and the number of each, will be appreciated.

Sincerely, THREE GIRLS.

* * * *

DEAR THREE GIRLS: On such a trip as you contemplate your summer clothes may be used to good advantage with possibly a few new purchases which will do duty at home later this fall.

* * * *

Miss Ethel Ehlen, The Post fashion editor, to whom I have referred your inquiries, says that the two suits and the knitted dress would not only be suitable for the first day of sailing but for many other occasions during the cruise. You will also need summer clothes for Miami and Havana, she says, and she suggests that sun-back dresses be included for such wear. You will need bathing suits for Miami and also on shipboard if there is a pool on the ship.

* * * *

Miss Ehlen says you should also have an afternoon dress of some kind, such as black crepe or satin. If you do not have a suitable one, such a purchase might fit in with your fall clothes planning. Evening dresses will be needed for dancing. On many ships, formal dress is worn in the evening. Sports clothes are generally preferred during the day to shorts and slacks, though the latter are not taboo.

* * * *

One seasoned vacationist of both land and water tells me she has solved the evening dress problem in a way compatible with light baggage. She has one basic dark taffeta dress, floor length, and several short decorative jackets of assorted styles and fabrics. By varying her jackets, she gives the effect of having several evening dresses.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Tomorrow's Letters.

A recent letter by J. F. D. in this column questioning the value of a modern girl's retaining the old-fashioned moral standards has aroused a storm of comment by readers. Many letters have been received from men. Tomorrow, letters presenting the masculine viewpoint on this problem will be presented.

Silver Fox Jackets New for Evenings

Paris (U.P.).—Jackets of silver fox are the newest of designs for afternoon and evening wear, and the loveliest of evening wraps are floor-length coats of luxurious skins. Single or double pelts encircle the arms of the new fox evening coats, harmonizing with the graceful sweep of floor-length skirts which spread to fullness from fitted waistlines.

Fox capes of various lengths from brief shoulder designs to more elaborate knee-length types are distinctive, and ermine forms exquisite evening wraps of brief or long cape design.

Black furs are favored for afternoon, but brown is being shown for wear with bright colors and for sports wear for the coming season.

Past Glamour Revived in New Jewelry

The "Joan of Arc" necklace and bracelet, of medieval inspiration, in antique silver-finished metal, studded with nailhead-like ornaments; designed by Alberta. Smart accents for your new dark fall frock or to accompany tailored or dressy suits.

By Ethel Ehlen,
The Post Fashion Editor.

JEWELRY, not to be outdone by dress, has gone romantic and glamorous. Practically all of the jewelry being sponsored for fall and winter wear—and jewelry is a necessary accessory for the new gowns—has been inspired by famous personages of history. Such romantic figures as Empress Carlotta, wife of the ill-fated Emperor Maximillian; Joan of Arc, Grand Duchesses whose jewels were of such importance as to have been remembered, and elegant ladies of the Gay Nineties are being immortalized in smart pieces of costume jewelry to grace twentieth century costumes.

Clips are larger than ever this fall and extremely popular for both daytime and evening. They are worn at the throatline of the new high-necked street dresses and accented with wide bracelets of matching design. Massive-looking necklaces of gold and silver colored metals accompany both low and high necklines. These often are echoed in one or several wide bracelets, harmonizing in decorative design and theme.

For evening, jewelry is definitely elegant. Huge brooches are placed at the lowered V-neckline. Multi-colored gems, which have the hues and tints, color and fire of precious stones, made into necklaces, bracelets, clips and long earrings, appear on both dark and light formal gowns of diverse materials.

Much of the latest costume jewelry is designed to do double duty, and may be worn either with tailored clothes or afternoon costumes. This, of course, depends upon the material and styling of the frock or suit and the design, and material of which the jewelry is fashioned. The fall and winter jewelry is as versatile as it is distinctive and unusually smart.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Aug. 31.

WE ARE about to plunge up to the earlobs in the darnedest mayoralty race this politics-maddened crossroad has ever known. No less than three thoroughly masculine candidates are pawing and snorting at the starting line.

ALICE HUGHES.

The peppery little incumbent, Fiorello LaGuardia, is up for a return trip. United States Senator Copeland bears the Tammany flag into battle. Judge Jerry Mahoney is anti-Tammany and pro-New Deal. The whole scene is confusion and ramage, like Shanghai on a quiet day, and we lady voters are already in a sizable dither. None of the candidates is a movie Dream Man, but it is possible that we may have to fall back on Policies, or even Principles, if we can find any!

There is another factor in the picture, and a lady. Miss Dorothy Frooks, one of our interesting citizens, has been coming out for public offices, ranging from President right on down the line, since she was a schoolgirl in 1912, and this year she is reported to have elected to make the race for mayor. Miss Frooks is said to feel that all this scramble in the three-horse race will give her a chance to corral the feminine vote, and so enable her to move into the Town Hall when the shooting and hollering die down.

* * * *

She is probably a mite over-optimistic. Our experience to date proves that the sisterhood will cling to the various party lines or else cravenly mark the ballot the way papa says. The only really handsome candidate, Grover Whalen, has withdrawn to keep on with his job of heading our World's Fair, so there will be no strictly emotional vote. But in spite of Miss Frooks' zeal, I guess one of the boys will get in, after a historic fracas!

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—September 1 is as good a time as any, probably better, to report to you that our vaunted nightlife has begun to hum brightly, even before the electric fans have stopped buzzing. The first shot was fired by the opening of the famed French Casino's new fall girl-and-laugh show, and it is one of the finest that great resort has yet housed. Tell father that the girls are exceptionally lovely—and that there is lots of really comical comedy . . .

* * * *

And John Rockefeller's lofty Rainbow room still seeks and finds entertainment novelty. That gorgeous tavern and dance hall already has offered a ping pong champion and a trick pony. Now it presents a badminton exhibition between Thelma Kingsbury and Kenneth Davidson. My goodness, what won't Jack think up next to titivate the visitors? . . .

* * * *

Elizabeth Cobb, daughter of Irvin S., and known to her pals as "Buff," is said to have sold her first play to Manager Max Gordon . . . And I hear that Marjorie, sister of movies' Ruby Keeler, is going to turn up here as a night-club performer this fall. Wonder if she taps like Mrs. Al Jolson? . . .

* * * *

Our health department has stirred up a fairly frantic pother by saying that a family of five on relief can live for a week on food costing $7.80. The figures were compiled by Miss Pauline Murrah, the department's nutrition expert. Dozens took their pens in hand and wrote to the editors saying it just wasn't so—that such a sum would barely support five mice, not men. But Miss Murrah sticks gallantly to her story. Does sound like mightly little.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Tuberculin Test.

School makes the first serious competitive demands on the individual who must make his way in the world somehow. Unfortunate as it may be for some that challenge of competition must be met. Those who are constitutionally inferior, or who have a particular defect, small or great, must meet it just the same as the robust and the strong.

One of the insidious and often unsuspected defects which tends to pull down the efficiency, especially of the young, is tuberculosis. If discovered in time much may be done to aid and protect the particular under-par individual who is under par for this reason. If taken in time the defect may be entirely eradicated.

These facts are the basis for tuberculin testing which has now become so common in our public schools all over the country.

Puzzling to Parents.

I have no doubt parents are puzzled by this new fangled idea. And it is impossible not to have a great deal of sympathy with them. However, I believe that if the full significance of the second paragraph of this article is realized, a more favorable attitude toward the procedure will obtain.

Another thing to remember is that the present tuberculin known as P. P. D. (purified protein derivative) is a standardized non-sensitizing product that never causes any harm. This is not true of the old type tuberculin used in the old way. Those who remember ill effects from the use of tubeculin are recalling incidents of over 35 years ago.

The test is designed to show simply the presence of tuberculosis in the body. If positive it means that there has been tuberculosis infection; it does not tell where it is, or whether it is active or latent.

A good many thousand people have submitted to this test, and we now have the results of the first survey made by the National Tuberculosis Association. Since it involved 56,668 persons in 30 States and the District of Columbia, it shows the extent of tuberculosis in the United States.

Highest in Clinics.

As might be expected, the highest number of positive reactions were obtained in the clinic patients—where 53 per cent gave evidence of having, or once having had the disease. The lowest number of positive reactions were in the elementary school children, where 18 per cent were positive.

It has always been known that a larger number of adults reacted than children, because the disease may begin in childhood, then in most cases heal, still the immune bodies remain in the blood and cause a positive reaction.

If parental co-operation is possible undoubtedly a wide use of tuberculin testing in the elementary schools will result in a great advance in the treatment of this disease.

New Diet Urgent for Children Who Are Going Back to School

Vitamins Supplied by unshine in Summer Must Be Replaced by Right Foods When Winter Comes.

This is the first of a weekly series of articles by The Post Food Editor on food in its relation to child health.

By Jean Green.

STARTING to school means a new mode of living to children who have enjoyed an active outdoor life during the summer. This week is a good time to lay plans for making needed adjustments in their diet.

In the summer, outdoor appetities are keen and meals are eaten with a relish. While out in the sunshine there is opportunity to obtain a supply of the sunshine vitamin D.

JEAN GREEN.

After school starts, the menus must be doubly nourishing and empting. They must be planned to include proteins, minerals and vitamins needed for children's growth, and they must also supply the calories for play and study.

At the time the child is changing from an outdoor to an indoor existence, appetites are apt to wane. The excitement of starting to school makes meals uninteresting. To overcome this difficulty special thought should be given them to include surprises and favorite dishes served in a tempting fashion.

Regularity Advised.

In planning diets, nutritionists insist that meals should be served on a definite schedule. Regularity is important also, and even distribution of food quantities. For young children, one nutritionist advocates a rather equal distribution of calories. This means a nourishing breakfast with fruit, bowl of cooked or prepared cereal with top milk, an egg or easily digested protein dish, and toast.

In the flurry of getting off to school, the breakfast of older children is apt to be neglected. However, a calm unhurried breakfast is the start of a good school day. Midmorning fatigue and lack of concentration in classes is often the direct result of a breakfast-less day.

Almost as important as breakfast is a wholesome hot lunch. In many Washington schools, a nourishing lunch can be obtained at the school cafeteria. Unless sufficient calories are included on the breakfast and luncheon menu, the health value of the dietary will be below par. A huge after-school lunch and dinner do not make up for this upset.

Energy Needs Vary.

Dr. H. C. Sherman, of Columbus University, who is regarded as one of the best authorities on diet, considers it of vital importance that the child receive the proper type of food. He has found the energy requirement of children varies from year to year. He recommends that diets be high in whole cereals, milk, vegetables and fruits, with only a moderate quantity of fat, as fat retards digestion. He also stressed the use of butter for its rich vitamin A content.

About 15 per cent of the calories should be in the form of protein. This will include meats, fish, eggs, cheese and fowl. A quart of milk daily is recommended. This can be served in the morning as hot cocoa and in the afternoon for the after-school lunch as chocolate milk. These are foods that contain the minerals and vitamins. In planning for your winter menus include them. The growth, posture, teeth and development of your child are influenced to a large extent on the food consumed. Proper nutrition will give your daughter or son a better chance of having a happy and successful school year.

Next week: The pros and cons of spinach.

Transparent Plastic Used as Blanket Box

Foremost among summer problems is the storage of blankets and quilts. A large container of transparent plastic with beaded edges and lid neatly fastened with a ribbon, answers this question, at the same time protecting the contents from dust and moths, and revealing the blankets at a glance. Made in various sizes and shapes, transparent boxes are found convenient for table cloths and other linen as well. Placed on the shelves of the linen closet, they provide a handy means of keeping bed and table accessories fresh and clean.

End-of-Summer Party at Cuban Embassy for Tobacco Queen, Senorita Rosario de Blanck, Rivals Brilliant Winter Fetes

Heat Forgotten as Guests Succumb to Charm of Function.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

It can happen here—and it did. With Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga as host, there was staged at the Cuban Embassy yesterday an end-of-summer party that would have done honor to the social calendar even at the height of the winter season.

There, mind you, were a group of Washingtonians—official, diplomatic and residential—who had weathered the heat wave for most of the last three months, and so deft was the Ambassador's entertaining and so attractive was his guest of honor that the men and women who filed up the crimson-carpeted stairs forgot to mention, even to each other, that it looked as if winter would never come.

Dr. Fraga with Senorita Rosario de Blanck and her chaperon, Senora Duise Maria Alfonso, at his side received his guests in the second-floor drawing room. Huge vases of pink gladioli were arranged attractively in the suite of rooms to right and left and a bank of the same flowers was set against the broad mirror at the top of the stairway, contrasting nicely with the red carpet.

Guest of Honor Likes the Capital.

The guest of honor, who will leave this morning for South Boston, where she will officiate as queen of the 1937 tobacco festival, wore a powder blue crepe frock with net inserts and a modified bateau neckline. A statuesque brunette with wide eyes and a creamy complexion, Senorita de Rosario has found Washington "a surprisingly beautiful city," and she hopes she may have the opportunity to know more about it.

This enthusiasm is shared with Senora Alfonso, a pretty, petite woman, who has never before visited in Washington but once "went through here," and who proved herself a master of English as well as a charming woman. For the occasion she chose a chartreuse crepe frock, street-length, cut on simple lines.

A long buffet spread with dainties dear to both Latin-Americans and all the other guests was the center of attention. From 5:30, when the party began, until after 9 o'clock, when men and women who had collected in little groups to talk, remained to dance, crowds surged around the table to help themselves to sliced chicken, ham, turkey, paper-thin sandwiches, small cakes and hors d'ouevres. There was also a big bowl of the famous Latin-American dish, frijoles y arroz, or black beans and rice. At side tables cocktails to suit any taste and champagne were served for almost four hours while guests lingered on and on to enjoy one of the most successful cocktail parties of the summer.

Gloria Vanderbilt Among the Guests.

Among the guests were Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, in a tailored black frock and a broad-brimmed white hat, and her sister, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, of Washington. Chatting with them early during the party was Mrs. Pearson Rust, in a gray and white flowered frock and a small crownless turban, and Mrs. Campbell Pritchett. Joining the group later were Capt. William Ritchie, Ralph Snowden Hill and Laurence Bungardeanu, attache of the Rumanian Legation.

Also at the party were the Minister-Counselor of the French Embassy, Jules Henry; Mrs. Cordell Hull, in a black and white frock and a small black hat; the Ambassador of Ecuador, Capt. Kleijn Molekamp, the latter in a gray semitailored ensemble and a wide-brimmed navy blue hat; the Counselor of the Polish Embassy, Witold Wankowicz, and his daughter, Miss Irene Wankowicz, who will sail shortly for Poland and will return in a few months for her marriage this winter to Stanislaw Kazimierz Chosciak-Popile; the Counselor of the Czechoslovak Legation, Dr. Josef Nemecek.

Among others there were Mr. and Mrs. Preston McGoodwin, the latter in a black ensemble, and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Preston McGoodwin, jr.; the Counselor of the Mexican Embassy and his sister, Senorita Lutecia Quintanilla; the Secretary of the Yugoslavian Legation, Nikola Perazic and Mme. Perazic, who has just returned from Europe; Mrs. Harry Norment, the second Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy, Decio de Moura; the Commercial Counselor of the Brazilian Embassy, Paulo G. Hasslocher, who recently returned from a vacation in Minnesota, and the Financial Counselor of the Rumanian Legation, George Boncesco.

All members of the Cuban Embassy staff who are in town were on hand to assist the Ambassador in entertaining. Mingling with the guests was Senora de Valdes Rodriguez, wife of the Counselor of the Cuban Embassy, who wore a lovely gown of orchid chiffon over a sea-green slip, and who was an unofficial hostess.

ABOUT THE TOWN

With Dudley Harmon.

IF THIS "COLYUM" somewhat resembles a time table today, it's because goings and comings are about the only news there is in the social world this week. What parties there are these days are so small and informal that hostesses plead "Pul-leeze don't put anything about it in the paper."

But everybody seems to be on the move at present, either off somewhere for Labor Day, returning to Washington, or bound somewhere to "get away from it all." In another month or six weeks, however, they'll all be back again with added stamina for another of those Washington winters.

Southampton Visitors.

Traveling to Southampton this week-end are the Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Espil, who with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Warren, of Washington, will stay with Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis at their summer home, Bayberry Land. The Espils and the Warrens, who are all close friends, are summering at Narragansett, R. I.

The Davises, by the way, won't open their magnificent Foxhall road home here until about the middle of October. Mrs. Davis wants to be in Long Island for the wedding of her son, James Hopkins Smith, to Nancy Morgan, which will take place there the first of next month. As soon as she returns to the Capital, Mrs. Davis will have a big job on her hands to get ready the art gallery which she and Mrs. George Garrett are to launch at the Metropolitan Club.

The Fleming Newbolds will wave a reluctant farewell to England on September 18, when they sail from there with their daughter, Miss Nancy Newbold. They have been spending two weeks with Hebert Pratt, of New York, at the shooting lodge he rented on those ultra-ultra Scottish moors.

More Vacationists.

Keith Officer of the British Embassy is off for a New England vacation, which will include stops in the White Mountains and Bar Harbor. Even hard working Senator and Mrs. Borah, who didn't think they'd get away at all this summer, are leaving September 16 for a vacation in Idaho. They will remain there until January unless there is a special session of Congress.

A returned traveler is Marian Trumbull, who is again at her Kalorama road home after a stay at Narragansett. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Karrick Morris decided to forego the pleasures of Labor Day in the Berkshires, where they spent most of August, and have returned to their Spring Valley home. Thomas Wilson of the State Department will go on leave shortly before sailing in October for Australia, where he has been appointed consul general.

Zonta Club to Meet.

The Zonta Club will meet today at 1 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. As there will be no guest speaker, each member will be given an opportunity to talk. An additional feature of the program will be vocal solos by Mrs. Pasquale Iodice, of Boston, accompanied by Miss Harriet Lloyd.

Miss Bertha Nienburg Honor Guest Of Coat and Suit Industry Board

Labor Department Women's Bureau Aide Expert on Economics.

By Elizabeth Ford.

When the National Coat and Suit Industry Recovery Board gets together at the Hotel New Yorker in New York City today for its semiannual meeting, its guest of honor will be Miss Bertha Nienburg, assistant director of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor.

Along with her busy schedule at the Labor Department, Miss Nienburg also finds time to sit on the board of the Business and Professional Women's Club of the District of Columbia. In addition to this she is the busy chairman of the Committee on Economic and Legal Status of Women for the American Association of University Women.

At the garment convention which she is attending now in New York, Miss Nienburg is pointing at the fact that American women spend every year from $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000—not on armament—but on clothes for themselves and their children. Naturally their purchases affect the earnings of approximately 300,000 apparel makers; or to put it another way, much of the trend of business in this country.

At the luncheon at the New Yorker, style and standards of dress are being stressed, with the guests including representatives of 15 outstanding women's organizations, eight of whom have just completed an intensive study in this highly interesting field.

Had Keen Interest In Women's Problems.

In April, 1934, when Miss Nienburg joined the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor as assistant director, she brought to this particular branch of research a keen interest in the economic plight of women all over the country. This general class had various subdivisions such as girls seeking employment, older women who thought that their age was "pushing them out" of the earning ranks, and homemakers who had felt the economic pressure of small incomes which were often too insufficient to organize their domestic worlds to the highest degree of efficiency.

Miss Nienburg, with her constructive viewpoint, immediately got busy on the problem. According to her, "Women today are looking for help as never before, and projects are now being worked out for them. Women wage earners are, in fact, in one of the most critical periods of the history of women in industry. And I use the term 'industry' to include all lines of work."

Characteristically, she did not stop at ultimatums, or generalized pronunciamentoes. Behind her words was a long study of the opportunities in existence for employed women.

She stressed the facts that new jobs for them must be created, with the according public demand for the products of these jobs. Her first project, shortly after she joined the Department of Labor, was the establishment of a porcelain industry.

"By porcelain," she said, "I mean fine, translucent china of the same quality that is now imported. There is much raw material for such an industry in this country, and it seems this is a real opportunity to develop an authentic American business that will give employment to thousands of women and many men."

Already a "pilot plant" for the designing and making of porcelain is under way under the supervision of the Tennessee Valley Authority. This is working in cooperation with the Women's Bureau.

Finds Possibilities In Handicraft Work.

Most particularly, Miss Nienburg sees great possibilities in the organization of handicrafts, so that they will find a market, and their makers find economic independence and security. Many Southern mountaineers in great need at the present time, are skilled in handicrafts.

In unifying the efforts of those who are producing handicrafts, Miss Nienburg urged that the work be brought out of the home into a community center where it could be designed, made and marketed.

"We can't hope to compete with Europe in the making of fine embroidered work and intricately designed laces, but quilting, appliqueing, tufting and the making of hooked rugs are only a few of the types of handicraft that are truly American. They would be much in demand if they could be made under supervision and marketing by a well-organized plan."

Miss Nienburg also believed that trained designers and good materials would be the advantage of a community scheme in handicraft. Furthermore, prices could be controlled more effectively.

Paris Features Muffs Combined With Coats

Paris (AP).—New winter muffs shown in Paris collections are practicing mild deceits. One takes the form of two loops attached at the front of a gray lamb jacket. When the wearer's fingers are cold or nervous, she slips them into the loops, joining them together in a sausage muff of elegant proportions. Another muff is formed by rolling up the loose front panel of a three-quarter coat, revealing a leopard facing.

"These vast stone Government buildings awe the foreigner and the inclander with the might of the Republic . . ." comments Harlan Miller in "Over the Coffee" . . . and every day they awe the hometowner who ventures into their structural labyrinths in search of someone. They would awe an ancient mariner who knows his way through uncharted seas . . . Even the best directions shunt you against blank walls, far, far from where you wanted to go.

People in Reclamation will remember Glover D. Mantle now retired . . Someone over there sends us a poem he dashed off and had printed in a Watertown (N. Y.) paper. The poem:

"Oh, to be in Washington
To keep a tryst with spring!
To catch the glint of morning sun
Upon a red bird's wing!
To watch him from my window
Swaying in a tree-top near,
To hear his joyous greeting
Of 'Cheer! Cheer! Cheer!'" (Canto II)
"Oh, to be in Washington
With cherry trees in bloom!
What a wonder-working miracle
To drive away all gloom!
Just to touch with reverent lips
One blossom-ladened bough,
To catch their faint, sweet fragrance,
Not sometime—but right now!"

Had Poet Mantel been here about two weeks ago he probably would have dedicated his work to the refreshing scenes around the North Pole, rather than to the cherry trees and springtime . . . Or would he, after walking through the heat in front of the Interior Building, have had the energy to shin his way up Parnassus for one fleeting grasp of the Muses' skirts? The poem was uncovered by Louella Littlepage, litterateur and optimist of the General Land Office.

This represents an increase over the price formerly charged, due to the fact that engraving costs have increased in the same amount."

Retired.

Mrs. Katherine Phillips was retired yesterday after 22 years' service and her friends in the Veterans' Administration gave her a nice send-off, along with some beautiful presents. . . . The presents had a double significance, August 21, besides being the date for her leave-taking, was also her birthday.

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde:

A tax payer as well as tax collector is Lewis Penwell out in Montana . . He didn't like the tone of some of the letters which he received from his own office over his own signature. . . . So, as a taxpayer, he wrote a letter to himself as a collector and had copies placed in the hands of all those in the organization who have occasion to write letters to the taxpaying public, as a tactful suggestion that the tone of the letters should be changed.

Edward J. Kelly (National Capital Parks) chairman of the athletic committee, I. D. R. A., has appointed representatives to organize teams in each agency. . . . Known as the Interior Department League, players will be restricted to represent only the bureau in which they are employed. . . . Mixed teams and all-girls teams will probably be organized.

Happy Workers.

Among the also-glads because of the adjournment: Those Federal workers who have to supply information to the various committees and individual congressmen.

They are very glad in the accounting divisions, where they were required to dig out every conceivable financial figure for use on the Hill. Should a congressman—for example—want the amount of concrete purchased to date at the Grand Coulee Dam project, the chief accountant in the Bureau of Reclamation would furnish it.

And all through the long bright days of June and the hotter days of July and August, the workers dug into facts, statistics, finding out such things as: The number of Indians, male and female, temporary or Civil Service, employed in the Office of Indian Affairs—what percentage of the cost of the Panama Canal went to labor—what was the value of exported apples in 1902, and on and on . . .

To date, the vacations of many minor clerks had been delayed. In many agencies, these workers remained at their desks long after hours, answering questions from Congress. And bureau heads and chief accountants—who dared not leave their desks until the gavel ended the daily sessions on the Hill—are now relaxing.

The magnificent diversity of printed matter that proceeds from the every-noisy presses of the Government Printing Office is engaging . . . Consider some of these: Aeronautics, animal industry, carrots, cauliflower, dusts, eggplant, goats, bankruptcy hearings Honorable Cordell Hull, spinach, leather footwear, Walsh-Healey act, and salmon.

Efficient and good-natured Roy Miller, who directs the press releases for Forestry Service (Agriculture), left yesterday on a week's vacation—desrved because he hasn't had a work day off this year . . . He is going to New York State and then into Canada to see how the forests look up there.

2 More Suspects Seized in Looting of Atwill Estate

Pikesville, Md., Aug. 31 (AP).—Raiding two colored homes at dawn, police arrested another man and a boy and charged them with looting the Green Spring Valley home of Mrs. Lionel Atwill, wife of the movie actor.

The new arrests brought the number in custody to seven. Five other colored suspects were arrested previously. Those taken in today's raids were William Bradley, 35, and a 15-year-old boy, whose name was not made public.

Clothes valued at $500 were seized by police at Bradley's home. Henry Cronehart, caretaker of the Atwill estate, said the clothing was taken from the estate. Bradley was charged with breaking and entering.

FARR, SCHMELING MATCHED TO FIGHT IN OCTOBER

The Washington Post Sports

* X WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1937 19

This Morning

Random Thoughts of a Columnist.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 31.—With a hasty glance at the deadline and thoughts while stalling:

Bet Jack Dempsey could lay off cigarettes for a week and lick both Joe Louis and Tommy Farr on the same night . . . But what they are saying now about Louis they were saying about Dempsey 13 years ago when Tommy Gibbons stayed ten rounds with him at Shelby . . . The logic of the one boxing writer who predicted Farr would beat Louis wasn't so Farr-fetched at that . . . The last two guys who were supposedly being led to the slaughter at the hands of Louis haven't done so badly . . . Schmeling knocked him out which, as Jack Smiley said, was equivalent to the cow killing the butcher . . . And Farr remained upright for 15 rounds without getting hurt.

POVICH.

* * * *

It must secretly irk Manager Bucky Harris to realize that two of his ball players are drawing more salary from Clark Griffith than he is . . . Wes Ferrell and Outfielder Al Simmons . . . But Harris made Griffith pay through the nose after leading Washington to its second straight pennant in 1925 . . . That was when Harris made the Nats' owner come through with a contract that called for a $100,000 salary covering the next three sessions . . . For a guy who is not supposed to be secure in his job, Harris is talking pretty definitely about the Nats' prospects for the 1938 season . . . He may know something.

* * * *

Wonder what those fighters would do without a pair of sun glasses the morning after . . . With the help of a pair of big specs, Joe Louis looked fairly presentable when he arrived from New York by plane this morning . . . They covered the only bruises he sustained against Tommy Farr . . . but Louis could use a pair of ear-muffs, too . . . At least one, because there are definite signs that his left auricle is beginning to cauliflower a bit. Strange that Jack Dempsey, a mauler who never gave ground and was willing to take plenty of socks around the head, never came up with one of those cauliflowers . . . Gene Tunney graduated from the ring with a young one.

* * * *

Little problems of some managers: Bucky Harris' vexation at Monte Weaver's failure to conceal his grip on the ball from the batters . . . Had to take Weaver out of the box at the end of the first inning at Cleveland the other day because the Indians knew every kind of a pitch he was going to throw . . . and were swinging accordingly . . . Appleton had the same fault until Harris made him wind up with the ball in his gloved hand instead of his pitching hand . . . and of late, Del Baker, coach of the Tigers, has discovered that Jimmy DeShong tips off his curve and his fast ball . . .

* * * *

They do say it is to Coach Baker that Hank Greenberg owes his slugging average . . . Because Baker from his third-base coaching box flashes the pitching signs to Greenberg . . . Baker is a signal hawk and almost always Greenberg takes his word for it . . . But he balked the other day after Baker gave him the fast ball signal three times and Greenberg took three swings and struck out because a new rookie in the league was throwing him curves . . . "Never mind about telling me what that guy is going to throw hereafter, Del," Greenberg told Baker . . . "Why, that rookie doesn't know himself what he's gonna throw, so howinell could you know?"

* * * *

Funny about Lawson Little; won't touch an umbrella now, even in the rainiest weather . . . Because the last time he carried one, several years ago, the thing was struck by a lightning bolt and knocked Little kicking . . . And Cecil Travis is a better fielder because he suddenly discovered he could get a better start on the ball by watching the hitter instead of the pitch . . . If there is any lingering doubt about Detroit being the best ball town in the big leagues, how about the crowd of 32,000 who paid to see the Tigers play the Yanks yesterday? . . . On a Monday . . . Just after a Sunday on which 40,000 customers saw the Yanks give the Tigers an awful shellacking . . .

* * * *

Tip to American League pitchers: Rudy York has two weaknesses—chocolate ice cream and home runs . . . Like George Washington, who, as a young officer in the English army before the Revolution, was routed by the French and Indians from the fort he commanded, Rudy York learned to accept adversity early in his career . . . The first time he went to bat for the Tigers he struck out . . . That was in 1934, and the Tigers immediately shipped him back to the minors . . .

* * * *

Freddie Sington's football experience is standing him in good stead in the big league . . . The former all-American tackle knows how to fall . . . When he somersaulted after catching a line drive at his shoetops today, he did it nicely with the rolling block he learned on the gridiron, and came up uninjured . . . It was on the same kind of a play that Outfielders George Selkirk and Dusty Cooke, of the Yanks, came up with broken collar bones.

Big Catcher Clouts Two Home Runs

Appleton Is Victim of Attack; Nats Wilt After Fourth.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 31.—The booming bat of 24-year-old Rudy York, Detroit's late entry in the home run race, spoke in tones heard 'round the baseball world this afternoon as one of Babe Ruth's proudest and supposedly invincible records went crashing into the discard.

Far, far, over the leftfield fence into Cherry street, big Rudy swatted one of Pete Appleton's pitches in the first inning to equal Ruth's record of hitting 17 home runs in a month which had stood up against every assault since 1927. But the 6-foot-1-inch 209-pound giant was not content, seemingly, with that feat.

Because, a half-hour later—in the sixth inning—York swung on another Appleton pitch to his liking, walloped that ball even harder over the left centerfield scoreboard and collected his second home run of the afternoon. That blow topped Ruth's record of 17 homers achieved during that productive September of ten years ago.

Thus York posted his twenty-ninth and thirtieth homers of the season during an afternoon that saw him produce two other hits in four official times at bat, drive in seven runs and score two himself.

Meanwhile, and coincidentally, the Nats took an awful pasting, 12 to 3. York, whose home-run-hitting spree for the month began on August 4, in Washington, when he bashed out the first of his three homers on three consecutive days, surpassed Ruth's mark on this, the last day of the month. He didn't dally.

He stepped up there in that first inning with Gerald Walker and Charley Gehringer on base and worked the count to three and two against Appleton and then he presented the Tigers with a 3-1 lead with his first homer of the day.

Dealing strictly in singles and Al Simmons' double that led off the fourth inning, the Nats tied the score 3-3, but the Tigers surged right back at Appleton in their half of the inning and went in front, 5-3, on Gehringer's single to center. Greenberg banged a single past Lewis to boost the figures to 6-3 and York beat out a hit to Lewis that made it 7-3.

The Nats were gone guys, but York had no pity. After Pete Fox belted a home run over the leftfield wall in the sixth and Gehringer had drawn a walk and Greenberg had singled, Big Rudy, with one more of his specialty wallops against the despairing Appleton, produced three more runs for the Tigers, taking it leisurely around the bases as the kids across street scrambled for his second homer of the day.

Giants Lose, Drop Game Behind Cubs

Cards Defeat New York, 8-1, as Medwick, Mize Star.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 30.—The Giants lost the first game of a three-game series to the St. Louis Cardinals, 8-1.

The defeat, coupled with the Cubs' victory in Brooklyn, moved the Chicagoans back into the lead by 6 points, or one full game.

The Cards, aided by homers by Don Padgett, Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize, the latter with a man on base, pounded three New York pitchers for 16 hits. Meanwhile Lefty Bob Weiland moved along easily to his twelfth win of the year. He set the Giants down with nine hits.

Pritchard Wins Canadian Swim

Toronto, Aug. 31.—Frank Pritchard, of Buffalo, N. Y., won the Canadian national exhibition marathon swim today for the second consecutive year, outdistancing a field of 66 in the 10-mile grind. He won last year when the distance was five miles.

Gianni Gambi, of Italy, held third place, 100 yards behind Nolan and about 150 ahead of Ben Gazell, of Toronto. Stan Pritchard, brother of the leader, was fifth, while Bill Sadlo, of Corona, N. Y., took over sixth when Warren Priddy, of St. Catherines, Ontario, was removed from the water just before the six-mile mark was reached. Trailing them came Eddie Xwulkner, Kansas City; Howard Norton, Dundas, Ontario, and Renato Bacigalupo, Italy.

Michael Hambourg, blind Toronto swimmer, who has started regularly in the grind, dropped out after two miles. Others began to leave the water at frequent intervals after the five-mile mark.

Ambers Is 2-1 Choice To Whip Scott Tonight

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Lou Ambers, ruler of the sassiest and toughest division of leather-chuckers operating under the Queensbury code, the lightweights, and Howard Scott, one of his most disorderly subjects, will have it out tonight in the 10-round feature of an all-star card at Griffith Stadium.

One of the largest audiences of the season is expected to see the argument, a nontitle affair, Scott has agreed to come in over the class limit of 136 pounds, although he will have difficulty attaining that titanic tonnage. Ambers probably will border on the limit, his best debating weight.

Champ Favorite.

The champ will enter the ring with the wagering gentry offering juicy 2-1 odds on his chance of stopping the Cowboy, and if their first introduction is any criterion of Howard's ability there will be plenty of takers.

Scott met and lost to Ambers two weeks ago at Hartford, Conn., getting up off the floor twice to make a fight of it. He waded into a surprised champion, clubbing him frequently with jolting rights to the head, standing toe-to-toe and slugging it out in mid-ring. Ambers won, but only after one of his toughest fights, and Scott isn't convinced that the best man got the decision.

Ambers, with more fights under his belt than the whole Democratic party, and many more victories, can be hit by a right hand. Scott's best weapon is the right. Hence, the outcome seems to hang on the local gladiator's luck in finding the range before Ambers brings his big guns into play. The champ wastes no blows, and when he rips into a lickless opponent it's like a scissors slicing through paper.

Supporting Card Good.

The supporting card is beyond a shadow of doubt the best presented here this summer. Joey Archibald, conquerer of Lou Gevinson, and Joey Marciente, of Canada, tangle in the 10-round semifinal. Ossie Stewart, Pittsburgh Negro who is hailed as one of the game's best at the weight, and Eddie Saxon, out of Syracuse, meet in another 10-rounder.

Irish Johnny Dean, a popular boy hereabouts, and one of Ambers' stablemates, Gary Rosete, are down for six rounds, and George Abrams, of this city, and Hunter Crostick, of Richmond, open the show with a four-round go. This incidentally, is one of the first genuine tests Abrams has been subjected to. He'll have to travel at top speed to win, and ther's a very good chance that he'll lose.

Cubs Regain Lead; Trim Dodgers, 4-2

Jump Full Game Ahead of Giants; Frankhouse Hit Opportunely.

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 31.—After having surrendered the National League lead to the Giants for 24 hours, the Chicago Cubs moved out in front again today with a 4-2 victory over the Dodgers while the Giants were being shellacked by the Cardinals.

From a position 2 points behind the Terrymen, the Cubs jumped a full game in front. They have won two more games than the 1936 champions and have a percentage of .608 to the Giants' .602.

Tex Carleton, in winning his twelfth game as against five defeats, furnished the Chicagoans with effective pitching. He set the Dodgers down with eight hits, two of which they combined with a walk and a sacrifice in the third for both their runs.

The Cubs, connecting for nine hits off Fred Frankhouse, who hurled a seven-inning no-hitter his last time out, scored their first run with two out in the third. Augie Galan walked, stole second and took third on a wild throw by Catcher Babe Phelps. He crossed the plate on Billy Herman's single.

Frank Demaree brought in the second tally in the sixth when he led off with a double, took third on Gabby Hartnett's clout to right and scored as Billy Jurges bounced into a double play.

The winners' last two runs were manufactured in the eighth on a double by Galan, Demaree's long fly, Jurges' single and errors by Buddy Hassett and Lindsay (Red) Brown.

Hassett's misplay so infuriated Manager Burleigh Grimes that he ordered his first-baseman off the field. Buddy left, but not until he had exchanged several heated words with his boss and the fans had given Grimes a loud round of boos.

Briton in Seclusion With Broken Finger

Ted Broadribb, Farr's Manager, Says Welshman Will Fight Despite Injury; Louis Off for Detroit, to Rest Until Next Summer.

By Jack Paulus.
Sports Editor of The Post.

New York, Aug. 31.—Tommy Farr, England's "uncrowned" heavyweight champion of the world, will meet Max Schmeling, Germany's "uncrowned" champion of the world, in October, Mike Jacobs, head of the Twentieth Century Club, said here tonight.

The Welsh coal miner, the world's latest fistic idol because of his "moral victory" over Champion Joe Louis last night, was in seclusion, nursing a broken ring finger on his right hand. Ted Broadribb, his manager, said, "Sure, we'll fight Schmeling. But how we're gonna do it in October, I don't know. Tommy's finger's broken. But we can take Schmeling. I know we can."

Broadribb's enthusiasm over Farr's ability was shared by New York today as groups in every restaurant, hotel and bar lauded the Welshman's courage, his ability to stand up and take it under overwhelming odds.

Leaves for Detroit.

Louis, suffering a severe contusion of the metacarpal bone of his right hand, left the Newark Airport at 2 o'clock this morning for Detroit. Physicians were to X-ray the injured hand today for possible fractures. Joe insisted in his dressing room last night that the hand was broken, but Dr. Walker, commission physician, quieted the Negro with an announcement that it was merely a bad contusion.

About 300 persons, most of them Negroes, were at the airport when Louis and his party arrived. Joe boarded the plane alone, leaving his entire entourage behind him.

John Roxborough, the champion's manager, said today that Louis will not fight again until next summer. Julian Black, a comanager, mournfully seconded Roxborough.

Max Schmeling, the Teuton who knocked Louis out 13 months ago, is getting the worst of the deal again. "See, see," he yelled to intimates in the press row last night. "See, dis fellow Louis is not so good, han? See!"

Maxie was at the Waldorf-Astoria today, downcast because Louis' injured hands will keep him from winning the title. The German is definitely convinced that he will beat the champion if, and when, they should meet again. Told by this reporter that Mike Jacobs said this morning that he would give him a title match if the German would accept the challenger's cut of 12½ per cent, Schmeling's black eyebrows grew blacker, a dark scowl spread across his face.

"Yah. Dot's vat I oolways gat!" he mourned. "Plenty of words from Mike Jacobs. Twelve and a huff per cent! Hah. Vill dey coom to zee Louis fight or coom to zee me knock him out? What?"

Maxie is standing firm for 30 per cent, he said. He had an offer from James J. Johnston, formerly with Madison Square Garden, today. Johnston offered him $100,000 to fight Bob Pastor either here or in Chicago. He also has another $100,000 offer from Jack Kearns, Jack Dempsey's former manager, to meet Johnny Adamick in Detroit next month. The tremendous reception that greeted the German when he was introduced from the ring last night is clew enough that he is worth four and five times that amount to any promoter.

Max Hints Acceptance.

Maxie said that Jacobs' offer to put him in with Tommy Farr may materialize "if de price is right." Jacobs, in his office in the old Hippodrome Theater on Sixth avenue, said that the fight would probably be held in Madison Square Garden. "However," he added, "don't be surprised if we take it to London. After the fight Tommy put up last night, he's worth a million dollars in England."

Jacobs confided that Farr had made a new agreement with him for all future appearances. The Welshman and his handlers left the Yankee Stadium in Jacobs' car after the fight last night.

"You treated us grand, Mike," Tommy is reported to have told Jacobs. "I will fight for you. Anybody and any place you say."

Mr. Jacobs would not reveal today whether or not he had signed Tommy to an actual contract, however.

Farr's performance last night easily hoisted him high on the international fistic ladder. Next to Louis, who, as champion, must rate the top spot, Farr and Schmeling hold the coveted "first challenger's" position.

There was no doubt in anyone's mind today that Farr carried the fight, as much fight as there was. His was the brutal fighting instinct. He obviously tried harder. He didn't lose his courage and took the decision of the judges with good grace. "I guess he did win," Tommy said after the fight. "But I gave 'em a good show, didn't I? I didn't lay down on those people out there. That's what they wanted, wasn't it?"

Slowed Down, to Lose.

True, Tommy lost the fight, even by a narrow margin. If he hadn't slowed down in the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth this reporter, and almost every other writer at the ringside, would have given him the fight.

Tommy served well to help crush the Louis myth, the myth that had been built up around the dusky Detroit lad as the invincible fighter, the dark destroyer, the most devastating puncher since the days of Dempsey. Schmeling punctured the myth once. Tommy Farr put the finishing touches on it last night.

So the two men who pricked open the Louis myth are to meet? Why? Because in this screwy fight racket you don't know what's going to happen next. Whatever happens, though—the winner meets Louis for the title next summer.

Veritas, Beal-Owned Mare, Believed Poison Victim at Marlboro

Owner's Son Lays Work To Vandals

Doctor Reports Foreign Food Had Been Eaten; Police Investigate.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Marlboro Race Track, Md., Aug. 31.—With her mouth a mass of blisters and her eyes inflamed, Veritas, an 8-year-old mare owned by Charles Beal, was believed to have been poisoned by vandals as a means of removing her from the entries for this afternoon's sixth race.

Track officials and police are investigating the case, which J. E. Beal, son of the owner and in charge of the stable, is convinced is a deliberate one of horse tampering.

Veritas, held at short odds in the morning betting lines and usually a heavy eater, refused her food this morning, and when she appeared to be in dull condition shortly before noon, Dr. H. J. McCarthy, track veterinarian, was called. He reported to the stewards that he believed the horse had eaten some foreign substance that had caused the condition. The horse was ordered scratched.

J. H. Beal said this afternoon that Veritas had not been grazed since the Cumberland meeting, and that she had not been out of her stall. He also said that the same bedding and feed had been used for all horses in the stable. He expressed the belief that the mare had been "gotten to" by someone while the stable force was at supper last night.

Beal said that he believed the poisoning was the work of someone familiar with the movements of the stable help.

This is the first case of horse tampering disclosed in Maryland since the passing of the State law last winter which makes the offense a felony punishable by three years' imprisonment. This action was taken after an epidemic of horse tampering at Bowie.

The race involved was won in handy fashion by Nathan Hale, a $3.50 favorite, which led Lady's Favor to the finish line by a length. Conventional was third.

In addition to the Veritas case, the day's program provided other excitement. In the fourth race H. S. Scava's Broomoney brought joy to a few backers by winning at a $127.40 mutuel in a blanket finish that saw Crossing Over, the favorite, running along the outside fence. This race was marked by a weird start, in which Idle Susan tossed Jockey G. McMullen and Landsman was left standing at the starting gate.

The Southern Maryland Purse, a test of 1 1-16 miles, brought a victory to Pencader, in the colors of Bernard Bond. The veteran son of Chilhowee circled his field swinging for the stretch and went on to win by a length and a half. Happy Road showed sudden improvement to be second ahead of Sylvia G. Pencader, ridden by Jockey L. Pikor and rewarded a host of backers with a $8.50 mutuel.

Famous Clayton, a big gelding whose form has been so poor that he has been called "not so famous," belied the talent in the seventh race by winning at a $58.80 mutuel.

Tournament Planned To Find Foe for Louis

Tommy Farr's Success Expected to Bring Forth Timid Heavies; 'Open Elimination' Will Determine Challenger.

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, Aug. 31.—In the wake of the failure by Joe Louis to do anything more damaging than outpoint Britain's Tommy Farr in the Negro's first defense of the world heavyweight crown, it appeared today Promoter Mike Jacobs will have to call a traffic cop to handle the newly inspired rush of title challengers.

Jacobs, the one-man boss of the fistic industry, encouraged the scramble by proclaiming an "open elimination tournament," with all comers invited to try qualifying for a title shot, but there was evidence on all sides that the one-time fear of the chocolate "killer" had been dissipated once more by Joe's inability to put Farr on the floor.

The sudden and stimulating effects of the Britisher's fine showing left only one man cold. That individual happened to be Max Schmeling, who regarded the champion's showing last evening with some disdain, repeated his desire to prove he can knock out Louis again, and forthwith asserted he wants no part of any elimination contest.

Schmeling, only fighter to flatten Louis, rejected a proposal that he fight Farr or anyone else this winter as a stepping stone to a title macth. The German reiterated his belief that he has already qualified for a shot at the championship he held from 1930 to 1932.

"If Louis doesn't sign to meet me next year," concluded Schmeling, "there's no question but that he's afraid to fight me."

Most critics agree a return Schmeling-Louis match next June will be a surefire $1,000,000 affair, but Promoter Jacobs isn't so sure now that it would draw any better than a return bout between the Negro champion and the young Welshman who stood up under Joe's heaviest guns last night with a brilliant display of fighting durability.

Meantime Jacobs doesn't intend to let Schmeling's demands or attitude alter plans to keep the heavyweight division as busy as most of the sports experts were today trying to explain how they guessed wrong on Farr's staying powers.

The promoter plans a series of bouts among the big fellows, in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Miami, and perhaps one or two other spots now forming part of his fistic combine. The first probably will be the match in Madison Square Garden, October 29, between two former champions, Max Baer and Jim Braddock. A Farr-Schmeling bout in the same arena, Jacobs added hopefully, could be scaled to draw a $300,000 "house" at championship prices.

Mrs. Robinson Leads Field In Army-Navy

Led by Margaret Robinson, top seeded entry, favorites advanced throughout the first round of the Army-Navy Country Club's annual invitation tournament with a minimum of trouble yesterday on the club courts.

Taking command of the match and never allowing her opponent to take a lead, Mrs. Robinson, wife of the No. 2 Army player, Lieut. Stanley K. Robinson, defeated Clarissa Mitchell in straight sets, 6—4, 7—5, to move into the second and quarter-final round.

Apparently seeking a rest from tennis activity following a week's play in the Women's League play last week, Sara Moore, No. 2 seeded player, defaulted her first-round match to Christine Gawne, unseeded.

Willie O'Steen, tennis, stylist and former playground champion, eliminated Frances Carter, of Chevy Chase, 6—0, 9—7, while Charlotte Decker, girls' champion of the District, was trouncing her oft-met opponent, Hazel "Jimmy" Bishop, also in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4. The first game of the opening set required 15 minutes, but after that, Miss Decker went on to sweep the match, profiting at the expense of Miss Bishopp's errors.

Johanna Zettlemeyer defeated Mary Bouve, 6—2, 6—4, and Dorette Miller, proving that her victory in the Women's League tournament was not an upset, defeated Mary Ryan, Argyle champion, 6—2, 7—5.

Semifinals are scheduled tomorrow and finals Friday.

Donald Budge, Sarah Fabyan Win Doubles

By the Associated Press.

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 31.—Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, of Boston, stamped herself as one of the ranking women doubles players of all time today when, paired with Donald Budge, of California, she won the national mixed doubles championship for the third time.

The all-French team of Yvon Petra, Davis Cup player, and Mme. Silvia Henrotin, who had eliminated last year's champions—Gene Mako and Alice Marble—yesterday, were the victims in an hour and ten minutes duel, 6—2, 8—10, 6—0, that wound up the week-long national doubles championships at Longwood Cricket Club.

In 1932, as Sarah Palfrey, Mrs. Fabyan paired with Fred Perry to win, and three years later with Enrique Maier of Spain as her partner she repeated. It was Budge's first triumph in mixed doubles.

Mrs. Fabyan also has won the national women's doubles five times, the most recent victory being yesterday when paired with Alice Marble.

The Americans concentrated their fire on Mme. Henrotin from the start, and had no difficulty running through the first set with the loss of only two games. In the second set, it was a different story, however, as Mme. Henrotin backed up Petra's forcing shots with smashing kills of the Americans' weak returns and sharply angled volleys. Games went with service in the closing stages until the eighteenth, when Budge's finally cracked, and the French pair evened the match.

Phils Blank Pirates, 3-0; Walters Star

Philadelphia, Aug. 31 (AP).—Bucky Walters, formed third baseman turned pitcher, started the sixth-place Phillies on a new winning streak today, shutting out the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3 to 0, with five hits for his fourteenth victory of the season. The game was played in an hour and 26 minutes, the fastest at Baker Bowl this year.

Ed Brandt hooked up with Walters in a pitching duel for five innings, but in the sixth he walked Leo Norris, and Martin beat out an infield hit. Morrie Arnovich then slammed a home run over the right field fence for the Phils' three runs.

In their last nine games against the first-division Giants, Cubs, Cardinals and Pirates, the Phillies have won seven. The Cubs ended a Phils' six-game winning streak by taking the second game of a double-header Sunday.

All-Stars Set to Play Pro Champs

By Charles Dunkley,
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago, Aug. 31 (AP).—Heroes of the Nation's collegiate gridirons last fall will demonstrate their individual qualities against the champions of the professional football world, the Green Bay Packers, at Soldier Field tomorrow night before more than 85,000 spectators, a record for the series which began three years ago.

Fair weather is the prediction for the game, but in the event of rain, the game will be postponed until the following night.

The All-Stars, more than 60 in number, came to the game as the result of an election by the fans of the Nation in the greatest sports poll in history. Sam Francis, Nebraska's famous fullback, led all candidates with 1,104,372 votes. Sixty-nine players from all parts of the country make up the All-Stars squad.

The starting line-up to which Head Coach Dorais is committed was the result of the Nation-wide poll. However, after the kickoff, he may rush in the players he desires. Since the bulk of the voting was Midwestern, the Western Conference supplied a half-dozen players, Merle Wendt, of Ohio State; Ed Widseth and Earl Svendsen, of Minnesota; Vernon Huffman, of Indiana, and John Drake, of Purdue, and Steve Reid, of Northwestern. Pittsburgh supplies the only Eastern members of the starting team in Averell Daniell and Bobby Larue. The South has its lone player, Gaynell Tinsley, of Louisiana State. Sam Francis is the sole representative in the starting line for the territory between the Midwest and Pacific Coast. Max Starcevich, of Washington, a Chicago boy, will represent the Pacific Coast Conference.

Samuel (Slinging) Baugh, of Texas Christian, will be missing from the starting line-up, yet Coach Dorais has been building his attack around the brilliant passing of Baugh, and he will be in there sooner or later. Dorais must challenge Green Bay's great passing combination of Arnie Herber and Don Hutson.

Central Gridders To Practice Today

Approximately 60 candidates are expected to turn out for Central High School's initial football practice which Coach Hardy Pierce has called for 9:30 this morning at the Central Stadium.

Around four lettermen retained from last year's team, Pierce hopes to build an eleven with which to capture the inter-high series championship now held by Eastern. The four veterans returning are Bill Ickes, a back, and three linesmen, Charley Jones, 1936 all-high guard, Sam Fox, an end, and Hugh Cramer, a tackle.

Schedule follows:

September 21—Gonzaga, home.
September 24—Eastside High at Patterson, N. J.
September 30—Washington and Lee, home.
October 5—Eastern (interhigh game).
October 9—Fork Union, home.
October 16—Roosevelt (interhigh game).
October 29—Western (interhigh game).
November 12—Wilson (interhigh game).
November 19—Tech (interhigh game).
November 25—Thomas Jefferson High at Elizabeth, N. J.

Maryland Eleven Starts Work Today

With only nine lettermen available, the University of Maryland's football squad will report this morning at College Park for the first session of pre-season training. Head Coach Frank Dobson, who returned from the West Coast yesterday, found his squad riddled by losses, most of them key men.

The Old Line eleven will be built around the following men, Blair Smith and Nick Budkoff, ends; Mike Surgent and Bill Wolfe, guards; Bob Walton, center; Jim Meade, Waverly Wheeler and Charlie Weidinger, backs, and Frank DeArmey, blocking back—if he is physically able to play.

Louis Fight Films To Show at Cameo

Official films of the Farr-Louis championship bout will be shown at the Cameo Theater, Thirty-fourth and Rhode Island avenue, Mount Rainier, Md., starting this evening (Wednesday) at 6 o'clock, and running every hour on the hour till midnight.

Thereafter, the film will be shown daily from noon to midnight, except on Sundays, when it will start at 2 p. m. Last showings will be at 11:25 p. m.

The films show the entire action of the fight, round by round and blow by blow. They give local sports fans an opportunity to see for themselves whether the decision which saved the title for Louis was a fair one. The Cameo will be the closest theater to Washington that will exhibit the fight pictures, located as it is just two blocks over the District line.

March Bows To Latona In Net Play

Wins, 6–1, 6–4, in Government Tourney; Finals Postponed.

By Bob Garrison.

Tony Latona, long, lean and lanky tennis instructor of the District Playground Department, cleared the highest hurdle in his path to the Government League's annual tennis championship yesterday when he trounced his buddy, blond Harry March, District junior champion, in the semifinals by straight sets on the Potomac Park courts, 6—1, 6—4.

In the one remaining quarter-final match Erwin Niemeyer, seeded No. 2, won from Ray Stocklinski, No. 2 player, by default after they had split the first two sets, Stocklinski winning the marathon opener, 11—9, and dropping the second, 6—4.

A train deadline forced the former Fall River, Mass., high school champion, to withdraw from the match. Niemeyer advances into the semifinal round where he meets Charles Heacock, former Missouri Valley champion, today at 5 p. m.

The final match will not be held until a date following Labor Day, however, as Latona is leaving the city and will not return until that time.

Latona, defending champion and top-seeded entry, made short work of the boy who was supposed to give Tony his hardest task of the tournament. March, seeded No. 4 and a subordinate to his conqueror in the playground department, was far off his game and only during the last half of the second set did he offer stiff competition.

Always a late starter, March, a North Carolina University track and tennis star, did not get warmed up until he was trailing 3—0 in the second set after having lost the first set in the short space of 12 minutes. Then he won the fourth game, yielded to Latona's service, and took the next two games to draw to 3—4.

His backhand shots, which had been seemingly magnetized to the tape of the net, so often did they fail to clear by the narrow margin of its width, now began to clear the net, but Latona, hardly noticing the effects of the blazing sun, had too much stamina for his rallying opponent and managed to win by breaking Harry's next two services, 6—4.

Playground Track Meet Draws 2,500

This is the day of days for playground kids—the highlight of entire summer program of the Department of Playgrounds, for today some 2,500 boys from Chevy Chase, from Anacostia, from Petworth, from Foggy Bottom, from Southwest, from every corner of the city, will trudge into Central High Stadium for the annual track and field meet of the playgrounds.

Fat boys, skinny boys, freckled boys—boys of every size and description, of every type and nature—will take over Central's jumping pits and cinder paths in Dick Tennyson's fourteenth renewal of the city-wide track carnival he built from a struggling, slimly attended meet on the old Plaza Playground to an all-day affair, smartly conducted, hotly contested.

The first band of future Olympic greats, proudly bearing its colorful playground banners, will march into the stadium shortly after 9 o'clock, to be followed by representatives of 62 other playgrounds who will participate in the day-long program.

One of these groups, bearing a brightly colored blue and gray banner, will swing along with just a little more gusto than the others, carry the admiring eyes of every boy in the stadium. This will be the Georgetown Playground team, defending champion, in the event which has been laboring mightily all summer under Coach Herman Riley to retain its highly regarded laurels.

The Georgetown team will lead the parade of playgrounds around the circular track, the first event in the schedule, which starts at 9:30. To the martial strains of the National Training School Boys Band, the entire representation will file slowly around the track in columns, drawing at attention in the center of the field, where all will take the playground Olympic oath.

First event to be run off, the 50-yard dash in the 70-pound class, will start at 10 o'clock. Contestants will be entered in seven classes, 70-pound, 85-pound, 100-pound, 115-pound, 135-pound, restricted unlimited and the unrestricted unlimited.

Each playground will be limited to three boys in a single event and each boy may enter but one event. Only in the 135-pound and unlimited classes may spiked shoes be used. All participants will be weighed prior to the opening of the track and field program.

Tennyson will act as referee. He has named the following officials for the events: Clerk of the course, Harry Helme; assistants, George Bogan and Bill Marlow; starters, Bryan Morse and Hardy Pearce; chief judge, Joe Mitchell; judges, Frank Haske, Tommy Nolan, Maxwell Dickey, Louis Mitchell, Stewart Reeves and Harry Swanson; timers, Arthur Kriemelmeyer, Ed Hargadon and Francis Daly; running broad jump, Ben Zola, Bob Hart, Wade Wood, Herman Riley, Fred Tehaan and Nick Pistolis; running high jump, Frank Carr and Ben Kail; custodian of prizes, Dorothy Kelso; recorder, Everett Cross; examining physician, Dr. Luther Gray; chief marshal, Phil Fox.

Al Simmons Hurt In Freak Accident

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Detroit, Aug. 31.—Victim of a strange accident at second base, Outfielder Al Simmons may possibly be lost to the Washington club for the remainder of the 1937 season.

Simmons was spiked by Umpire Harry Geisel in the fourth inning today. He was sliding into second after swatting a double against the leftfield fence and Geisel, hurrying over to the bag to witness the close play on Chester Laabs' throw, stepped on Simmons left hand.

The umpire's spikes left a series of ugly gashes across the back of Simmons' hand—the same hand that was broken by a pitch two months ago—and the outfielder was rushed to the Nats' dressing room, with blood flowing freely from the wound. He dressed and was taken to a Detroit hosptial.

Mrs. Meckley, Miss Brown Meet Today

Mason-Dixon Winners at White Sulphur Springs Clash.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 31.—Virginia Guilfoil, medalist, and Marion Brown, blonde sharpshooter from Washington, D. C., provided first round features here today as the Mason-Dixon golf tournament entered the second round of match play.

Miss Brown, Manor Club member, defeated Mrs. Edward Stifel, Wheeling, W. Va., 7 and 6, playing some of the finest golf of the day. Mrs. Stifel, unsuccessful finalist time and again with her daughter Fritzi for the State crown, was no match for the District of Columbia player's consistent game.

Mrs. Betty Palmer Meckley, semi-finalist here the past two years, won, 9 and 8, over Mrs. J. S. Skelly, of Monongahela, Pa., the loser halving but one of the 10 holes necessary to complete the match.

Mrs. Meckley, former Middle Atlantic, Maryland State and District champion, meets Miss Brown in a second round match tomorrow that is expected to feature the day's play.

Miss Guilfoil, runner-up in the National last year, won every hole in her match against Mrs. M. T. Davis, of Columbus, Ohio, posting a 10 and 8 margin of victory.

Three other District players lost first-round matches. Mrs. J. F. Gross bowing to the favored Dorothy Traung, of San Francisco; Mrs. Merrill Lord losing to Bernice Wall, 6 and 4, while Mrs. Charles A. Stewart bowed to Janet Younker, White Plains, 6 and 5.

Mrs. G. M. Owens, of Petersburg, Va., defeated Virginia Fox, Harrisburg, Pa., 3 and 2, in the other upset of the first round.

A majority of the first-round matches were won by lopsided margins, but the field has been reduced to 16 for tomorrow's play, bringing together some of the favored contestants.

Other winners in the first round of the championship fight included Mr. Lois Rogers, Parkersburg, W. Va., 9 and 8, winner over Mrs. E. H. McFarland; Mrs. Ann Hoblitzell, former West Virginia State champion, 4 and 3 winner over Mrs. G. R. Hedges.

The veteran Mary Fine loomed as a tournament threat with an 8-and-7 win over Mrs. E. C. Schuldt, Rocky River, Ohio, 8 and 7.

Washington entrants in the lower flights fared poorly, although at least one District representative remains in each flight.

Wheat Prices Hold Steady At Low Level

Show Export Movement a Factor in Dullness of Markets.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—With the wheat market's lethargy undisturbed, prices slumped as much as 1⅜ cents a bushel at one stage today but recovered before the close. The course of prices followed a pattern occurring frequently the last few sessions during which the market has been unable to rally much from the lowest level in more than a year.

Slowness with which North American wheat is moving into export and uncertainty about Southern Hemisphere crops held speculative demand at a low ebb. Furthermore, Liverpool lost all of an early advance of about a cent and there were reports of some rain in Argentina. Much of the business consisted of selling September holdings accompanied by buying of more deferred contracts by the same interests, accounting for comparative weakness of the nearby delivery and strength of December and May wheat.

Commodities Curb Tightened

Secretary Wallace moved yesterday to tighten up on commodity trading by large operators under the Commodity Exchange Act. Rules announced govern trading in cotton, butter, eggs, potatoes and mill feeds, effective October 1. Previous articles covered the two other commodities affected by the act, grains and flaxseed.

Members of contract markets will be required to report daily to Commodity Exchange Administration offices on such data as total open accounts, and open accounts at the day's close, net position at close, deliveries made and received, and in the case of cotton, delivery notices passed.

The announcement of the regulations said every possible precaution was being taken "to prevent large operators from manipulating prices by making a concerted drive on the market through several different commission houses."

Futures commission merchants must report daily the operations of customers who are long or short at the end of a day, 5,000 bales of cotton, 25 carlots of butter, eggs and potatoes, or 500 tons of mill feeds. The department said the amounts specified were so large that only transactions of the largest traders must be reported.

Railroads Net 2.73 Per Cent In 7 Months

Compares With 2.30% Last Year and 3.48% in 1930.

Class I railroads of the United States in the first seven months of 1937 had a net railway operating income of $357,899,351, which was at the annual rate of return of 2.73 per cent on their property investment, according to reports just filed with the Bureau of Railway Economics of the Association of American Railroads and made public yesterday.

In the first seven months of 1936 their net railway operating income was $299,738,774 or 2.30 per cent on their property investment, and in the first seven months of 1930 their net railway operating income was $450,935,427, or 3.48 per cent on property investment.

Property investment is the value of road and equipment as shown by the books of the railways including materials, supplies and cash. The net railway operating income is what is left after the payment of operating expenses, taxes and equipment rentals but before interest and other fixed charges are paid.

This compilation as to earnings for the first seven months of 1937 is based on reports from 138 Class I railroads representing a total of 235,872 miles.

Gross operating revenues for the first seven months of 1937 totaled $2,452,418,669 compared with $2,222,251,053 for the same period of 1936, and $3,111,900,121 for the same period in 1930, an increase of 10.4 per cent in 1937 above 1936, but 21.2 per cent below 1930.

Operating expenses for the first seven months of 1937 amounted to $1,825,538,587 compared with $1,669,401,494 for the same period in 1936, and $2,378,147,109 for the same period in 1930. Operating expenses for the first seven months of 1937 were 9.4 per cent greater than in the same period of 1936, but 23.2 per cent below 1930.

Nineteen Class I railroads failed to earn expenses and taxes in the first seven months of 1937, of which seven were in the Eastern district, two in the Southern district and ten in the Western district.

Georgia Tobacco Crop Brings $15,470,510

Atlanta, Aug. 31 (AP).—Georgia tobacco growers received $15,570,510.64 from their 1937 crop, or about $100,000 less than the record-setting 1936 revenue, the State department of agriculture reported today.

Both the average price and poundage for 1937 were below the 1936 figures. The 79,523,530 pounds of Georgia-grown tobacco this year sold at an average of 19.58 cents, compared to the 20.96 cents average for the 84,299,126 pounds last year.

Youngstown Sheet Plans Financing

Cleveland, Aug. 31 (AP).—Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. directors today called a special shareholders' meeting October 19 to act on financing for plant improvements in Youngstown and Chicago district mills.

While plans are incomplete, the company said, the financing probably will total about $30,000,000, with common shareholders acting on proposals to increase common shares from 2,000,000 to 2,500,000.

Stock Prices Hold Firm in Dull Trading; Cotton Declines Further.

New York, Aug. 31.—Stock trading increased slightly to around half a million shares and the price tone was firm, but advances were smaller than on the previous day. Bonds were dull and uncertain, and commodities were inclined to weaken. Cotton lost a little. September wheat dropped three-eighths of a cent at $1.04 a bushel.

A brilliant day weatherwise brought to a close a month which on the whole has been unsatisfactory to the trading public, to investors and to professional Wall Street as well, but price declines in securities have by no means kept pace with the rising volume of outcry which has been directed at sales totals rather than at values.

Industrial shares this month lost approximately 4 per cent in value, or about half their gains of the previous month. Industrial prices begin the autumn at about where they were in the middle of July. That would be reassuring were it not that prices are still well below the best of the year. The case for the railroads is much less favorable, both on current position and on prospects. Railroad shares fell 8½ per cent in August and reached a new low level for the year on the 27th. Their average prices on that day carried them back to June 6, 1936. Railroad shares are now 28 per cent down from their best of the year, prices reached on March 17, and are 13 per cent under prices prevailing a year ago.

The following table shows the movements of the most active industrial stocks in August:

A reflection of the firmness in stocks was found in the Government bond market, where trading nevertheless continued light. The steady tone scarcely rested on the short term money market, which continued to harden if slowly. The latest issue of Treasury discount bills was sold at another advance in the rate, and while the 1 per cent discount rate established by the Federal Reserve Bank may tend to put a temporary ceiling on short term rates, it may even quicken the movement toward that top.

On the side of economy certainly the Government appears to be doing little worrying over the bond market. Certain miscellaneous bits of expenditure have been turned down by the President, but he has accepted the cotton loan bonus, an unsound economic operation which, besides its other ill effects in long run, will set the Treasury back a good many millions.

Cotton Loan.

The 9 cents cotton loan came along as expected, and the market has had ample time to discount the possibilities of Government "loans," i. e., purchases of cotton from the planters at 9 cents a pound, for the required quality, plus a gift of 3 cents a pound, if desired. Whether the conditions that are supposed to go with the 3 cent gift, or bonus as it is called, ever will be filled is a question. They are that, in case Congress some time passes legislation providing for it, acreage will be kept down to the "base" line, a nebulous market that naturally depends upon the political influence of the land owner (and with most of them that influence is considerable), in much the same way that bonuses have been paid in previous years for cotton "reduction" as well as for wheat and live stock curtailment.

Larger crops rather than reductions are in general desirable. The Government's attempts to control output and prices in the past few years ought to have taught a few lessons, and probably they did to the taxpayers, who are inarticulate, or at least they have voices that can not be heard above the din of the gimme boys in the cotton, wheat and corn fields of the South and West. There is every reason to believe that the new cotton loans and gifts will work out this time just as they have in the past, with uncertain markets ahead, heavy expenses to taxpayers as well as to consumers, and sharp encouragement to the planting of millions of fresh acres to cotton in Brazil, Russia and other competent countries, bringing ultimately a permanent loss of markets to this country.

Double Taxation.

A Wall Street broker, returning yesterday from a European trip, was reported to have said that a reason for the current dullness in stocks was the freezing of foreign operations because of the new taxes proposed on foreign dealings. That will mean, the broker is reported to have said, double taxation for the foreigner, and the foreigner has therefore been staying out and pulling out to escape the penalty. That may be true of traders from some countries but not in all. Great Britain, it is understood here, has no tax on capital gains, so that the British trader in our markets goes scott free of the tax that besets the American trader. The proposed taxation simply will put the Briton on a par with the American and on the grounds of justice should have been slapped on long ago, provided the capital gains tax could not be removed from the American, as certainly it should be.

Baltimore Ships Load Steel for East

Baltimore, Aug. 31 (AP).—Demands for metals that may be converted into war materials are keeping Baltimore's stevedores busy loading cargoes of scrap iron, pig iron and finished steel on ships bound for foreign ports. Bound for Yokohama, Kobe and Osaka, the Isthmian Line freighter, Knoxville City, sailed yesterday with 8,000 tons of finished steel products. The British freighter, Troilus, will sail today with a cargo of steel for China. The Italian ship, San Guiseppi, is taking on 7,400 tons of scrap metal. The British steamship, Dallas City, is bound for Mobile to take on a cargo of pig iron for Japan.

Cotton Drops Dollar a Bale On Loan Plan

December Sells at 9.12 Cents a Pound, Closing at Low.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 31.—Cotton lost about $1 a bale today under hedging and liquidation which followed the overnight announcement of the 9-cent loan plan of the 1937 crop. December sold off from 9.29 to 9.12 and closed at the low, with final prices 14 to 21 points lower.

The market opened at declines of 4 to 7 points with bearish interpretations of the loan and accompanying subsidy payment, partly counterbalanced by an inclination to cover at new lows for the movement. The trade also covered on the decline, but while the buying offered considerable resistance prices displayed no rallying power and toward the close sold off to fresh lows. While the 9-cent loan figure announced from Washington was about as expected, differentials for lower grades and shorter staples were regarded as being under the current basis.

Boston, Aug. 31 (AP) (U. S. Dept. Agr.).—The wool market here was practically at a standstill today and buyers were showing no interest in domestic grades and dealers were not making any effort to push sales. Quotations were entirely nominal, based on asking prices which were unchanged from last week. Chief interest in the market was the observance of the price trend in Australia. Cables received by members of the Boston trade, reported the prices for the second day of the Australian sales as unchanged to slightly easier.

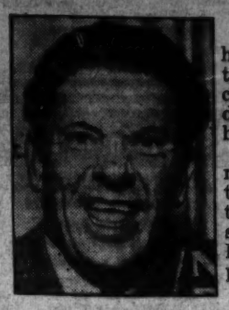
Bob Burns Says—



I know a friend of mine who's a big businessman and hardly ever sees his children. He sends 'em away to military school in the winter time and out to some recreation camp in the summer and he never lets his children come down to his place of business because he don't want 'em bothering him.

Back home I've got an uncle who's a barber and his boy not only hangs around the barber shop all the time but he takes an interest in his father's work. I'll never forget the time the boy saw a stranger comin' into the shop and he says, "Papa, here comes a stranger—let me practice shavin' him," and my uncle says, "All right, son, you go ahead and practice on him but be careful—don't cut yourself."

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

The Community Center Department and the Office of National Capital Parks present the Alice Louise Hunter Dance Group at the Sylvan Theater Tuesday night in conjunction with concert numbers by the Washington Gas Light Company Employes' Band, under the direction of Otto Siebeneichen.

Alice Louise Hunter and her company of dancers had the good fortune of balmy weather and a starlit sky last evening for the presentation at the Sylvan Theater of a program which was enjoyed by a large assemblage of spectators. Conditions were ideal for all concerned, and the character of the entertainment conformed perfectly to the outdoor setting, for the choreography and for its central motive fanciful and realistic activities in a garden.

The first part of the program consisted of a ballet, "The Garden by Moonlight," with music by H. Jerome Graham, who is a recent acquisition to the ranks of resident composers. Derived from the myth of Diana and Endymion, the ballet has for its major characters a moonstruck poet, a mortal damsel whose rival in the lady of the moon, and an alluring water nymph, while about them flit personified moonbeams, fairies, flowers, fireflies and nocturnal moths. Mr. Graham's music is well adapted to the subject, although it did not sound to the best advantage in an arrangement for two pianos.

Sundry solo and ensemble dances to compositions by Chaikovski and Chopin constituted the second division of the program, which ended with an amusing garden party scene enacted to waltzes by Johann Strauss. Colorful costumes gave piquancy to "The Garden in Summer," and the mimicry of dismay at a passing shower made pointed allusion to the vicissitudes of the Sylvan Theater.

"The Garden When the North Wind Blows" brought the program to a close with a ballet of autumnal colors and the scurrying of leaves before the breath of winter. Music by Schumann and Ethelbert Nevin was utilized as the accompaniment for a cleverly devised scenario.

Overture and intermission music was contributed by the Washington Gas Light Co. Employes Band under the direction of Otto Siebeneichen, who selected such appropriate numbers as selections from Luders' "Woodland" and the overture to Suppe's "Dichter und Bauer."

Carter Glass, Jr., Heads U. S. Philatelic Society

Detroit, Aug. 31 (AP).—Carter Glass, jr., of Lynchburg, Va., was elected president of the American Philatelic Society today at the opening session of its 52nd annual convention here.

Glass, youngest son of the Virginia Senator, is editor of the Lynchburg Advance.

Tobacco Girl Photo Annoys Cleric

Picture above showing Miss Marian Thompson, of Danville, Va., garbed in a few tobacco leaves, which was used for publicity purposes for the National Tobacco Festival at South Boston, Va., has brought comment from all sections of the country. A Florida minister urged the young woman to abstain from "all appearances in immodest dress." In a later mail she received proposals of marriage from Midwest States.

Psychologists, Together, Ponder Seven Posers on American Life

Labor, Value of Brains, Fascism Among Questions on Which New Society's Members Do Not Know Answers.

By the Associated Press.

Minneapolis, Aug. 31.—Seven American social issues, on some of which "will turn perhaps our own life or death," were outlined to the Society for Psychological Study of Social Issues here today by its president, Dr. Goodwin Watson, of Teachers College, Columbia University.

The society is a new psychological organization. It does not know any answers yet on any issues, Dr. Watson said. It aims first to find out—"Are we asking the right questions?" about today's social changes.

Dr. Watson posed these seven questions:

Is it better to rest a program, as American labor seems to be doing, upon an appeal to immediate economic interests, or, as our Government did with those same men in 1917, upon the challenge to die for great ideals?

Is there a sense of guilt or inadequacy within us which craves the assurance of familiar symbols rather than new ones?

Will the best brains of the propagandists always be for hire to the privileged class, or are there conditions under which the better techniques of social appeal can be placed at the disposal of the underprivileged?

Is the attitude of the intellectual moving so much faster than that of the man in the street that we shall see, as Germany did, the repudiation of the intellectuals?

Do men respond more to a program which offers security or to one which suggests adventure?

Is the attitude of organized labor changing so much more rapidly than the attitude of organized wealth that we can anticipate a complete breakdown of co-operation and understanding?

Within the middle classes, are attitudes of identification with labor outrunning attitudes "receptive to fascism?"

The questions were part of the issues Dr. Watson said it is important to consider under the heading of "public opinion." He also defined six further headings, group thinking, planning, social forces, leadership, the State, and American fascism.

The Harvard Traffic Bureau driver clinic reported an experiment in which 490 poor drivers overcame nearly all their defects within six months merely by taking tests which showed them their faults.

The 490 were "accident repeaters." The tests showed them, whether their driving faults were due to reaction speed, hand-eye coordination, glare blindness, ability to estimate speed of a car coming in from the side, judgment of complex speeds, manipulation of controls, sight, color blindness, hearing or how large a "field" their eyes could take in.

A new idea of why promising candidates for jobs fail was reported to the Association of Applied and Professional Psychology by Beatrice Candee and Milton Blum, of New York City. They studied successes and failures in a watch factory.

They found that certain finger dexterities produced superior workmen, provided these workers possessed also certain other essential qualities.

Thomas Sights Peril in Pact to Curb Dictators

Entry of U. S. in Such an Alliance Would Cause War, He Warns.

By the Associated Press.

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 31.—The idea of seeking peace for democracies through alliance against dictatorships was assailed tonight by Norman Thomas, Socialist leader.

The entry of the United States into such an alliance would lead to war eventually, Thomas told the Institute of Human Relations in a prepared address.

"There are workers' sanctions against war and for peace which may be far more effective than the militarization in the theory of collective security, he said.

At an earlier session of the institute, held at Williams College under the auspices of the National Conference of Jews and Christians, Herbert Agar, editorial writer for the Louisville Courier-Journal, declared the time was aproaching when United States citizens would have to take the democratic ideal seriously or abandon it.

"Our world is sickening for an ideal it can understand, and honor, and service," Agar said. "Democracy has done itself harm by pretending it was easy; pretending it already existed."

During the day session, Martin Quigley, publisher of the Motion Picture Herald, opposed "any scheme which involves the theater screen in propaganda of any character," and asserted "the only mandate which the motion picture industry has any right to assume that it has received from the public is to produce entertainment films."

Thomas criticized the application of the present neutrality law.

"Our government feels compelled to respect the hypocrisies of other nations," he said.

4 Men, 2 Firms Guilty Of Bucketshop Fraud

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 31 (U.P.).—Four men and two securities companies tonight were convicted of violating the Federal securities act in a Nation-wide "bucketshop" ring whose profits allegedly ran into the millions.

A jury in United States District Court brought back guilty verdicts for John R. Sherman, J. N. Mendelson, J. A. Ricebaum and Leo I. Sutterman, all of Chicago. Four men were acquitted.

Steel Ousted C.I.O. Friends, Worker Avers

Weirton Foreman Accused by Former Employe at NLRB Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

New Cumberland, W. Va., Aug. 31. Louis Xindas, 35, a steel worker, testified in broken English today that Foreman Frank Hale in the roll department of the mills at Weirton had threatened to discharge workers who favored the C. I. O. He and his brother, Stylianos Xindas, were discharged for their activities in the C. I. O.-sponsored steel workers organizing committee, Xindas told a National Labor Relations Board examiner hearing a complaint against the Weirton Steel Co.

Stylianos Xindas testified he was driven out of the Weirton plant by Claude Conway, chairman of the Employes Security League. Stylianos called Conway leader of "a hatchet gang."

Attorney William A. Fahey, counsel for the employe representation plan, an organization originally sponsored by the company and opposed to C. I. O., objected when Louis Xindas, in answering a question, said "I think Claude Conway thought.——"

"Mr. Witness, have you ever studied mind reading, phrenology, mental telepathy, fortune telling, or palm reading?" asked Fahey.

"By the way, who are the members of this organizing committee?"

"I don't know."

"You follow the dictates of S. W. O. C., and yet you don't know the names of its members?" pressed Fahey.

"You still here three hours and a half while I'm on the stand and you don't know my name. You still call me 'Mr. Witness,'" Xindas retorted.

Tears of Wife Lighten Bail in Child Beating

Kennel's Unusually High Bail of $3,000 Slashed by Jurist to $1,000.

A bond of $3,000—one of the highest on record for an assault case here—was set yesterday by Police Court Judge Robert E. Mattingly for Albert Kennel, 24-year-old photostat operator, held for trial on charges of beating his 17-month-old son, Albert, jr.

Later on, however, Judge Mattingly reduced the bond to $1,000 and Kennel managed to post this amount.

It was Kennel's wife, attractive 18-year-old blonde, who pleaded with Judge Mattingly to reduce the bond, tearfully insisting she did not believe her husband meant to hurt the child.

"I am convinced my husband did not hurt the baby, Mrs. Kennel said. "He says the child fell from his crib—and I believe him."

Judge Mattingly was told the baby was still in Gallinger Hospital.

Kennel admitted spanking his son, but denied striking him on the head. The child, he said, fell from his crib after the spanking. The father appeared in court with a discolored eye, received, he said, when a neighbor stopped him on the street and struck him soon after the alleged child-beating.
